Biennial Georgia Election To Be Held Today

STATE AND COUNTY OFFICIALS CHOSEN IN WHITE PRIMARY

LIGHT VOTE EXPECTED OUTSIDE OF ATLANTA

Interest in Statewide Contests Center in Race for Senate Between Harris and Hardwick.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Georgia voters today will select the men who are to serve them for another two-year period. In every county of the state the democratic white primary will call voters to the polls, to make known their choice for United States senator, commissioner of agriculture, state school superintendent, commissioner of pensions, public service commissioners, congressmen, superior court judges solicitor generals, state senators, state representatives and other county officers.

Nominally, a number of other important officeholders, including the governor of the state, will be selected, but inasmuch as these others are unopposed for reelection there is, in reality, no selection to be made. Those who will thus automatically succeed themselves in office include the governor, secretary of state, attorney general, state treasurer, comptroller general, commissioner of commerce and labor, one prison commissioner, two supreme court justices, two court of appeals judges, six of the congressmen and various local candidates in the different offices.

Candidates Confident.

Despite the fact that there are so many unopposed candidates this year the campaign as a whole has developed considerable interest, due to the heat generated between some of the leading candidates. On Tuesday, election eve, all candidates gave out statements, as usual, each predicting that he would be returned victor in today's battle of ballots.

Interest has centered in the race between United States Senator William J. Harris and his opponent, former Governor Thomas W. Hardwick. Senator Harris, in his eleventh-hour statement, says that he is "confident of the result on Wednesday and grateful to the hosts who assure me of their active interest at the polls

184 UNDIE SUITS IN EIGHT HOURS IS GIRLS' RECORD

New York, September 9.—Here's a girl someone ought to hurry and marry—if she's willing.

Miss Eva Pellerin, of Troy, N. Y., who holds the world's record for making knitted underwear, is performing at the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers here this week.

Eva's record is 184 suits of undies in an eight-hour day.

LUDENDORFF'S DOGS CAUSE GREAT ROW IN MUNICH COUNCIL

Munich, Bavaria, September 9.—General Ludendorff's hunting dogs have kicked up a great row in the Munich city council. Two of the dogs belonging to the former German army chief were impounded for running loose without muzzles and were condemned to be killed. General Ludendorff and his political supporters intervened and obtained annulment of the order. The social democratic faction in the city council has protested vigorously against this action, declaring General Ludendorff's dogs were far more apt to be mad than those of any other ownership "because of their association with their master."

FEARING DEFEAT G. O. P. IS ELATED AT MAINE RESULT

President Coolidge Sends Telegram of Congratulation to Republican State Chairman.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, September 9.—Naturally the republicans are elated over the republican victory in Maine, especially as they had been prepared for a narrow escape if not an actual defeat.

It turns out that Brewster, the republican candidate for governor, has defeated Pattangall by about 35,000, a good, comfortable margin, which is perfectly satisfactory in the Coolidge household here.

As soon as it was clear that Brewster had won, President Coolidge sent a telegram to the republican state chairman, George M. Emery, extending his congratulations "on the significant and decisive victory of the republican ticket in the state of Maine."

At Chicago, William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, declared "the Maine barometer records unmistakable confidence in Calvin Coolidge and his policies and his triumphant election."

No National Barometer.

It is a republican victory, of course, but whether it forecasts the election of Coolidge is a matter about which impartial observers are not so certain. True, there is no encouragement for democrats in the result. The point is, as stated by this writer in a dispatch Sunday night, that the Maine election is not a national barometer, despite the usual propaganda to make it appear so. The vote is of even less national significance this year because the fight between Brewster and Pattangall was almost exclusively over the klan. Furthermore, the real unknown quantity in this campaign is La Follette, and he did not figure in any way in the Maine campaign.

About all that can be deduced from the result is that the state republican organization is functioning well in Maine, that it has not been hit either by the scandal developments affecting the national administration, or frightened by the klan issue. It has held its machinery together, and brought out a clear majority. It probably will repeat in November.

But it is an entirely different mat-

Starting tomorrow, The Constitution will add to its editorial page features a daily comment article from Washington written by Charles W. Gilbert, the author of BOUDOIR MIRRORS OF WASHINGTON—the most sensational volume ever published on the "inside doings" of the Capital City.

Mr. Gilbert predicts and comments in his letters in a way which is peculiarly all his own and is remarkably gripping and fascinating.

One noted American writer in commenting on Mr. Gilbert's Daily Mirror of Washington said, "I don't know how he gets away with it—but he does!"

PRESIDENT'S OFFER TO QUIT REJECTED BY CHILE SENATE

Resignation of Alessandri Had Been Tendered at Request of Cabinet and Military Forces.

POLITICAL SITUATION MADE MORE DIFFICULT

General Altamirano Assumes Duties of President, While Alessandri Stays at U. S. Embassy.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Santiago, Chile, September 9.—The Chilean senate this evening declined to accept the resignation of Arturo Alessandri, president of the republic, which was tendered today at the request of the cabinet and the military headed by General Altamirano. The vote was 16 to 11 against acceptance. The chamber of deputies will not convene to take action on the resignation considering that this would be useless inasmuch as the senate has rejected it.

The new cabinet had presented to the senate a proposal urging acceptance of the presidential resignation and at the same time to permit President Alessandri to leave the country with his family and to confer upon him the rank and pay of an ambassador.

It is considered that the senate's refusal to accept the resignation has made the political situation more difficult than it was.

After the action of the senate this evening, Alessandri sent the cabinet a note, insisting that he be permitted to resign. Meantime, he remains a guest in the American embassy here, where he went early this morning after he had resigned.

When Alessandri quit the presidential palace, General Luis Altamirano assumed the office of vice

THEFT OF $8,000 LAID TO ATLANTAN

Carl Herbert, Former Secretary of Southern Electrical Supply Company, Held for Embezzlement.

Charged with embezzling more than $8,000 from the Southern Electrical Supply company, at 81 Marietta street, Carl Herbert, 38, of 271 East Lake road, former secretary of the company, was held Tuesday night by Fulton county authorities in default of a bond of $10,000. Herbert, who was discharged from the company two weeks ago, was arrested early Tuesday afternoon.

As secretary of the firm, Herbert had charge of all records and cash, representatives of the company stated, and by registering false entries in his book and juggling figures, he appropriated to his own use more than $8,000, they said.

Discharged By Company.

Herbert was discharged from the company following a controversy with one of the patrons, company representatives said, and shortly after his departure an audit of his books was ordered. The alleged shortage was then discovered, and a search for Herbert begun. Herbert left the city and remained away until Tuesday, it is said.

Upon his return, a warrant charging embezzlement was issued by T. E. Thrift, clerk of the municipal court. According to the arresting officers, it was necessary to obtain a search warrant before Herbert could be taken into custody. He was hiding in his home, the officers said, and refused to admit them, sending word to the door by a small daughter that "mother and father had gone out." An officer was stationed near the house to prevent Herbert's escape while the search warrant was obtained. When officers appeared at the door with the warrant, Herbert gave himself up.

Receiver Is Appointed.

The firm of Douglas & Douglas announced Tuesday that a receiver had been appointed to take over Herbert's home and furniture in an effort to regain in part the loss sustained by the Southern Electrical Supply company. The receivership was granted in DeKalb county superior court, and Hugh Burgess was named receiver.

Herbert declined to make any statement Tuesday afternoon other than he was "going to fight the thing out."

Brides May Be Barred From Teaching in Schools

:: NEWLY MARRIED COUPLES SHOULD HAVE FAMILY ::

A movement to bar brides from teaching in Atlanta public schools was launched Tuesday in the board of education with the support of the two women members present. A new rule, drawn by Commissioner W. W. Gaines, to require resignation of teachers not under civil service immediately upon marriage is to be taken for final action at the regular October meeting.

Superintendent Willis A. Sutton recommended the new ruling on the ground that the "chief business of a newly-married couple should be to raise a family and make a home."

Mrs. Kate Green Hess declared that the board should in that way foster the idea that education should begin in the home and should encourage brides to turn their teaching talent and training into the rearing of their own children. Mrs. Z. V. Peterson also favored the new rule.

Eubanks Defends Brides.

Dr. R. M. Eubanks assumed the role of Cupid with a lone protest against any action to discourage matrimony, declaring that it would be wrong to penalize any young woman for marrying.

"Just because she makes a mistake she should not lose her job as well," the doctor declared.

He secured the consent of the board to let the proposed regulation take the regular course as an amendment to the rules of the board, which require that amendments lie on the tablt for one monh before being considered for final disposition at the next regular meeting.

The proposed rule would affect only those teachers who have been in the system less than two years and are classed at "probationary teachers." After two years' service they are elected as regular teachers and serve under civil service regulations, being subject to removal only after charges have been made and proved.

Rule Is Modified.

The new rule, as embodied in the Gaines amendment, would not make marriage an offense punishable by dismissal, under the rules of the board.

Mr. Sutton made it plain that he has no prejudice against married teachers just because they are married, asserting that some married teachers are better than some unmarried ones but that, generally speaking, newly-married young teachers are not always entirely satisfactory as teachers.

PRESIDENT GIVES WARM WELCOME TO WORLD FLIERS

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, September 9.—President Coolidge and his cabinet welcomed the American round-the-world fliers back to headquarters again today after waiting nearly four hours in the rain, and the smiling, happy airmen immediately took the show and ran off with it, despite the drizzling rain and the muddy field, through which a huge crowd waded out to greet them.

The Chicago, piloted by Lieutenant Lowell Smith, flight commander, rolled gracefully down Bolling field in front of the president and his cabinet officers at 3:02 o'clock, amid a steadily rising din of applause from the crowd which lined the field, and which surged forward as the planes completed this stage of their journey, one of the most trying in their globe flight. The Boston was close behind, carrying Lieutenant Leigh Wade.

Nelson Leaves Plane.

Atlanta Youth, Victim of Hazing, Drowns in Ocean

Investigation Into Death of E. L. Beard Reopened by War Department's Order.

Newport, R. I., September 9.—Acting under orders from the war department, the local naval authorities this afternoon reopened the investigation into the death of First Class Seaman E. L. Beard of Atlanta, Ga. who is alleged to have committed suicide a week ago by leaping into the water from the United States auxiliary steamer Antares.

According to witnesses examined in previous investigation, Beard was the victim of excessive hazing by shipmates. Several cases of this kind have occurred at the local station this year, but none resulting so seriously.

Search for the young Georgian's body was abandoned this morning, when divers from the torpedo station, who have been working daily for a week in an effort to locate the body, declared that there was no chance of finding the body.

The Washington order for a rigid inquiry was made, according to reports tonight, immediately after the receipt of the report of the special board of inquiry.

Relatives of E. L. Beard could not be located in Atlanta Tuesday night, and although no record of him could be found here, it is understood that he left Atlanta some time ago to enlist in the navy.

SHAVER FIGURES DAVIS AS WINNER OVER PRESIDENT

Claims 204 "Sure Votes" for Democratic Nominee and Concedes Only 138 Votes to Coolidge.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, September 9.—Confidence that the presidential election will be decided in favor of John W. Davis in the electoral college, and will not be thrown into congress, was expressed in a statement issued tonight by Clem L. Shaver, chairman of the democratic national committee.

"It is just as well," he said, "to get rid at once of the nonsenical notion being spread by republicans that Coolidge is the leading candidate, and that it is necessary to vote for him to keep the election out of congress. Just the reverse is true."

Claiming 204 "sure votes" for the democratic candidate and conceding only 138 in that category for the president, Mr. Shaver asserted:

"If the voter were to cast his ballot from the sole motive of keeping the election out of the house, he would vote for the candidate who had the largest number of sure votes, and that candidate would be John W. Davis. No candidate even approaches him in the number of sure votes.

"There has not been a single estimate by those engaged in carrying the election now with their pads and pencils which has not conceded the vote of the southern states to Davis. That means that Davis starts with 139

BAN IS PROPOSED FOR NON-VOTERS BY G. O. P. LEADER

New York, September 9.—John A Stewart, president of the Republican League of clubs of the state of New York, today recommended to the executive committee of that organization that voting citizens be rewarded with medals and chronic non-voters be barred from the polls. He urged legislation disfranchising every person, permanently or for a term of years, who cannot maintain a valid excuse for having failed to vote at three consecutive elections.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB TO HEAR SENTENCE ANNOUNCED TODAY

NEITHER OF YOUTHS APPEARS DISTURBED

Status of Slayers Changes Automatically, No Matter What Sentence Is, on Return to Jail.

Chicago, September 9.—Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb are ready to hear Judge John R. Caverly sentence them for the murder of their schoolboy neighbor, Robert Franks.

Tomorrow at 9:30 a. m., Chicago time, the two sons of millionaires will be led from the county jail under double guard to the criminal court building, where Judge Caverly will read to them his decision, sentence them and then order the proper officers to execute his commands. When this procedure, expected to consume less than 30 minutes, has been concluded, the boys will be taken back to the jail, either to 'murderers' row," where condemned persons await the gallows, or to the cells they have occupied since the first of June, to await transfer to Joliet penitentiary.

The criminal courts building will be surrounded by armed men hours before the time set for the reading of the sentence. The building will be filled with other guards, with bailiffs standing watch over every door. More than 250 men will comprise the detail assigned to the scene.

Judge To Be Guarded.

Extra precautions, in view of the many threatening letters received by the judge and others attached to the court, will be taken in escorting Judge Caverly from his northside residence to the court.

While Judge Caverly is in the building and on the bench, he will have detectives constantly at his side. His police guard will remain with him until he has returned safely to his hotel.

Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman said today that he had received three anonymous letters, the writers of which threatened to blow up the jail and the court building if Loeb and Leopold are not sentenced to be hanged.

"Ordinarily," Sheriff Hoffman said, 'I do not pay much attention to letters of this kind, but I want to do my full duty and we are taking full precautions to the limit of our force."

Defense Test Day Parade on Friday To Be Colorful

Elaborate Demonstration Will Mark Atlanta's Observance of Day.

Atlanta's main thoroughfare is to be ablaze with the national colors and the whole town will turn out en masse to pay homage to the Stars and Stripes Friday, when the nation unites in observing National Defense Test day.

Decision by the finance committee of city council to appropriate $300 to decorate Peachtree and Whitehall from Mitchell to Baker streets, was announced Tuesday, simultaneously with the final meeting of the local executive committee in charge of arrangements for the day—where it was announced that everything was in readiness for Atlanta's biggest and most spectacular patriotic demonstration.

W. O. Foote, chairman of the program committee, states that his work is practically finished.

FOUR POLICEMEN, ELEVEN FILIPINOS KILLED IN FIGHT

Honolulu, September 9.—Four policemen and 11 Filipino strikers were killed today in a fight at the town of Hanepepe, on the island of Kauai, according to advices received here this afternoon. Deputy Sheriff Crowell is also reported to have been seriously wounded.

The fight occurred when the police attempted to rescue two Filipinos who continued to work when a strike occurred on the McBryde plantation at Hanepepe and had been kidnaped by the strikers as they were returning to their homes yesterday.

Crowell, who is in the Makaweli hospital wounded in the head, is expected to recover.

IMMEDIATE ACTION ON BIG AVIATION FIELD HERE URGED

Atlanta May Lose Place on Air Mail Service Route Through Lack of Adequate Facilities.

Spurred by the likelihood that unless immediate action is taken in securing of a suitable landing field the war department will not consider Atlanta in the contemplated southern air mail route, the board of county commissioners Tuesday afternoon appointed a committee to take up the matter at once, and has requested city council to name a committee to cooperate with them in securing the field. The matter will be considered by council Monday, and it is expected that a committee will be named at that time.

The action was taken after Lieutenant Colonel Charles H. Danforth, commanding officer of air service in the fourth corps area, had read communication received by him Monday from the war department, asking information as to what steps, if any, have been taken in securing landing facilities here.

While it was not stated in the mes-

FOUR ARE KILLED IN FAMILY FEUD

Two Bystanders Are Seriously Wounded in Battle Around Election Booth in Louisiana.

Opelousas, La., September 9.—Four men are dead and two others, innocent bystanders, are not expected to live as the result of a gun battle today at Plaquemine Point polling booth in St. Landry parish. The dead are John Childs, his two sons, Thomas and Getty, and Joseph Cormier.

The injured are Arville and Baptiste Richard, both of whom are in a hospital here, each suffering from two dangerous wounds.

The shooting resulted from ill-feeling of several years' standing, aggravated by an encounter between Thomas Childs and Cormier a month ago, and the heated political campaign incident to today's democratic primary.

The coroner of St. Landry parish, who investigated the affair, is authority for the statement that John Childs began the shooting. Cormier was officiating at the booth as an election commissioner when the Childs trio appeared. An argument over political matters arose and the elder Childs drew a pistol and began firing. Cormier returned the fire, killing his assailant instantly, but himself was wounded by bullets fired by the two sons. The three shot it out. Cormier, wounded a half-dozen times and lying on the ground, emptied his pistol, but calmly reloaded it and resumed pouring a stream of lead at his assailants. Thomas Childs was killed instantly. Cormier died 20 minutes after his opponents had been bested, while Getty Childs lingered an hour.

The trouble between Cormier and the Childs family is said to have originated eight years ago when Cormier slapped Thomas Childs, then a lad of 13 years. There was ill-feeling later, too, over the grading of land for road building and smouldering. It broke into flame four weeks ago when Thomas Childs and Cormier met at a cotton gin in Lewisburg. They fought with knives, and while Childs was slashed several times, he injured Cormier so badly he had to be placed in a hospital, where he remained until a week ago.

BLEASE LEADING BYRNES BY 2,217 IN CAROLINA RACE

Michigan, Massachusetts, Vermont, South Carolina, Colorado, Louisiana, Arizona Hold Primaries.

GILLETT FAR AHEAD OF TWO OPPONENTS

Judge Tuttle Leads Senator Couzens in Michigan. Ransdall Running Away From Lee Thomas.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Columbia, S. C., September 10.—Cole L. Blease, running for the nomination for the United States senate for the third time since he retired from the governor's office in January, 1914, early this morning was leading his opponent, Representative James F. Byrnes, for 14 years a member of congress, by 2,217 votes. This lead was established on the basis of returns from all counties, including a total of 1,294 of the state's 1,354 precincts in the democratic primary. The vote was: Blease, 97,462; Byrnes, 95,245.

The State, a newspaper consistently opposing Mr. Blease's candidacies for office, announced at midnight that in its opinion the 60 missing boxes will not change the result and that the former governer has been nominated to succeed Senator N. B. Dial, eliminated in the first primary two weeks ago.

Mr. Blease was governor from January, 1911, to January, 1915, when he resigned five days before the expiration of his term.

Second Carolina Primary.

The second primary today follows the first party test held two weeks ago when Nathaniel B. Dial, junior senator from South Carolina, was eliminated with Insurance Commissioner John J. McMahan, leaving Blease and Eyrnes to continue the contest today, a majority being necessary to nominate.

Two other second races claimed the attention of the voters. John M. Daniel, assistant attorney general, on the face of the incomplete returns, with a lead of approximately 10,000 votes, has been nominated for attorney general over J. Munroe Spears. B. Harris, incumbent, has been renominated for commissioner of agriculture over J. W. Shealy.

B. B. Hare, of Saluda, seems to have won the nomination for congress from the second district over R. L. Gunter, of Aiken, these two surviving from a field of five in the first

Elementary School Space Devoted to Kindergartens

All available space in Atlanta elementary schools is to be devoted to kindergarten for this year and as many additional teachers as are necessary are to be employed for them, the board of education voted Tuesday afternoon. Every white elementary school is to have a kindergarten.

A further change in rules to make the kindergarten actually the first grade in the school system was proposed and will be acted upon at the October meeting.

Superintendent Willis A. Sutton reported that 500 more children had applied for seats in kindergarten than the board had provided teachers and class rooms for. He was authorized to turn auditoriums, vacant offices and all other space not now in use for actual class room or administrative work into kindergarten rooms, at all white elementary schools, and to employ assistant teachers at $50 a month for all schools at which more than 35 eligible children applied.

All children over 5 years of age are eligible to attend kindergarten, but where class room space prevents admittance of all applicants, children nearest 6 years of age are to be admitted.

At present the kindergarten has no official connection with the graded system and children are customarily admitted from kindergarten into the first grade when they reach the age of 6 years without the formality of an examination. Under Dr. Sutton's proposal no child would be admitted to the first grade until qualified for first grade work and children 6 years of age who were not fitted for first grade work would be placed in kindergartens for preparation.

Transfer of Offices Of School Department Is Held in Obeyance

Action on transfer of administrative offices of the school department from city hall to Walker street school was deferred until the October meeting by the board of education in session Tuesday. Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, supported by by W. C. Slate and others, moved to make the transfer on recommendation of Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, but other members of the board secured postponement to permit further investigation of the plan.

EDUCATION BOARD WANTS STOCKADE BUILDING SPACE

A request to city council to give the present city stockade building to the school department was adopted by the board of education Tuesday afternoon and will be submitted to council Monday, on a resolution introduced by Superintendent Willis A. Sutton.

The resolution asserts that the school department is in need of additional spasce for school shops for repair and building of furniture and equipment, for a book depository, for R. O. T. C. headquarters and other purposes.

The present stockade is located on a knoll opposite the new girls' high school and removal of prisoners from it in January has been promised by Mayor Walter A. Sims and city council. Commissioner Slate said that Mayor Sims had promised him his support to the plan to transfer the stockade building to the department.

School Board Gives Property for Widening Along Eighth Street

Eighth street, from Jackson to Boulevard, is to be widened to 50 feet, the board of education voting Tuesday to give the city a narrow strip on the Grady High school property needed for the widening. The cost of the widening and paving is to be shared by the land company which is developing the residence section opposite the school and by the city.

NON-RESIDENT FEES FOR HIGH SCHOOL NOT INCREASED

High school non-resident tuition fees in Atlanta will not be increased, the board of education voted Tuesday after receiving the report of a special committee appointed to review present tuition charges. It will remain at $100 per year.

No action was taken on changing elementary school tuition, which at present is $50 per year. The committee asked further time before making its report on that. Mrs. Z. V. Peterson is chairman of the committee.

LA FOLLETTE PLANS NEW YORK SPEECH

Washington, September 9.—Definite arrangements have been made for Senator La Follette to open his speaking campaign as an independent presidential candidate with an address in Madison Square Garden, New York city, Thursday night, September 18.

After his initial platform speech, the senator probably will remain in New York a day or two to confer with various political lieutenants, and then will return to Washington. He intends to remain here after his return until ready to start on a stumping tour that is expected to take him into various sections of the country.

Except for the New York address, Senator La Follette's speech making itinerary has not been arranged. It was said at the candidate's headquarters today that it probably would be near the end of the month before departure is made from here on an extensive speaking trip. The senator's friends expect him to make a dozen or more important speeches in industrial centers and cities selected with a view of giving him an audience suitable for the discussion of a certain phase of campaign issues, and the advisability of having the candidate make a trip to the Pacific coast is being considered.

Death Cheats Hymen as Auto Crash Kills Man

Louisville, Ga., September 9.—R. J. Tillinger, of Savannah, while en route to Atlanta with his bride-elect and three other women, was killed on the Dixie highway seven miles east of here this morning, when he lost control of a big car and headed into a bank. The car turned over. The four women were taken to Savannah on a late train. The marriage was to have been solemnized in Atlanta tonight.

HOLD LAST SERVICES FOR VICTIM TODAY.

Savannah, Ga., September 9.—Funeral services for Isadore Jacob Tillinger, 22, young violinist of this city, who was killed in an automobile wreck near Louisville this morning, will be conducted tomorrow from his residence. Interment will be at Bonaventure cemetery.

Mr. Tillinger was killed instantly when the touring car, which he was driving, skidded into an embankment on the Dixie highway seven miles east of Louisville and turned turtle. Other occupants of the automobile, Mrs. Lewis Gabel and her two daughters, Misses Rena and Alean and his sister, Miss Ethel Tillinger, were unhurt.

The death of Mr. Tillinger was particularly sad in that he was driving to Atlanta with his fiancee and their relatives. He and Miss Rena Gabel were engaged to be married.

Miss Rena Gabel said that the road was boggy and slippery due to a rain earlier in the morning. The car skidded and headed into a small embankment, striking it and turning over. Young Tillinger was pinned beneath the wreckage and killed. Other occupants of the car crawled out, and as soon as they could reach a telephone called a physician.

BIBLE IN SCHOOLS WILL BE DISCUSSED AT BOARD MEETING

Representatives of all religious denominations in the city of Atlanta are to be invited to appear before the board of education at a regular meeting to be designated later before action is taken on new regulations of Bible reading and Bible study in the public schools, the board voted Tuesday.

Proposal to bar the Bible from school entirely, to permit "historical comment" on it and to continue the present plan of having it read without comment of any kind, all have been made to the board and will be considered at the public hearing.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB TO HEAR SENTENCE

Benjamin Bachrach spent this evening in a last-minute conference with their young clients. The conversation was long and was conducted in whispers. Afterwards, the lawyers refused to discuss the nature of their talk with the two boys.

When pressed for a statement, Mr. Darrow remarked that he "did not see how Judge Caverly can impose the death sentence on the boys in view of their age and pleas of guilty."

Previously to the visit of their counsel, Loeb and Leopold had discussed several subjects, including their own situation, with fellow-prisoners and newspaper men. Neither appeared disturbed or excited, Loeb having regained his self composure, obviously lacking yesterday.

Leopold wanted to bet a penny that they would be sent to Joliet, but was restrained from doing so by the interference of a jail guard.

Double Guard Over Boys.

When they cross the bridge that connects the jail with the court building, the two youthful university students will have two guards apiece. They will be with the youths from the time they awaken tomorrow morning until sometime late in the day. No especial reason was given for doubling the guard over the boys, excepting that an attempt might be made by persons intending to harm them break the police lines to reach them.

When the boys are returned to their cells, their status will be automatically changed. As prisoners under sentence, they will lose certain privileges and will be permitted to receive no callers, except by distinct permission of the sheriff.

What the sentence will be only two people in Chicago know. They are Judge Caverly and his stenographer who transcribed the 1,000 words comprising the decision. Persons seeking to discuss with Judge Caverly certain features of the session tomorrow or who wanted an intimation as to the probable sentence were unsuccessful in locating the jurist today.

Will Tell Newspapers.

He has, however, indicated that he will inform newspapermen of the nature of his decision a few minutes before he mounts the bench tomorrow so that the newspapermen will be ready to give the news to their readers almost as soon as those in the court room hear the sentence actually pronounced.

Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy, today appeared as a witness when Walter Dures, 17, was arraigned on a charge of writing a threatening letter to Mr. Franks in an attempt to exort $8,000 from him. Dures, who had been arrested with two other youths, was placed on probation for 90 days when Mr. Franks suggested that he did not believe that Dures was responsible, but had been led on by his companions.

122D OFFICERS TO DISCUSS PLANS FOR BIG PARADE

Atlanta's observance of Defense Test day, particularly the part in the parade and ceremonies of the 122d infantry, Georgia national guard, will be the chief topic at the regular meeting at noon today of officers of the 122d regiment.

These luncheon-meetings are held regularly on Wednesdays at 12:30 o'clock in the rainbow room of the Ansley hotel and are attended by about 30 officers of "Atlanta's Own" regiment.

Adjutant General Charles H. Cox, commanding officer of the 122d infantry, will announce final details for the regiment's participation in the huge parade and ceremonies arranged for the day. Tentative plans call for formation of the parade at the intersection of Auburn avenue and Fair streets at 2:30, the parade to proceed thence to Piedmont park, where addresses will be made by leading citizens.

A large number of civilian volunteers have enrolled for the parade by officers and men of the 122d and will march immediately in the rear of the regiment.

Merchants To Meet.

The first fall membership meeting of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association will be held on the roof garden of the Cecil hotel on Thursday night, September 25, it has been announced.

SPECTACULAR ROBBER SENT TO ATLANTA PEN

New York, September 9.—Bernard A Marron, 22-year-old bank robber, diamond thief and convict, was sentenced to a three year term in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta by Federal Judge Foster today. He pleaded guilty to having robbed a lower Manhattan branch of the Capital National bank of $15,000.

Marron, the police said, has had a spectacular criminal career. When he was 16 he was sent to the reformatory for burglary. Released a year later, he returned $27,000 which he had taken from a Wall street brokerage house which had employed him and escaped with a suspended sentence. In May, 1919, he walked off with $100,000 worth of diamonds belonging to his employers and for this was sentenced to ten years in Sing Sing. Good behavior brought a parole at the end of four and a half years.

On completion of the sentence imposed today Marron must finish his Sing Sing term. The bank robbery was accomplished within a week after he had gotten a position in the place with references stolen from a job seeking bank clerk who had forwarded them in answer to an advertisement.

He was arrested in a Chicago newspaper office last July as he was about to insert another advertisement, his second in that city, in an effort to obtain references to be used in obtaining a position in a Chicago bank.

Boifeuillet Says Perry Is Like a Baby Crying In the Night With No Language But a Cry

Georgia Public Service Commissioner James A. Perry reminds me of

"An infant crying in the night;
An infant crying for the light,
And with no language but a cry."

His lengthy reply in yesterday's newspapers to my exposure of his attacks upon me under the nom de plume of O. R. Bennett is practically a rehash of all the nonsense he has been writing for the Eastman candidate during the past two months.

Mr. Perry says he is not a candidate for office in the coming primary. No, but he incubated Candidate O. R. Bennett, gathered him under his wing, and has done all the cackling for him. In a speech by me at a recent luncheon by the Atlanta League of Women Voters I charged Mr. Bennett to his face with not writing the newspaper articles signed by him, and he made no denial, but looked at me in a foolish way, with his mouth wide open and eyes popped.

Mr. Perry says he was not a candidate for the chairmanship of the Commission, and that he stated to Commissioner Trammell in advance of the election that he would vote for him. He did not have this change of heart until he ascertained that the four other commissioners were opposed to him for the chairmanship. According to statements, attempts were made to bulldoze two of the commissioners into voting for him for chairman. This is one of the most interesting stories in the political life of Georgia. Mr. Trammell was elected chairman.

Then it was that Commissioner Perry offered his resolution to the effect that there be daily meetings of the Commission at nine o'clock A. M. I voted against the resolution because I did not believe it was offered in good faith, but in a spirit of revenge at his being thwarted in his burning ambition for the chairmanship. I further believed that it was an affront to the newly elected chairman.

The resolution did not affect me in the slightest, because I am in my office every morning before nine o'clock, and do not leave until 5:30 P. M. at least, and can readily attend daily sessions even at an earlier hour than nine o'clock. According to Mr. Perry's reasoning, he had been unwilling to have daily sessions when his salary was $2,500.00, and not until he had been enjoying an increase of $1,100.00 in salary per year for more than two years, did he introduce his resolution. Commissioner Perry was the special champion among the members of the Legislature for the passage of the Act to raise the salary. I did not ask a representative or senator to favor the increase. I had been elected, as Mr. Perry had been, when the salary was $2,500.00, and I was willing to continue to serve at that sum, without lobbying for a raise. I did not require extra compensation before performing my full duty, under the law.

Mr. Perry says that my reference to a conversation between us as to his name not appearing in a newspaper publication in the damage suit of some $12,000 against an Atlanta Bank, is untrue. What are the facts, in the light of heaven? While Commissioner Perry and I were walking through the Capitol I said I had noticed in the morning paper that his name did not appear in the list of the attorneys in the case. He replied: "Yes, I observed that and it made me vexed. It seems that Walter Brown wants to get all the credit of winning the case. I intend seeing him about it." I answered: "Oh, you know you had your name left out of the papers because you did not wish the people to know that you were practicing in the courts when the law says you must devote your entire time to the duties of a commissioner." He looked at me, laughed, and said: "If you think that way about it, all right."

Mr. Perry concludes his statement in today's paper by mournfully declaring that "Mr. Boifeuillet has cowardly waited until the eleventh hour to launch this bitter attack on me for no purpose other than to detract from the unanswered charges made by his opponent."

Who has been more cowardly than he, a fellow-commissioner, hiding himself behind the bulky form of O. R. Bennett and assailing a colleague from ambush? I had passed unnoticed the various vicious attacks upon me until the eleventh hour false accusation against me of publishing a "tissue of fabrications," when I made the reply to which Commissioner Perry now protests.

The false charges published by the Perry-Bennett combination as to my record were fully disposed of in my statement published in the daily papers last week under the title "His Record Is His Platform," with one exception. I now dispose of that.

I voted to pay the per diem and expenses of a competent and experienced engineer employed to inspect and examine the passenger rolling stock of the railroads in Georgia, as to the safety and standard of equipment with the view of safe-guarding passengers from accident; the inspection of sanitary conditions of all coaches, for the promotion of the comfort and health of passengers; the investigation of schedules in order to ascertain whether the fast through trains were showing proper consideration of local, or accommodation passenger trains, or, if they were indifferent to the convenience, comfort and business of local passengers by keeping them waiting on side tracks for the passing of long delayed through trains from the East and West. He also had other important duties too numerous to mention without making this article unduly long.

I voted to pay the per diem and expenses of the engineer after the employment had been completed, the work done and the compensation earned. Mr. Perry had an opportunity to move to stop the work in the middle of the employment. However, he waited until after the work was done and then sought to deprive the engineer of his just compensation.

Mr. Perry says he will not vote for my renomination but will cast his ballot for Mr. Bennett. This will be a distinct compliment to me which I shall highly appreciate. His opposing vote will be buried "unwept, unhonored and unsung" under mountains of unprejudiced, untrammelled and victorious ballots.

Faithfully yours,
JOHN T. BOIFEUILLET.

Princess Wahletka Answers Great Variety of Questions

Princess Wahletka, international famous Indian seress, who is appearing at Loew's Grand theater this week, and whose answers to questions of Atlantans are appearing in The Atlanta Constitution, today answers ten more questions, picked from among the approximately 3,000 questions sent to her in the last few days.

The answers today show that the questions sent to Princess Wahletka were of a varied nature. Here the ten selected at random:

F. R. S.—"Distance lends enchantment to the view and clothes the mountain in an azure hue." This is true of you. There is no reason why you cannot make a success right here in Atlanta. Why go to New York? Just get over your self-consciousness and believe in your powers.

W. W. I.—I am afraid that it is your conscience that is bothering you. You see you own soul has told you you did wrong in cheating the man who tried to help you. If he was good enough to go for weeks without a cent of salary and did all in his power to aid you—it showed a very mean spirit to defraud him. That is why you are being punished. It is your conscience that is your jailer and it will continue to torture you till you make good the money you owe him. Going to South America? You must know that you take conscience with you and that is evidently what you are trying to get away from. Already you have paid an awful price, for you have lost the respect of your fellow workers and your own self-respect. Be honest and get in tune with universal good.

D. T.—Cultivate patience. Rome was not built in a day. Yes, I think you will be blest with a little visitor.

Avoid Gossips.

G. R.—Would avoid all gossips. Mind your own affairs and trust her.

R. G.—Yes, you should take out life insurance. Would advise a ten or twenty-year endowment plan. I never advise on stocks.

F. J. By all means invest in an auto, if you really can afford it. It gives much pleasure and a new view of life. But do not mortgage your home to get one.

D. F. H.—Living in Washington is fairly reasonable. Yes, I think you would find it an excellent place for schools. The law school at Georgetown has a splendid reputation.

D. H.—Yes, thoughts are things. We know that a great deal of good can be accomplished through the thoughts we send out. We can have success, love and true happiness if we only think we can. You have been living in the wrong thought world. Look for goodness and you will find it everywhere. Forget all about yesterday and concentrate on today.

F. H. B.—The birth month table for September: Stone is the sapphire; flower, the water lily; zodiac sign, Libra, the balance.

Virgo Men Honest.

C. J.—Virgo men are honest, straightforward and enjoy a phlegmatic temperament. Easily swayed by sentimental motives. Lovers of nature and make fine agriculturists. Love deeply, but are subject to a rough matrimonial sea which can be overcome by self-control. Have weak hearts. Virgo women are meek, unselfish and evenly balanced. Are naturally religious, very affectionate, but not demonstrative. Love all nature. Marriage means many unheavals. Subject to heart and nervous troubles. Virgo people are most successful in February and November. Monday is their lucky day.

Princess Wahletka will be in Atlanta at Loew's Grand for three more days. Ten more questions from Atlantans will be selected today and the answers printed in Friday morning's Constitution, while on Saturday Wahletka will answer fifteen questions from persons in various parts of the state.

6 HELD IN KILLING ON DUTCH ISLAND

Savannah, Ga., September 9.—Six men have been arrested and are being held for investigation by the county police in connection with the killing of John Perry, 55, on Dutch Island late last night.

The following were brought in late last night: Fred Kramer, 34; Israel Wright, 24, and Rubin Crawford, 21.

Officers Sheppard and Wallace brought in three more this morning in connection with the case. They are Charles A. Bacon, 27; Leo Carr, 24, and L. D. Sikes, 18. All are being held pending further investigation into the case.

Perry is alleged to have been landing liquor for some men, with whom he quarreled.

Southern Cattlemen To Open Convention At Montgomery Today

Athens, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—The 13th annual meeting of the Southern Cattlemen's association will be held in Montgomery, Ala., Wednesday and Thursday, according to an announcement by the president, Dr. Milton P. Jarnagin, here today. A large attendance of cattle breeders, packers, extension workers and railroad representatives from all of the southern states is expected, it is stated.

Among the prominent officials who will address the conference are Governor William Brandon, of Alabama; Dr. H. A. Morgan, president of the University of Tennessee; E. A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau federation, and Dr. Andrew M Soule, president of the Georgia State College of Agriculture.

Teachers constitute half the 5,000 students enrolled in the University of Wisconsin summer school.

ATLANTA'S BEAUTY QUEEN GREETED BY LARGE CROWD

Miss Estelle Bradley, who represented this city as "Miss Atlanta," at the national beauty tournament held last week at Atlantic City, made her triumphant return to Atlanta Tuesday, arriving at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at Brookwood station, accompanied by her mother, who acted as her chaperon, and other members of her party.

The large crowd which greeted her clamored for a glimpse of the two large cups won by the reigning Atlanta beauty at the national tournament, where she was named queen of the southern division. The cups probably will be placed on exhibition here late this week.

La Follette To Poll Heavy Vote in South, Senator George Says

Macon, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—Senator Walter F. George expressed the opinion here today that Senator La Follette will poll a much larger vote in the south than is expected, and predicted that he will turn the scales in Indiana and possibly New York, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

Senator George will go to New York the latter part of this month to assist in the campaign of John W. Davis for the presidency. He may make a speaking tour in Colorado and Nevada. He was in Macon today for the meeting of the Mercer university board of trustees, of which he is a member.

ACTION TO INCREASE WATER RATE DELAYED

Action in the proposed increase in the amount of water to be sold by the city for the minimum charge of $1 was deferred until a later date by the finance committee of council Tuesday when a majority of the members failed to attend the meeting.

Macon May Form Farm Credit Bank To Aid Planters

Macon, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—J. D. Bell, manager of the Federal Intermediate Credit bank, of Columbia, S. C., told a special committee from the Macon chamber of commerce here today that the Carolina institution, which is operated by the governent for the benefit of farmers, would be glad to help the local organization establish a branch bank here.

Mr. Bell said the bank would be able to provide farmers with money at 6 1-2 per cent over a period of six to nine months for financing the cow, hog and hen program sponsored by the Georgia association.

A meeting of farmers and business men of this section has been called for next week, when it is expected definite action will be taken.

MRS. M. H. GRANT, FORMER ATLANTAN, DIES AT ROME

Rome, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—Mrs. Martha Hamilton Grant died at a local hospital here today after a short illness. She was taken to the hospital Saturday afternoon and underwent an operation Sunday.

Mrs. Grant was born in Rome in 1883 and when 19 years of age married Elmer P. Grant and moved to Atlanta. Two years later Mr. Grant was made manager of the Fairbanks works here, and they returned to Rome. Mrs. Grant was Miss Martha Hamilton, daughter of the late David Blount Hamilton and Anne Sparks Hamilton. She was one of Rome's most prominent women and was active in religious and social circles. She was an active member of the Woman's club and worker in the First Baptist church.

She was closely connected with many prominent Romans, being named for her aunt, the late Mrs. Martha Shorter, wife of the late Alfred Shorter, founder of Shorter college.

Mrs. Grant is survived by her husband and four sons, Hamilton, Wallace, E. P., Jr., and Hunter Grant; two brothers, David Hamilton, of Rome, and Linton Hamilton, of Cleveland, Ohio; three sisters, Mrs. J. B. Brooks, of Atlanta; Misses Anne and Florence Hamilton; her mother, Mrs. D. B. Hamilton, all of Wahsington, D. C., and four uncles, C. S. Sparks, Judge Harper Hamilton and Alfred and Alex Hamilton, of Rome.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon from the Hamilton residence with Dr. J. E. Hammons officiating. Interment will be at Myrtle Hill cemetery.

PEACH EXCHANGE MAY MOVE OFFICE HERE FROM MACON

Macon, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—Affirmation or denial of rumors that the Georgia Peach Growers' exchange will move its office from Macon to Atlanta is expected to come out of a meeting of the board of directors Thursday.

Reports of that nature have been current since the close of the peach season, but officers have refused to discuss the matter.

At the meeting Thursday, there will be discussion of the naming of a successor to J. G. Carlisle, who resigned as manager of the exchange to become general freight agent of the Missouri Pacific railroad.

TENNESSEE FOOTBALL STAR DIES IN CRASH

Sweetwater, Tenn., September 9.—Julius Loomis, 19, was almost instantly killed this afternoon when a Southern railway work train struck a motor truck of which he was the driver. Tom Kilpatrick, companion of the dead youth, leaped to safety just before the engine rammed the truck.

Loomis, student in Tennessee Military institute and a star on its football team, had spent the summer driving a truck for the Calloway Construction company and was en route to a nearby gravel pit to haul his last load, as his plans contemplated returning to school tomorrow. The crossing where the accident occurred was partially blind as cornfields on both sides of the road interfered with a clear view of the railroad tracks.

BARBECUE TO SWELL NEW SCHOOL FUND

West Point, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—A big barbecue and community day is to be staged at Lebanon church on Friday in the interest of the Gray Hill school, one of the large schools of Troup county, which has recently been completed, and for which funds are needed.

A number of prominent citizens will appear on the program and there will be other special features. The barbecue will be prepared by Ben Smith.

Americus Citizens Will Plan Paving At Meet Thursday

Americus, Ga., September 9.—Major J. Elmore Poole has called a mass meeting of the Americus citizens to assemble in the city hall here Thursday night at 8:00 o'clock to discuss Americus' paving problem. Pavements in many parts of the business section, where wood blocks were laid a number of years ago, have deteriorated to such an extent as to make their replacement or extensive repairs necessary.

Some citizens are advocating a general bond issue for their replacement, while several members of council are of the opinion that repairs will solve the problem. Mayor Poole states he will present a statement showing the city's financial condition at the mass meeting, and Charles Wheatley, city engineer, is expected to report upon the feasibility of repairing the streets.

SIMS FLAYS KEY BEFORE CIVIC CLUB

"The Georgia Railway and Power company and The Atlanta Constitution aren't running me for mayor, like Jitney Bus Jim Key says they are," Mayor Walter A. Sims declared to members of the Ansley Park civic league at a meeting in Habersham hall Tuesday night. "They're just agin' him like the majority of people are.

"The Power company is not for me; I've vetoed more of their papers in the last 18 months than Jim Key did; but they're for me just like Uncle Remus' rabbit was—they just had to climb that tree.

"It's the same with The Constitution; they ere'nt for me! they're just against him the same way that union labor is against him and the business men are against him and everyone who wants to be fair is against him."

Mayor's First Public Reply.

The mayor's statement was his first public reply to charges said to have been made by former Mayor Key, who is opposing him for reelection, in practically every political speech he has made during the last two weeks. The former mayor had charged that Sims is not the "real candidate" and that the power company and The Constitution were his "real opponents," it is said.

The meeting developed a warm personal exchange between Dr. L. N. Huff, in the audience, and Mayor Sims on the platform. The mayor accused Key of "making one speech in one ward and a different one in another" and accused him of trying to curry favor with enemies of the power company in the Fifth ward by attacking it bitterly and trying to curry favor with its friends in the Ninth ward, in his speech from the veranda of Dr. Huff's apartment, by claiming the support of Frank L. Butler, the company's general manager.

"That isn't true and you know it," Dr. Huff shouted from the audience. "It is true and I can prove it just the same as I can prove that Key's law firm represented every member of Floyd Woodward's gang who was ever brought to trial," the mayor shouted back.

Sims Declines to Answer.

After Sims had concluded his address Dr. Huff leaped to his feet and demanded the privilege of "asking him one question in front of the crowd."

"Your crowd won't answer my questions and I don't think you are entitled to ask me any here," the mayor replied and turned to shake hands with supporters who were coming to the platform.

The rest of the mayor's speech covered practically the same ground he has covered in other addresses during the campaign. He touched on two eighth ward issues, the Campbell Coal company development on the edge of North Boulevard park, with which he said he had nothing to do because the residents' plea for a change in zoning to prevent it never passed council or the planning commission and thus never came to him for action, and ridiculed a promise he said former Mayor Key had made to correct the Ansley park sewer system. The park sewer outlet into the city trunk sewer system is several feet above the end of the park system, sewage being raised by electric pump.

"This condition prevailed for four years while he was mayor before and he seemed unable to help you then," the mayor remarked.

Why He Named Bachman.

The mayor also revealed for the first time in a public statement the circumstances of Alderman J. R. Bachman's appointment to chairmanship of the finance committee, which terminated with a demand for his resignation when he became manager of Key's campaign for mayor.

"I didn't mean to appoint Bachman in the first place; my choice was Ed Inman, councilman from the eighth ward, but he had to go to Johns Hopkins hospital during the important weeks when the January finance sheet was being prepared, so, largely at his suggestion, I made Bachman chairman," the mayor recalled.

"When I found out he was not loyal to me I asked for his resignation and I have no apology to make for it," he declared.

DADE COUNTY VOTES $30,000 SCHOOL FUND

Rising Fawn, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—Dade county held a special bond election Saturday, voting $15,000 to erect a high school building at Trenton. The Trenton district has already voted $15,000 making a total of $30,000 for the school enterprise.

La Guardia Raps Way Wet Raids Made by Agents

New York, September 9.—"Armed with the revised statutes of the United States under one arm and 'Who's Who in Social and Political Circles' under the other, the prohibition agents go forward to make a raid," said Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, New York, former republican, who is seeking re-election on the La Follette-Wheeler ticket, in an address today at a luncheon of the All Parties' Progressive League, a woman's political organization.

"Recently one made a mistake," he continued, "and took 75 cases of liquor from the home of a family which had proper political and social connections, with the result that, instead of the usual hearing to determine the legal possession of the liquor, it was returned within 48 hours with the apologies of the government and the dismissal of the agent."

Divisional Prohibition Chief R. M Merrick, informed of Mr. La Guardia's remarks, said they were "absolutely ridiculous." He asserted that undoubtedly the congressman referred to the raid on the home of Hugo G. de Fritsch, following which the agent concerned, Robert Owens, was dismissed.

NineteenCoolidge Relatives Attend Caravan Meeting

Plymouth, Vt., September 9.—The Coolidge caravan whose route through three hundred cities and towns from this village to the Pacific coast, started its coast-to-coast trip today in a downpour of rain.

A scheduled outdoor meeting was transferred to the village church, across the street from the homestead of Colonel John Coolidge, where about fifty citizens gathered to hear the opening addresses of Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, and former Congressman A. W. Jefferis, of Nebraska, urging the election of the republican candidates in the coming national election.

The route of the caravan, which includes seven automobiles, was to carry it today through Claremont, Newport and Keene, N. H., to Greenfield, Mass.

Attending the rally here today were nineteen relatives of the president. Five of those present had voted for Abraham Lincoln. One of the latter, Charles Brown, 83 years of age, walked three miles in the rain, over muddy roads, to be present.

REGISTRARS STRIKE MRS. STEPHENSON FROM VOTERS' LIST

Savannah, Ga., September 9.—The board of registrars today notified Mrs. Lena Stephenson that her name had been stricken from the list of registered voters, because she was the wife of an alien and not an American citizen. She was an official delegate from the First district in Georgia to the democratic convention in New York. Because of the action of the registrars Mrs. Stephenson will be unable to vote in tomorrow's primary and referendum election here.

COOLIDGE COBBLER FRIEND NOMINATED IN MASSACHUSETTS

Northampton, Mass., September 9. James Lucey, cobbler-philosopher friend of President Coolidge, today, the the age of 68, won his first political battle. Competing in the primaries in the first Hampshire county district for nomination as reupublican candidate for state representative, Mr. Lucey decisively defeated John F. Mariz, his opponent. The vote was: Lucey, 912; Mariz, 402.

BRITISH SCHOONER WITH BIG ALCOHOL CARGO IS LIBELED

New Orleans, La., September 9.—The government today began in the federal district court proceedings to seize the British schooner J. V. Young, which, with a cargo of 10,000 gallons of alcohol, was picked up by a coast guard cutter within the three-mile limit off the Louisiana coast recently.

The libel alleges that the master of the vessel had sought to conceal the contraband and introduce it into the commerce of the United States. This fact, it is explained, was set forth by the clearance papers which were from Havana, Cuba, to a Spanish Honduran port, whereas the master had no intention of going to that point. The captain and his crew of five were charged before a United States commissioner several days ago with conspiracy.

TAX APPEAL BOARD PUTS LIMITATION ON ITS AUTHORITY

Washington, September 9.—The United States board of tax appeals has decided it has no jurisdiction in cases "involving only the refund to the tax payer of tax paid prior to passage of the revenue act of 1924."

By the ruling, which was handed down in dismissing the appeal of the Averett Knitting Mills, the board is regarded as eliminating from further consideration one entire class of cases that it had been expected heretofore would be submitted to it for adjudication.

Internal revenue officials recalled thousands of cases, similar in most details to the Everett Knitting Mills' appeal, and all of these must now go down as closed unless the tax payers resort to civil courts.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA PREPARES FOR HEAVY FALL BUSINESS

The Central of Georgia Railway is making preparations to handle a heavy traffic this fall, and is relying upon the public to do its part so that prompt and efficient transportation may prevent any delay or interruption to business.

All indications point to increased volume of business during the remaining months of 1924. Prospects are brighter than they have been in years. The cotton crop in Georgia promises to be larger than in any year since 1920; in Alabama more than in any year since 1915, and is being rapidly marketed. Prices profitable to the producer are justified by conditions of supply and demand. Corn shows an increase in price over last year, as does live stock. Watermelons were most satisfactory in volume. Tobacco has brought millions of dollars to the growers. The yield and price of peanuts have been most encouraging. Better marketing facilities for poultry products have stimulated production and increased the return.

Agriculture is the basic industry of Georgia and Alabama. An increase in the purchasing power of the farmer creates an increase in transportation. That means the purchase of more materials and supplies and the employment of more men. This in turn stimulates retail trade. Reports are that merchants are buying more freely and increasing their stocks. In this section every condition seems to justify the belief that "good times are here again."

The Central of Georgia has steadily added new equipment and has just placed an order for additional locomotives. We have followed a consistent program of putting our locomotives and cars in good repair, improving and enlarging our facilities, and devoting our attention to efficient car movement. As a result we find ourselves ready to meet the growing demands of our patrons. Ninety-two per cent of our locomotives and ninety-four per cent of our cars are in good order. We are increasing our shop forces to improve further this excellent condition.

There are certain simple and practicable means whereby the people may have a hand in assuring efficient transportation. They shoulld load cars to capacity. They should load and unload cars with the utmost promptness. They should refrain from ordering more cars than are sufficient for their daily requirments.

Consumers of coal should, without further delay, provide for their winter requirements. Failure to do so may cause delay in delivery when the supply is most needed. Even this far in advance of the peak movement of fuel, there are no idle coal cars on the Central of Georgia Railway.

By such means shippers and receivers of freight may co-operate with the steps taken by the railways to guard against a car shortage with its attendant disturbance to business.

The Central of Georgia appreciates the co-operation it has received and is daily receiving from its patrons. It assures them of its willingness and its ability to give them satisfactory service, and of its desire to merit their good will through such service.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

L. A. DOWNS,
President, Central of Georgia Railway Company.

Black Eye Fails To Keep Prince From Polo Sport

Syosset, N. Y., September 9.—Though the Prince of Wales was the victim of a double stroke of ill luck today, he did not allow adverse circumstances to spoil one of the 15 days of his vacation on Long Island.

The prince's right eye, bruised in yesterday's polo game, remained swollen and discolored today. Meanwhile a heavy rain caused a second postponement of the international polo matches which he especially desired to witness. But the future British sovereign had a luncheon party of his own and dined and danced tonight at the home of Harrison Williams in Glen Cove.

After a visit by Dr. Richard Leroy of Oyster May, who expressed satisfaction with the improvement of the eye, the prince drove over at noon to the J. S. Phipps polo field in Westbury and got in an hour of practice with Major E. D. Metcalfe, his equerry, despite a light but steady rain.

He then returned to be host to 19 guests at his temporary home at luncheon. Among them were Colonel George Harvey, former ambassador to Great Britain and now editor of the Washington Post.

The prince emerged from his house this afternoon to plant a red oak tree on the lawn near the red brick home of James A. Burden, which he is occupying, F. E. Blowers, a landscape gardener, of East Norwich, Conn., who had assisted at similar ceremonies on the occasions of other notable visits, prepared the tree and watched the prince, clad in a raincoat, cover its roots with earth.

HIGH WINDS POSTPONE FLIGHT OF DIRIGIBLE

Friedrichshafen, September 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—The flight which had been planned today for the dirigible ZR-3, constructed here for the United States navy, was postponed because of high winds. It had been the intention of the contractors to try out the motors for maximum speed and altitude and put the airship throguh various other tests.

Among the disappointed ones who had intended making a trip today on the ZR-3 was Countess Hella von Brandenstein-Zeppelin, daughter of the late Count Zeppelin, who 15 years ago was the first girl taken aloft in a dirigible. The countess is living with her husband in Castle Biberach, near here.

$25,000 IS CABLED TO STORM SUFFERERS

Washington, September 9.—The American Red Cross today cabled $25,000 to Captain Philip Williams, governor of the Virgin Islands, which recently were stricken by a hurricane, for use in relief work. Captain Williams reported that between 300 and 400 families have lost their homes.

More than 3,500 contributed garments from Red Cross chapters throughout the country for victims of the disaster are now en route to the islands, an announcement from the organization s headquarters here said. Today's contribution by the Red Cross brings its relief fund for the islands up to $30,000.

"The Ten Commandments."

(At the Atlanta Theater.)

"The Ten Commandments," Cecil B. De Mille's majestic cinema production, is still drawing capacity audiences at the Atlanta theater, where it will will be shown twice daily throughout the week, with positively the last performance announced for Saturday night. As the picture will not be shown again in any other theater in this city during the present season the few remaining performances offer the only opportunity to see this mighty dramatic spectacle, locally, for some time to come. Aside from the magnitude of the picture itself, the large orchestra that renders the incidental score, specially composed by Mr. H. B. Reisenfeld, has been the subject of unstinted praise from those who have attended the performances.

"The Thief of Bagdad."

(Coming to the Atlanta.)

When "The Thief of Bagdad" comes to the Atlanta theater next Monday night and twice daily thereafter at 2:30 and 8:30, Douglas Fairbanks will be seen in the triple role of producer-actor-athlete. This time he travels far afield for his athletic stunts; he flies through the air on the magic carpet, he goes through a cavern of fire, fights his way up a flight of a thousand stairs, rides through air on a flying horse, battles with sea monsters and kills a dragon. Mail orders are now being received. Box office sale opens Thursday morning.

"The Alarm Clock."

(At the Lyric.)

Even if the Lyric theater's modern heating plant had failed to respond to demands of cooler weather, Avery Hopwood's' society farce comedy, "The Alarm Clock," might have depended upon to keep Lyric patrons warm for this week. It is a "warm number" among plays, although it doesn't offer a bedroom scene or display of feminine lingerie. It was written by the author of "Getting Gertie's Garter," of "The Gold Diggers" and like laugh hits.

Keith's Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Forsyth audiences are showing enthusiastically their approval of the minstrel novelty entitled "Minstrel Memories," being offered as the headlining feature the first three days of this week of an exceptionally fine vaudeville program at Keith's Forsyth theater.

Four other good acts constitute the bill. They are Keller and Mack and Anna Earl in "A Letter of Introduction;" a fast bit by Larry Shean and Al Shean, who call themselves "The Boola-Boola Boys;" Roattino and Barrett in their laugh skit, "Maybe Yes, Maybe No," and the versatile Yvonne Verlaine and company in "Versatile Oddities." A Pathe Newsreel and an installment of Aesop's Fables complete the bill.

Princess Wahletka.

At Loew's Grand.)

Princess Wahletka is proving a real sensation at Loew's Grand theater this week where she mystifies all with her unusual psychic powers, and her ability to answer questions of her audience. Princess Wahletka furnishes one of the greatest vaudeville acts seen in Atlant tihs year, and four other good acts.

"America."

(At the Howard.)

This picture is merely an attempt to suggest in a small way the great sacrifice made by our forefathers that America might become a free and independent nation. No efforts have been spared to have the historical incidents as correct as possible. The villages of Lexington and Concord were designed from the Doolittle drawings and descriptions given by writers of the day. "America" is truly D. W. Griffith's best production.

"The Marriage Cheat."

(At the Metropolitan.)

Leatrice Joy, Adolphe Menjou and several other members of the cast of "The Marriage Cheat," Thomas H. Ince's most recent dramatic feature, enjoyed several days at sea aboard a luxurious private yacht during the filming of the picture. "The Marriage Cheat" now showing at the Metropolitan theater.

"The Signal Tower."

(At the Rialto.)

The second week of Greater Movie season at the Rialto theater is assured of success by the tremendous hit scored by the new melodramatic masterpiece, "The Signal Tower," which is the Rialto's feature attraction this week. "The Leather Pushers" vie for popular favor in a new release called "Swing Bad the Sailor," and it has proved extremely entertaining to Rialto audiences.

At the Paramount.

(For Colored.)

Audree Lafayette—the most beautiful woman in all France—stars at the Paramount theater today and tomorrow in "Why Get Married?" a problem which is of vital interest to all who have received the dart from cupid's bow. As a special added attraction, Mack Sennett's "Down on the Farm" will also be shown.

G. O. P. IS ELATED AT MAINE RESULT

ter to say that this means a national republican victory in November. There may be one, and there may not. But nothing in the Maine election has any especial bearing on it.

Democrats have won four presidential elections since the civil war, and not once did Maine register a democratic majority. The nearest to it was a plurality of 2,500 in 1912 when the republican vote split. The combined republican and progressive vote was 75,000, while the democrats polled only 51,000. When Cleveland was elected the first time, Maine went republican by 20,000. In 1892, the second time Cleveland was elected, the republicans carried the state by 15,000. In 1916 the republicans held a majority of 5,000. So Maine is republican, whether the nation is or not.

Political situations have a baffling way of changing overnight, and no statement is good except for the current moment. But right now the question is whether La Follette can force the contest into congress. If not, as the situations stands now, Coolidge would win.

The democratic campaign has been discouraging. Chairman Shaver has failed to put the drive into it. His organization is despondent. Davs—as Cox did in 1920—is carrying the burden on his own shoulders. And a national campaign is a good deal of a job for one man—even though he be an able one.

But the democrats may find a way out.

Too Early, Says Shaver.

Davis has 139 sure southern votes in the electoral college. Like the republicans, democrats are beginning to shout that the way to prevent a tangle in congress is to concentrate on Davis. The argument can be used by both sides. But with such complications to consider, counting up of electoral votes now is obviously a waste of time.

As Chairman Shaver said Tuesday:

"Wise politicians do not carry November elections in September."

The best time to count votes is the evening and morning after election day, as those, including Charles E. Hughes, who were fooled on election night in 1916 can testify.

LLOYD GEORGE AGAIN TURNS TO GOLF GAME

Criccieth, Wales, September 9.—David Lloyd George has hauled out the old golf bag that accompanied him, much to the disgust of his continental conferees, to all the diplomatic parleys between 1918 and 1922 and has had his first game of golf in a year. The last time the former premier tried his luck on the links was in Canada when he was matched against the Canadian war-time army commander, General Currie.

Partnered by the parish rector, Lloyd George defeated Brigadier General Travers and a local star over a wet course, 8 and 6. The little Welshman's drives and approaches were made with his old-time skill, and when he did slip into trouble, his niblick got him out of it.

Some 35 Badger towns and cities sent classes of school pupils last year to visit the State Historical museum, Madison.

Pope Asserts Right To Hand in Politics As Church Involved

Rome, September 9.—Pope Pius has replied to critics of the Vatican, who believe the holy father should not participate in politics, with a statement that asserts the papal right to take a hand in political matters whenever the church is involved.

"It is heard here and there that the pope should not mix into politics," the holy father told members of the Catholic University federation following its convention at Palermo. "but when politics gets close to the altar, then religion, the church and the pope have the right and duty to give counsel and direction which the Catholic people have the right to ask and the duty to follow."

Pope Pius deplored the political division of Italian Catholics. The collaboration of Catholics and socialists in government is not feasible in Italy, where political conditions differ from those in other countries, he said.

The holy father urged serious study and preparation for all who would enter politics.

VIRGINIA GOVERNOR BREAKS ARM ON BOAT

Richmond, Va., September 9.—Governor E. Lee Trinkle was rushed to a hospital here this morning suffering from a broken left arm, sustained last night when he was thrown from a chair aboard the Virginia fish and game department boat Commodore Maury while en route to the mouth of the Saint Mary's river for a conference with Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, over the crab and oyster industries of the two states.

The accident, it is stated by members of Mr. Trinkle's party, was due to a heavy sea striking the Commodore Maury causing the executive to lurch forward in his chair and fall heavily on his arm to the deck.

To the Voters of Fulton County

The undersigned lawyers are members of the Atlanta Bar and practicing in the various courts of Fulton County. We are not a campaign committee for Judge G. H. Howard, but we do believe in fair play. WE ARE NOT IN SYMPATHY WITH THE ATTACK THAT HAS BEEN MADE UPON JUDGE HOWARD BY A NUMBER OF LAWYERS WHO BELONG TO THE ATLANTA BAR ASSOCIATION, BUT WHO DO NOT BY ANY MEANS REPRESENT THE ENTIRE ASSOCIATION, OF WHICH THE MAJORITY OF THE UNDERSIGNED ARE MEMBERS. We know and believe in Judge Howard. He possesses all of the necessary qualifications for judgeship. His character is unimpeachable. His ability as a jurist is unquestioned and unsurpased in the State of Georgia. His service upon the bench of Fulton County does not warrant the attack which has been made upon him. On the contrary, in our opinion, his record is one which entitles him to the endorsement of the voters of Fulton County.

We commend the dignified conduct of Judge Howard in refusing to allow himself to be drawn into newspaper controversy which, in our opinion, is inconsistent with the dignity of the high office of Judgeship.

This article is being published without the knowledge of Judge Howard or his campaign managers.

DAWES CONCENTRATES UPON THE NORTHWEST

Chicago, September 9.—Charles G. Dawes, republican vice presidential nominee, will concentrate his speaking campaign for the next three weeks in the northwest, under a decision reached today at a conference between Mr. Dawes and party campaign managers here.

The Milwaukee address to be delivered Thursday night by Mr. Dawes will be followed by a speech a week later at Sioux Falls, S. D., and by speeches the following week in St. Paul, Minneapolis and at some city in southern Minnesota. Definite dates were not determined.

The vice presidential nominee's itinerary was worked out at a 4-hour conference at national committee headquarters here, attended by Mr. Dawes, William M. Butler, chairman of the committee, and Representative Sanders, of Indiana, head of the committee's speakers' bureau.

Mr. Dawes' desire to make only one address was met, so far as the immediate future is concerned.

Mr. Dawes will discuss the La Follette independent movement in his address at Milwaukee, but in other speeches in the northwest he probably will devote considerable attention to the agricultural problem.

To the Voters of DeKalb County

At a public meeting of citizens held at Stone Mountain, Friday night, September 5th, the candidates were asked to express themselves regarding the proposed salary system of paying county officers. In response to this request I stated that I was in favor of same.

At this meeting the crowd was polled and all those favoring the salary system were asked to stand. Mr. B. F. Burgess, my opponent, kept his seat.

I am in favor of the salary system of paying county officers and expect to vote on September 10th to ratify the proposed law placing the officers of DeKalb County on a salary basis.

I pledge my best efforts, if elected, to make the salary system a success.

Those favoring a salary system, I feel sure, will agree that the office of Clerk of the Superior Court being the ofifce which now collects the most fees, should be placed in the hands of one friendly to the salary system, if such system is to be adopted in this county.

If elected, I pledge my best efforts to give the citizens of DeKalb County the best Clerk's office in Georgia.

Sincerely yours,

M. C. FARRAR,

Candidate for Clerk Superior Court.

Formal Welcome Given Fliers by President

Washington September 9.—A statement formally welcoming and congratulating the world fliers was issued by President Coolidge today after his return to the white house from Bolling field, where he greeted them personally upon their arrival from New York.

"It is with a renewed faith in America," the president said, "that I welcome you. A new record of achievement has been made in the past six months by you in the domain of aviation. It has been made by men who wear the American uniform. It has been your skill, your perseverance, your courage that has brought this great honor to our country. In what is probably the greatest opportunity for future scientific development of transportation your enterprise has made America first. I trust the appreciation of your countrymen will be sufficient so that in this field America always will be kept first."

field here which picked him up when his plane was forced down outside of Baltimore, the first misnap the intrepid Dane has encountered. His plane, the New Orleans, was left in charge of Lieutenant Harding, his flying mate, and will be brought here Wednesday.

The Chicago and the Boston were towed up before the presidential party, and Smith and Wade, with their aides, Lieutenant Arnold and Lieutenant Ogden, alighted from their planes. General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service, who came down with the fliers from New York, took charge of the fliers. They lined up beside their planes, facing the president, Secretary of War Weeks and the other officials across a short space. After waiting a few moments, they were joined by Lieutenant Nelson, whose emergency plane alighted late, and General Patrick escorted them over and introduced them to the president and Secretary Weeks, who congratulated them.

Fliers Light Cigarettes.

As soon as they had alighted from their planes, both Smith and Wade lit cigarettes, and Smith carried his in his hand, informally, as he shook hands with the president, smiling and appearing a bit overcome by the demonstration.

But there was no time for much official exchange of greetings. The photographers, rushing in like madmen, took charge of the situation and loudly directed the president and Weeks and the fliers in a series of poses. Helpless almost, the head of the government and the fliers who have made history yielded to the noisy directions, while the crowd which impatiently pushed forward was held by ropes.

"That's it," one cameraman called out, as the pose was adjusted to his desires.

"Talk to him, Lieutenant Smith," another called out to the leader of the flight, who stood next to Coolidge, who was smiling broadly.

Officers from the Italian and Japanese embassies stretched their hands across the ropes and congratulated the fliers, who responded heartily.

Crowd Has Its Day.

Finally, the picture-making was over, and the crowd had its day. The fliers were surrounded, and hand after hand was stretched out to them. Women were predominant in the welcomers. They had waited four hours for this event, and they made the most of it, despite the mud which sloshed up over their big-heeled shoes.

None of the fliers talked very much, but smiled and thanked those who crowded about them.

"I'm glad to be back in this old country again," Smith said to some of the air service officers who gathered about him. "It's been a great experience, but I'm glad we're home again."

Received by Weeks.

The fliers had a luncheon on the field, and then went to their hotel. Later they went to the war department, where they were officially received by Secretary of War Weeks. They were the guests at night at a dinner given by General Patrick, where plans for the rest of the flight were discussed.

When an official announcer at the field informed the crowd over a loud speaker shortly before 3 o'clock that the fliers were approaching, there was general relief. It was raining and disagreeable. The field was muddy. Most of the spectators had been waiting for hours. Far to the right, the planes could be seen against the skyline, 11 of them, including escort planes from New York and five from Bolling field. All eyes turned that way, following the fliers as they swooped down on to the field. A booming salute from 21 guns greeted their arrival.

The aviators were expected about noon. Reports came in of the forced landing at Aberdeen, Md. Then came other reports of fog, bad weather and delay. The crowd was restless, but it waited patiently. The escort planes from Bolling field, which has gone out to meet the fliers, returned about 1:30. It was a false alarm. Circling about the field, without landing, they disappeared again into the distance.

President Relieved.

Not least relieved when the fliers finally came into sight were President and Mrs. Coolidge. They arrived at the field in a drizzling rain about 11:30. Members of the cabinet arrived a few minutes later. The president got out of his car and sauntered about, standing with his head bared in the rain when the band struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner" shortly after his arrival. He wore his rubbers and stepped gingerly. The photographers snapped a few pictures of him and Secretary Weeks.

The president then went down the field inspecting the planes. He climbed to the cockpit of the beautiful little machine which belongs to Brigadier General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the army air service, as one of the attendants explained the mechanism.

Reports of Delay.

The sun came out for a while about noon, and it appeared that the fliers might have a fine day. Then reports of delay began to arrive. The president took a seat in his car and waited. He waited a while longer. Then the presidential party was taken over to the officers headquarters and given lunch, which consisted of Boston baked beans, chicken salad, ham and tongue sandwiches, and pie.

While the president was at lunch, a heavy bank of clouds darkened the field, and it appeared that there might be heavy weather for the aviators. Soon it began to rain again, in earnest. The president wrapped a new, shiny black raincoat about him, when reports of progress came in, and stood for a long time in the rain, waiting with his eyes toward the east, smoking a cigar. A secret service man stood beside him. Mrs. Coolidge sat in the car.

Later, the president stepped back in the automobile where he waited until a few minutes before the fliers came into sight. It was a long ordeal for the chief executive. Some of those present advised a return to the white house, when it appeared the wait would be long, but he stayed.

FLIERS EXPECT TO RESUME TRIP THURSDAY MORNING.

Washington, September 9.—The American round-the-world fliers, who arrived here Tuesday, expect to resume their flight westward Thursday morning, going from here to Dayton, Ohio, where their planes will be thoroughly inspected before the trip is continued. They expect to complete their globe flight in ten days more, Lieutenant Lowell Smith, flight commander, said Tuesday night.

The fliers had expected to leave here Wednesday morning, but the mishap to the plane of Lieutenant Eric Nelson will cause delay of one day.

The plane, which was left in charge of Lieutenant Harding, Nelson's flying mate, at Halethorpe, Md., about ten miles east of Baltimore, will be brought here Wednesday. It was forced down by gear trouble, which Nelson said Tuesday night was due, he thought, to bad gasoline. A fresh supply of gasoline and a new motor were sent from here Tuesday night to the plane, and Nelson will go to Halethorpe early Wednesday morning to bring it back here.

The fliers expect to make the hop to Dayton in one day. If the inspection there proves that new engines are necessary, they will be installed, Smith said. The present plan is to leave Dayton on Friday for Chicago, where it is planned to stay overnight.

The course will then be to Omaha, by way of St. Joseph, Mo., with a landing at Fort Crook, outside of St. Joseph, before entering Omaha. The route will then lead to North Platte, Neb., thence to Cheyenne, Salt Lake City and Sacramento, and northward to Seattle.

FAILURE TO REACH WAGE AGREEMENT SHUTS COAL MINES

Indianapolis, Ind., September 9.—The Coal River Collieries company which operates coal mines in West Virginia and Kentucky and is owned by members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers although the brotherhood has no direct interest in the company, has refused to sign a wage agreement with the United Mine Workers of America, because it cannot break even by operating under union demands, according to Warren S. Stone, head of the engineers and chairman of the board of the coal company.

Mr. Stone's statement was contained in correspondence over the situation between John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, and himself, made public by Mr. Lewis here tonight. Until last April 1, the company owned by members of the engineers' brotherhood operated its West Virginia mines on a union basis but refused to concur in the Jacksonville, Fla., agreement reached by members of the central competitive field to continue then existing wages for three years. Since last April the mines have been closed.

In a letter to Mr. Stone on August 22, Mr. Lewis states that the employes of the Coal River company have been engaged in a strike since April 1 and declares that the company has assumed the same attitude as other operators in the field attempting to force the union men to take a wage reduction.

SHAVER FIGURES DAVIS AS WINNER

certain votes in the electoral college.

"But there are other states that Davis will carry, although they are not listed in the Davis column of southern states. They represent a total of 65 votes in the electoral college, giving Davis a total of 204 sure votes, without counting the doubtful and normally republican states."

"The minimum claim of friends of Senator La Follette gives him 35 electoral college votes. Adding these to the Davis vote of 204, makes a total of 239 votes that Collidge cannot get. If this number is subtracted from the total vote of 531 in the electoral college, it leaves 292, out of which Coolidge must get 266, which gives him a safety margin of only 26.

"The socalled solid republican states, which can be listed as reasonably sure for Coolidge, have a representation of 138 in the electoral college. Coolidge, therefore, needs 128 more to get the necessary 266. Subtracting his reasonably sure 138 from 292, the votes not certain for either Davis or La Follette, leaves 154, from which his additional 128 will have to come.

"In other words, Davis will have to get only 62 votes out of the doubtful states (the group having 154 votes), whereas Coolidge will have to get 128."

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY SEEN IN MAINE RESULT.

Washington, September 9.—The Maine election was described in a statement issued tonight by Clem L. Shaver, chairman of the democratic national committee, as being a "victory" from the democratic standpoint.

"The democratic nominee for governor," he said, "was defeated by 30,000 votes less than in 1920, the last presidential year, and this in the face of the fact that the vote in Maine this year was approximately 40,000 larger than in that year. In other words, the gains have been tremendous and the loss to the republicans 50 per cent, in the matter of plurality. The republican nominee for governor won by 65,000 in 1920. This year he won by about half that. A change in the two parties' votes of anything like similar percentages in the country would mean a clean, democratic sweep."

The "whole story" in the Maine election "is that a republican state has gone republican by a greatly reduced majority," said Mr. Shaver, adding that "any attempt to prove anything else by the election figures is not justified by facts, as the history of the Maine elections clearly shows."

"Maine has not gone democratic in a state election in a presidential year in more than 40 years," he asserted. "Even in 1912, when the republican party was divided between the adherents of Taft and Roosevelt, as it is this year divided between the adherents of Coolidge and La Follette, the republicans carried Maine in the state election in September."

IMMEDIATE ACTION ON FIELD HERE IS URGED

sage, it is generally supposed that the government plans to established a southern route in the near future, especially in view of the success attained by the New York-San Francisco service, and that information on Atlanta's facilities is sought with the view of making this city one of the principal points on the route.

Means Much to City.

Establishment of an airdome here to be followed by the probable southern air mail route will mean infinitely more than is generally thought, it is pointed out. Whether or not the mail service is established a landing field in Atlanta means that with this city as headquarters for the fourth corps area, a number of planes will be kept in the hangars here and that in emergency cases any point in Georgia can be reached in a two-hour trip from this city.

If the landing field is built and its construction followed by placing this city on the mail route, in addition to the greatly improved mail service, vast amounts of interest will be saved by banks and clearing houses sending large sums of money to New York, it is said.

Although the matter of a municipal landing field has been considered here for some time no action has been taken as investigations by a committee of council revealed no suitable landing place on city-owned property. The committee inspected the present site of the city stockade, which was considered for an airdome, but it was found that the property was not adaptable for a landing field because of its topography. It also established during the investigation that there is no site within the city limits suited for the field, although several sites within a short distance of Atlanta have been proposed since.

Final Decision Expected.

With the plainly apparent need for immediate action it is expected that committees will reach a definite agreement within a short time. In many cities civic organizations, foreseeing the importance of similar projects in their cities, have come to the aid of officials to secure sites for fields and there is a possibility that the same situation may develop here.

At present Georgia is the only state east of the Mississippi river that has no suitable airdome. There are numerous landing fileds in the state but because of lack of adequate facilities none of the air routes now followed by government and commercial planes pass through Georgia. At present there are landing fields at Columbus, Savannah, Macon and Athens, and a number of other cities boast fields upon which planes can land, but none of them are suitable for establishment of a large base, it is said.

County Board Active.

Upon receipt of the communication from the war department, Colonel Danforth immediately notified Edwin F. Johnson, chairman of the county board, and the situation was presented in detail at Tuesday's board meeting. Colonel Danforth showed airway maps and explained minutely the aviation situation in Georgia.

He demonstrated the necessity of providing a landing field here by stating that Atlanta is practically the geographical center of the fourth corps area and that a necessary airplane courier service could be established between this city and important cities of all eight states comprising the area.

At present a large number of army, navy and marine planes, in addition to many commercial and private aircraft, traverse the seaboard airways, but lack of landing facilities prevents them from stopping in Atlanta. In order to attract traffic, of course, a landing field must be built.

"It is the same proposition that has been faced by motorists for many years," Colonel Danforth stated. "If there are no roads leading to a city, no automobile driver proposes to travel there. The same is true regarding airplanes, because if there is no landing field it is a certainty that no plane can land. Consequently, if there are not proper facilities the government will not consider routing the mail service that will probably be established soon through here."

City to Own Field.

The proposed plan calls for a municipality-owned field to be leased to the government at a nominal cost. The city, however, probably will reserve the right to permit use of the field by commercial aviators, who will be forced to operate under rules established by army officers who will be in charge of the field. All buildings will be erected and operated by the government.

Restrictions will be placed on "gypsy" fliers, if the plan in operation on other government fields is followed, Colonel Danforth stated, and all commercial flying will be subject to strict supervision to prevent incompetent pilots with unsafe equipment from operating.

In addition to its commercial value to the city, the field, whether or not the air mail route is established, will offer many other attractions. Students at Georgia Tech now taking courses in aeronautical engineering, instead of being forced to travel to some other state for all practical experience, will have what will be practically the same as a laboratory right in Atlanta.

Reserves Would Train Here.

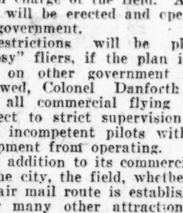

The many reserve officers residing in this section, whose little flying now is confined to their trips to aviation fields in other states, will be given frequent opportunities to fly government-owned craft from the Atlanta base. The field also will provide a headquarters from which any section of the state may be reached in a short time in emergency cases of any kind.

With a flying field here Atlanta would be included in itineraries of many flights. For instance, traffic routed from Langley field at Hampton, Va., the largest aviation field in the United States, now goes by way of Fayetteville, N. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Savannah and Jacksonville, whereas with an airdrome here, practically all planes would stop in this city.

Another airway from Langley Field passes through Washington, Dayton, Ohio; Mount Clemons, Mich.; Louisville, and back to Hampton. It is probable that this flight also will be routed through Atlanta in event a field is built here.

If a southern air mail route is established, and aviation officials appear confident that it will be, it probably will pass through New Orleans Montgomery, Birmingham, Atlanta, Columbia, Fayetteville, Washington, Baltimore, and to New York.

TECH R. O. T. C. MEMBERS JOIN TEST DAY PARADE

Between four and five hundred members of Georgia Tech's R. O. T. C., augmented by scores of students in all departments of the school, will fall in line Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at the corner of Washington and Fair streets, to participate in the mammoth Defense Test Day parade. This announcement was made Tuesday by Commandant Pearce, who urges all members of the Tech unit to be on hand.

Tech's forces will present one of the most colorful aggregations in the procession, and already has gained a high reputation among organizations of its kind, and is recognized as one of the best student military organizations in the nation.

President M. L. Brittain declared Tuesday night that he not only officially sanctioned Tech's part in the Defense Day demonstration, but officially and heartily encouraged it. Students from Georgia Tech were among the first from any American school to arrive on foreign shores during the world war, and a number of them were among the first to pay the supreme sacrifice.

form. The list of places to be occupied by these young ladies will be as follows: Healey building, Fourth National bank building, Candler building, Hurt building, Atlanta National bank building, United States post office building, Muse Clothing company building, Arcade and the city hall. Blanks for enrolment can be found at the following soda founts for future enrolment: Citizens and Southern bank, Peters building, Rozier Brothers, Herber's Smoke house, Tom Pitts', Marshall & Reynolds, Tumlin's, Hurt building and Stuart P. Murray's.

Miss Emma Habenicht, president of the First District Unit Public Health Nurses' association, has advised the committee that this organization will enter a very impressive float. The Business and Professional Women's club and the woman's division of the chamber of commerce also will enter floats. The West End Woman's club will have a float also.

Soldiers to Aid Police.

Colonel R. H. Williams and a corps of uniformed soldiers will cooperate with the chief of police in policing the park during the exercises, in taking care of the crowd and making them as comfortable as possible.

Proper arrangements are being made to take care of the war mothers. William Van Houten, in charge of securing trucks for the floats, says that he is getting some trucks, but that he is yet short of a sufficient number to take care of all organizations who wish to enter the parade, and who cannot do so unless trucks are donated by some of the large corporations and business firms. Anyone who has a truck to donate should communicate at once with WAlnut 0845.

Approximately 20,000 Defense day stickers and posters have been put on automobiles and in other prominent places. The Boy Scouts put up about 9,000 of these in one day. All those who attend the Lyric and Loew's Grand theaters each night until Friday will hear two-minute talks on Defense Test day. The talks will be made by men who are thoroughly conversant with the object of this test.

Colonel R. H. Williams stated to the committee that he had official authority from Washington for a fleet of airplanes to be at his disposal to advertise National Defense Test day but this, Colonel Williams said, was impossible, because no landing field is available.

The colored population of the city will take a very active part in the celebration, and will march at least 1,500 strong in the parade, members of the committee state.

Vote for ARTHUR L. MATTHEWS for Tax Collector DeKalb County

"What came in the mail today?"

THE first question the business man asks his secretary—

The first question the farmer asks his wife—

"What came in the mail today?"

Is there any other question, so often asked, by so many people?

The man with whom you find it hard to arrange a meeting will read what you print.

It takes less time to sell the man who has heard of you and has read about your goods.

Good printing, the kind that people read, supports your salesmen, wins them a friendly welcome, and shortens the time needed to get the customer's "name on the dotted line."

Your printer should be one of your valued employees.

His co-operation in producing good printing, carefully planned, will do perhaps more than anything else to reduce your selling costs and make people ready to accept your goods.

Your printer will tell you that the first step to better printing is better paper.

DAVIS-BRYAN CLUB ACTIVE IN FULTON

Drawing attention to arrangements which have been made to place boxes for enrollment of members in the Georgia Davis-Bryan club at each voting precinct in Fulton county today, Walter McElreath, president of the statewide democratic campaign organization, issued a statement Tuesday in which he called on every man and woman in the state "who calls himself or herself a democrat" to join the club.

Dues in the organization, which has been formed for the purpose of drawing out the heaviest possible vote for the democratic ticket in the national presidential election next November, are $1, all of which goes to the national committee for use in the campaign, he said.

Charles D. McKinney, of Decatur, and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, of Atlanta, have been selected as vice chairmen of the Davis-Bryan club in the fifth Georgia congressional district and they are working in close cooperation with Mr McElreath and the statewide organization.

In a statement issued Tuesday, Mr. McKinney and Mrs. Richardson say:

"As a first step towards organization for effective work in behalf of the national democratic ticket, not only in Georgia, but in the doubtful states of the northeast and west, we are called upon by the national democratic committee to come to the financial help of the committee at once and send to the treasurer of the national committee every dollar possible as quickly as possible, to meet the urgent demands being made upon the committee for effective work in the various states where the democrats are waging a fight for the success of Davis and Bryan.

"So, we urgently request every loyal democratic man and woman in the fifth congressional district to act promptly and liberally upon this suggestion from the national democratic committee and forward at once your application for membership in the Georgia Davis-Bryan club, with $1.00 as a membership fee. Make your check payable to Eugene R. Black, treasurer of Georgia Davis-Bryan club and send at once to Chas. D. McKinney, 218 South Candler street, Decatur, Ga.

"We will be very grateful to the democrats of the district for any suggestion for the effective organization of Davis-Bryan clubs in various communities of the district.

"As you will see from the Atlanta newspapers, the democrats of Fulton county will be given an opportunity at the polls on Wednesday, September 10, to join the Davis-Bryan club and to make contribution of "A Dollar for Democracy."

"We regret that we are not prepared to make similar organizations in the various voting precincts of the other counties of the district, but we make this appeal in the confident hope that many of you will freely respond to this call for help coming to us from the national democratic committee."

ATLANTANS TO JOIN IN SLOGAN CONTEST

An opportunity will be given to Atlantans to participate in a nation-wide Fire Prevention slogan contest, it was announced Tuesday. Prizes of $2,000 will be divided among 100 winners, and the contest is open to everyone, except to agents or others directly or indirectly connected with the Glens Falls Insurance company, which is offering the prizes.

The purpose of the contest is to aid the National Fire Protection association in its fire prevention educational work throughout the country, it is claimed.

All the slogans submitted will be turned over to the association at the close of the contest and all contestants, whether prize winners or not, will have the satisfaction of knowing that they have helped in some degree in the battle to cut down the appalling annual loss of life and property from fire.

The contest here will be under the sponsorship of Haas & Howell, to whom all local contestants should send contributions.

"Everyone should enlist in the fight against fire," said Mr. Haas in announcing the contest. "Over 15,000 lives are lost and more than $500,000,000 worth of property is destroyed by fire every year in the United States. One of the great needs of the National Fire Protection association in connection with its educational work, is effective and thought-provoking slogans. The contest is open to everybody and every one is urged to participate. I would like to see every school child and every parent in the community join in the contest. Full information as to the rules governing the contest will be supplied to anyone on request.

"Here is a fine chance to win one or more of 100 prizes ranging from $500.00 for the first to $5.00 for the lowest. I'd like to see our town beat any other town in the country on the number of prize winners. Here's a chance to help a good cause and to win a prize at the same time. The contest closes on October 11, the last day of Fire Prevention week. The prizes will be awarded by three judges of national prominence, whose names will be announced later."

JUDGE BRYAN PLEADS FOR CAREFUL DRIVING

Calling upon all automobile drivers in Atlanta to exercise utmost care in the handling of their vehicles, Judge Shepard Bryan, president of the Atlanta Safety council, on Tuesday drew attention to the added danger to life and limb of young children brought about by the opening of city schools.

In particular, Judge Bryan pleads with all parents to remember that if automobile accidents are not lessened, some day it may be their own child who is a victim and therefore, to exercise exceptional care that they do not injure some other youngster.

"In spite of the intensive efforts of the teachers in our schools," said Judge Bryan, "and parents in the home to teach children to watch out for autos, and notwithstanding the all-year-round educational campaign for their safety being carried on by the Atlanta Safety council assisted by the newspapers, police department and various organizations, according to official statistics, 5 children under 16 years of age have been accidentally killed this year in Atlanta.

"School days are here. More than 40,000 children are traversing our streets to and from classrooms. There is an equal number of automobiles on our streets. It is now, more than ever, necessary that we go out of our respective ways to preserve these kiddies from accidental injury.

"Don't put the job of teaching safety to your children entirely upon the shoulders of the school authorities. True, our teachers will continue to devote just as much, if not more time to this very important part of a child's education but their efforts do not for one moment, relieve the parents of their obligation in this respect.

"While other departments of the safety council are taking care of the child's safety education, the Safe Drivers' club is particularly interested in how mothers and fathers drive their cars. Do you know the traffic laws? Is your car in good mechanical condition? Are you using due caution for the safety of others while under the wheel?

"Ask yourself these questions remembering that in 1922 we had 16 children killed by automobiles in Atlanta, and an equal number in 1923. One of this number may easily be a member of your family."

REPLY OF B. F. BURGESS TO OPPONENT'S CARD

TO THE PEOPLE OF DEKALB COUNTY:

The card appearing in the Atlanta papers from my opponent relative to my attitude toward the salary system is misleading.

From the beginning of the agitation of this question I have publicly stated that if the people wanted the salary system it was the duty of our representatives to introduce and pass such a bill, and I so personally informed Mr. Steele, one of our representatives.

I stated at Stone Mountain that while I doubted the wisdom of the present act as the same applies to DeKalb County, and that I did not believe it would prove satisfactory to our people unless amended, predicating the salaries on a different basis from that incorporated in the bill as passed, I have always felt that the wishes of the people should prevail, and I have no fight to make against the salary system.

When the salary system goes into effect, certainly the people will recognize the fact that one of long experience and familiarity with the duties of the Clerk's office will be more capable of placing it on a satisfactory working basis than one totally unacquainted with any of the duties of the office.

I gratefully acknowledge the many expressions of confidence and assurances of support from the voters throughout the county, and if reelected I can only promise the discharge of my duties under the salary system as faithfully and efficiently as I have tried to discharge them under the fee system.

Faithfully yours,

B. F. BURGESS

8% of the Soft Coal Mined in the United States

Or a total of over a half million cars, was transported during 1923 by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. With 5,038 miles of track, as compared to a total of 251,175 miles of track in the United States, this figure of 2% of the total trackage, as against 8% of the total amount of coal mined, demonstrates the importance of the L. & N. as a coal-carrying Road.

From the mines in Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee, Virginia and Alabama, this road transports this immense tonnage of "black diamonds"; bringing prosperity to the communities in which the coal is produced, and adding to the comfort and prosperity of the sections in which it is consumed.

Taking things from where they are plentiful to where they are scarce, to the financial and social benefit of both the shipping and receiving communities, is one of the great tasks which the American railroads are capably performing. Don't hamper them by hurtful legislation.

BE CHARITABLE:—Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.—Galatians 6:1.

ON THE RIGHT ROAD.

Germany has repudiated the kaiser and the militarists and has set out on the road toward democratic institutions, which mean prosperity and happiness for all its people. This was the message brought to Atlanta last week by Herr August Knocke, of the prominent Hamburg banking house of Behrens & Company.

The distinguished German visitor remarked in an interview given The Constitution that more is heard of the nationalists and communists than from the silent masses of hard-working people who realize that the war has been lost and that only combined action and a sincere endeavor to carry out the obligations of the Versailles treaty will bring brighter day for the fatherland.

It is quite natural, however, that cliques of militarists, backed by agrarian party, consisting of and a sort of feudal aris- should continue their agi- for a restoration of the mon- and a return to "the good old

Get "old times" were to them, but to the rest of German people it meant simply a domination by a certain class. The junkers lived on the fat of the land, they sent their sons to the universities and colleges. Later the boys entered the army and their highest ambition was to become a member of one of the famous kaiser regiments. They were, in fact, the parasites on the body politic of the fatherland. Their pay and allowances came forward regularly and they assumed the air of lords and masters of Germany, which they really were.

Then came the war and the disillusionment. Defeated, thwarted in their plans of world conquest, the junkers lost prestige and the liberals and democrats of Germany seized the reins of government and have been endeavoring for the past six years to set Germany back on the road toward its high destiny in the family of nations.

But the nationalists and junkers have not for a moment ceased their agitation. It is unfortunate that the utterings of men like Ludendorff or Scheekct should receive so much attention abroad. The government allows them to speak, to let off steam, so to speak, but it keeps a vigilant eye on their activities.

There is no fear for a monarchist coup. The middle classes are firmly behind the Ebert regime. They want the democrats to have a fair trial in the process of rehabilitation of the fatherland.

And with the middle classes in power there is little danger of a "putsch" by the extremists of the communist type. The middle classes of Germany, like those of France, have always been the strongest bulwark against red propaganda.

The greater Germany's prosperity becomes the less we will hear of the Ludendorffs and also the reds. They would flourish in chaos, but the acceptance of the London agreement by Chancellor Marx has put an end to the specter of chaos. Germany is on the right road at last.

VICTORY FOR YOUTH.

Another victory for American youth comes in the selection of Seymour Parker Gilbert, Jr., as agent general for reparations payments, to succeed Owen Young.

Gilbert is not yet 32 years of age, and yet the position that has called him is one of the most important in the history of the world in so far as international finances are concerned.

European statesmen may look upon Gilbert's youth with some misgiving, as they are used to men of more mature years in positions of high trust, but they have only to study American history to find the accomplishments of really young men.

America's first secretary of the treasury, Alexander Hamilton, was only 32 when he took the oath of office.

Jefferson, Monroe, Madison, were all young men when they contributed so signally to the building of a young republic.

Patrick Henry spoke with the voice of youth when he literally turned the tide of public thought toward the freedom that subsequent events gave to the American people.

This nation has always trusted and honored young men, and when chosen for positions of trust, in public or private service, they have usually made good.

Young Gilbert will no doubt make good, even though he is only 32 years old, and in a position of tremendous importance and responsibility.

RUSSIA BARS BUSY BEE.

"The Life of the Bee," masterpiece of literature and philosophy written by the famous Belgian, Maurice Maeterlinck, has been placed on the red "index purgatorius" by the Moscow authorities. The penalty for being caught reading the book is six months in jail, the punishment for printing and distributing is death in soviet Russia.

Now, it is not because the life of the bee, as the life of the ant, holds a magnificent lesson for thrift and saving qualities. The wise men of the east do not object to energy and an energetic pursuance of certain activities.

In fact it is a little speeding up that the authorities always hold before the masses of Russia as the most necessary requirement to make a success of the Utopian experiment that is being carried on.

But Maeterlinck points out strongly in his book that if you should deprive the hive of its central authority, its consciousness, the bees will not work, will idle, fly in circles, neglect the garnering of the precious fluid that must feed coming generations.

The authority in the hive is the queen. There is the rub with the soviets. Maeterlinck should perhaps have called her the lady commissar or the chief member of the proletarian presidium to have found favor in the eyes of the Russian propagandists.

The Russian peasant, always living close to nature and drawing his information from her inexhaustible resources, is apt to discover that there must be in a well-ordered community something of a directing force to guide the latent energy of the members.

Should the peasant discover that the bees do so well under the guiding, almost mysterious influence of a queen, they may be apt to advocate a little change in their own administration.

So the bee is barred, though it would do Russia a world of good to imitate its example and get rid of the drones, the human parasites who do not work, engage in propaganda and live on the proceeds of the activity of workers and peasants.

DIGGING IN.

"When I get to the spot where I can't go ahead I do not turn around and go backward. I do like the boys did in France. I dig in."

This is the way a north Georgia farmer put it a few days ago. Commenting further on the situation, he said:

"I have had many ups and downs on the farm. I have sold excellent cotton for four cents a pound and I have sold cord wood to get money to pay my taxes, but I have always tried to drive ahead. The farmer, like the business man and every other kind of man, finds himself up against difficult situations occasionally, but nothing can be gained by turning backward. The farmers of my community are already making active preparations for next year's crop. We have no notion of giving up any of the ground we have gained during the last three years in fighting away from the old conditions. We are busy now digging in for the winter and will be ready to open the spring drive with renewed energy and with a good start made this fall."

The digging-in process is one which can be profitably employed by all who love the open country and the freedom which life close to nature brings. Digging in means improvement of the home surroundings, the lopping off of the small debt, the concentration of effort in such a direction as will help to make farm life more productive and at the same time more enjoyable.

Estelle's love has caused Mr. Dempsey to get his nose puttied and his eyelashes plucked and his ears trimmed down, and he is now quite sweet. "So sweet, indeed," says R. H. L. in The Chicago Tribune, "that if the plastic surgeons do very much more we will challenge him for the heavyweight championship ourself."

Also the Language Of Love.

Great consternation reigns in French intellectual circles over an incident in Greece. There the new German ambassador sent the president of the Greek republic two copies of the usual discourse made by new ambassadors. One copy in French and the other in German. Upon receipt of the two copies, the Greek government asked the ambassador for the reason. He replied that he had added the German text because "French is no longer the language of diplomacy." The Greek government promptly returned the German text, but the incident has given rise to many violent outpourings in the French press. One Paris morning paper says that the blame of the disrespect for the French language is to be laid with the French statesmen at the Versailles conference, who admitted the English language on equal footing. It is true that French has always been the language of diplomacy. At the treaty of Frankfort, after the Franco-Prussian war, the negotiations were carried on in French and not even Bismarck thought anything of it. At Portsmouth, where the Russo-Japanese war ended, French was spoken and written in the treaty. At Versailles, says the Figaro, we gave in to the English as we did so often and therewith played the game of Germany. The French language is in no danger. The maxim of Rivarol: "What is not clear cannot be expressed in French," is still its great strength and that's why one provision of the Versailles treaty says that if there be any doubt on any of the clauses, the French text shall be regarded as authentic and authoritative.

O Beulahland.

William L. Foster, communist candidate for United States president, denounces Senator La Follette as the most dangerous of the candidates in the running. "Comrade" Foster is annoyed because the capitalist press calls La Follette a radical. To him La Follette is a capitalist camouflaged to delude the workers and the camouflage is made up from such "yellow socialist traitors" as Eugene Debs and Morris Hillquit. The real and original radical is "Comrade" Foster himself. His Utopia is the workers' republic, the mirage of Lenin. He would probably answer like Proudhon did Napoleon III. Napoleon asked the economist, who was at the time considered the ultimate in revolutionary thought: "What then is your Utopian state, what is your dream of the future?" To which Proudhon replied: "I dream of a state where even I would be 'guillotined' for being too conservative."

To Be Near His Mother.

President Doumergue, of France, personification of the genial and gallant Midi, often visited his aged mother during the critical days of the war when he was a government minister and later a senator. His mother, however, thought that her son should not leave Paris and neglect his responsibilities. "There is nothing here but ennui and in Paris is your work," she would tell him. To quiet her scruples, M. Doumergue had a charming idea. In the neighborhood of her home he bought a large vineyard. From that time onward he could come and visit her without hearing the maternal protestations. Instead, it was: "Ah, Paris can wait, you must keep your eye on the workers in the vineyard, Gaston," she would say. Just what M. Doumergue wanted.

A Moujik D'Artagnan?

Leon Trotsky, probably encouraged by George Bernard Shaw's commendation of his first book, which G. B. S. called "the most marvelous piece of polemics in contemporary European history," is going to branch out as a "romancier." Trotsky, according to a dispatch, will write a novel on the heroism, sacrifice and death of the communists of the early days, that is the November, 1917, revolution. The book will have as title "The Three Communards" and Trotsky has ordered a little Trianon-like cubicle in his garden to write undisturbed. A dispatch quotes him as saying: "To write such a book as I plan, one must look in a garden, one must have beauty and air." That's probably true. But there may be too much garden. Trotsky will do well if he creates half the beauty and life contained in that book the title of which he paraphrases "The Three Musketeers." Yet Dumas had such a small garden and such pitiful quarters that once he told his son in solemn mockery: "Alexander, open that window so that our garden may have some air."

Political Assassination.

The first political murder in the new Jewish state of Palestine was committed in July, when Jacob de Haan, a Dutch-Jewish poet, was shot down as he left a Jerusalem synagogue. The murder, according to most observers, is the outcome of the bitter quarrel which is said to exist between the old Jewish inhabitants of Palestine, pure religionists, and the new immigrants who are more concerned with the present material needs of the Jewish race and who are building a new state on the unity of a race and not on a religion. M. Tharand, of Paris, in discussing the murder, says to the new Jews the law is nothing but puerile tradition and Jehovah a doting old graybeard. That statement does not seem correct, the newcomers in Palestine are not renegade Jews, they are enthusiasts for the rebuilding of the country in which they are achieving an almost unbelievable success. But, of course, you cannot stand near the wailing wall of Jerusalem night and day and expect to drain swamps, build railroads, plant vineyards and start schools. That's what the old Jews did and that's why Palestine was no better than a desert even five years ago.

ORDERS REARREST OF MYSTERY WOMAN

Wilmington, N. C., September 9.—M. Fay, alias Miss Jonell, the so-called "mystery woman" who was ordered out of Wilmington yesterday, today was ordered rearrested. A request for her arrest was sent to officials at Goldsboro, N. C., following receipt of a telegram from Mrs. Louise Wise Lewis, of Wilmington, New York and St. Augustine, who formerly employed the woman.

The telegram from Mrs. Lewis, who is at Burke Falls, Ontario, said that she had discharged the woman, whom she knew as M. Fay, on August 12 and had missed some wearing apparel. Her attorney, George W. Jackson, of St. Augustine, Fla., who, she said, would come here if necessary, is expected late today.

BITS OF PARIS LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

Paris, September 9.—This was a day among the dressmakers. They are the boys who make husbands wire home for money. Visiting their salons is much like seeing a musical revue It is all staged for the American visitors.

The mannikins are hand-picked flowers of France—graceful, youthful and strikingly beautiful. They have a majestic stride and haughty twirl yet they are unusually gracious. Everything to them is "chic." Each is a different type.

There are blondes, brunettes and titian-haired—all bobbed in the reigning Paris fashion, cut closely in the back. Some are parting their hair on the side and revealing their ears. The visitors sit about in various rooms that resemble a home.

They are handed programs and a caller announces various models. An attendant serves wine, whisky and soda or cordial to those who wish refreshments of this sort. The male dressmaker is almost invariably the Parisian exquisite.

He dresses for morning, early and late afternoon. He flutters about gesticulating and mouthing honeyed praises. He is generous with pomade and perfume and his high-heeled shoes and waspish fitting coat add to the general effeminate effect.

Nearly all the saleswomen speak excellent English for the bulk of the trade is American. The Parisians seek the ateliers off the beaten path where the outward show is less conspicuous and the artistry perhaps more pronounced.

Ladies feel quite important shortly after registering at Paris hotels. Within a few hours there is a flood of special invitations by mail and telephone to visit this couturier and that. Each arrival is a prospective sucker.

The most dignified looking person I have seen in Paris is the headwaiter at the Ritz. He has silver hair and mustache and the most fascinating goatee one ever beheld. It parts in the center and curves off into a complete circle ringlet on either side. It must have required years of patient training to achieve the effect. Whiskers are the most confusing things here. They may indicate a nobleman or a head barber.

This is an amendment to my statement there is not a good revue in Paris. There is one at the historic Folies Bergere. Zeigfeld's Follies, the Music Box Revue or White's Scandals have never come within striking distance of its novelty and splendor. But like the others all the songs are boldly swiped from American revues. Nudity is flagrant.

I wonder if American money looks as comic to Europeans as theirs does to us. I feel as though I am passing bogus currency in tendering the French franc for payment and the English pound notes—well, I wouldn't feel rich with a spare bedroom filled with them.

The keepers of the thousand and one tiny little specialty shops are an interesting study in contentment. Nearly all of their stock—lingerie, jewelry, cigarette holders, pajamas and the like—is in the display window. There is only room for two or three customers in the box stalls. At noon they close up to go out to luncheon and the midday bottle of wine. Those who do not buy are just as welcome as those who do.

The army of mumbling hags of Paris are to be seen everywhere. They roam the paves and gutters for cigar and cigarette snipes and scavenge the refuse cans for anything they may find. They sleep where night finds them covered with discarded newspapers. All are old, toothless and incredibly filthy in dress. They do not beg directly, but depend upon their appearance to excite sympathy.

Vice Presidency Now In the Limelight

BY SAM W. SMALL.

The vice presidency is looming larger in this campaign than in any since the early days of the republic, when the lew man in the presidential ballot became the vice president.

Bryan, Dawes and Wheeler are being discussed and paramounted almost, if not quite, as fully as Davis, Coolidge and La Follette, their principals upon the tickets.

In fact, the possibility, not at all remote in the present posture of the campaign, that no one of the leaders will have a majority, that the house will be unable to elect the president, and Bryan may become president by a coalition of democrats and progressives in the senate, has put him to the front in a most unusual and important way.

A Debatable Office.

All of which recalls that in the convention which framed the constitution the proposal to have a vice president was much debated. Gouverneur Morris, one of the strong men of the convention, declared that the office, if created, would become a mere bait with which to angle for the electoral votes of some important, but doubtful, state. And he was right about it. No one versed in American politics is ignorant of the customary practice of conventions when selecting a candidate for the vice presidency. He is usually chosen to balance the ticket between sections of the nation, or to give a fair assurance that he will bring to the ticket the electoral votes of the state in which he lives and figures as a favorite son.

A Negligible Office.

The usual business of the vice president is to preside over the senate. To do that he needs little more equipment than knowledge of the senate rules, parliamentary law, or has at hand an expert prompter; and that is always provided for in the senate officiary.

The chance that he will be called upon to ascend to the presidency is generally assumed to lie in the chapter of accidents not expected to happen.

Three vice presidents have come into the presidency by the natural deaths of their principals; the other three by the assassinations of their principals.

Former Vice President Marshall dealt seriously with his actual duties, but took delight in jocose commentaries upon the pseudo-magnitude and political magnificence of the office. Yet he was one of the most conspicuous and popular of the modern tenants of the office and held it for eight years continuously, through two administrations—which is a record.

Wanted It Abolished.

After the assassination of Lincoln and the experiences of the radical republican congresses with Andrew Johnson, who had ascended from the vice presidency, several proposals were made in congress to abolish the office teetotally!

It was Charles Sumner, the great Massachusetts idol, who offered in the senate a resolution to submit a constitutional amendment abolishing the office. Think where Calvin Coolidge might have been today, had Sumner been able to accomplish his object!"

Garfield, while a member of the house of representatives, favored the submission of a like amendment, yet, by reason of his assassination, the vice president elected on the ticket with him became president for more than three years of his term.

Something Else Yet!

Doubtless it is generally forgotten that when Hon. Nat. J. Hammond was our congressman from the Atlanta district, he introduced a resolution to amend the constitution so as to provide for the election of three vice presidents for each presidential term!

Gee whiskers! Wouldn't we be in a pretty mess right now if our congressman had been able to get his project into the constitution?

MACMILLAN IS BACK ON LABRADOR COAST

Freeport, Maine, September 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—Captain Donald B. MacMillan, returning from his Arctic explorations and scientific work of the past year in the schooner Bowdoin, has arrived on the Labrador coast. In a message received today by his sister, Mrs. Letitia N. Fogg here, and sent via Newfoundland, he said: "On Labrador coast. Be at Battle Harbor (Labrador) Wednesday. All well."

The radio message indicated that the schooner had arrived at Mackovick, Labrador, September 7. Mackovik island is about 60 miles north of Ice Tickle, where the army world fliers made their first landing in continental American waters August 31.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

MRS. WEST ON CASTOR OIL.

The best all around baby stuff I have seen is that issued in publications of the labor department of the United States government at Washington. Queer, in one way, that such a health subject should be a matter for the department of labor—but then, we're a funny nation in our general administration of public health, for you look in vain for a health department in our government at Washington. There ain't no sich problem as public health, so far as our federal government is concerned. Oh, yes, to be sure, we have all kinds of subsidiary bureaus dabbling with health, under the guidance of health experts, like the secretary of the treasury. This is no joke. Maybe the secretary of the treasury is quite a health shark, for all I know. But anyhow, one of the bureaus under his direction is the so-called Public Health Service of this great government of ours. You see how it is—we Yankees like to feel that any damphool knows enough to take care of his own health or the health of all his neighbors. That accounts for the popularity of patent medicines in America. It explains also why we have no health department in our federal government.

So the secretary of labor, not to be outdone by any of the other cabinet members, takes a hand in running the health affairs of the country, and I must say he does it mighty well, at least in this matter of keeping the babies well. It seems the labor department has a children's bureau. That isn't a parking place for children, but a special headquarters for the compilation and distribution of educational literature about the care of children.

I have recommended these pamphlets many times. I am glad to recommend them again, for I believe they are the best kind of instruction in the field of child care:

"Pre-Natal Care..... 5 cents.
"Infant Care".....10 cents.
"Child Care.....10 cents.

The first is for the prospective mother, and it contains, among other practical things, lists of baby clothes outfits, nursery equipment, and supplies which should be prepared. The second carries the baby along until he is 2 years old. The third takes him from that point up to school age. All of these booklets were compiled by a master hand, Mrs. Max West. In order to obtain copies, send the amount named, mentioning what you want, to the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C., and please be careful to send the exact amount, for if you don't the clerk in that office gets terribly mad at me and even the chief may write me about all the trouble I have caused the office.

Some one who had purchased the "Infant Care" pamphlet caused me some uneasiness by hinting that Mrs. West seemed too fond of castor oil to merit my high esteem. But I have just taken the time to study what Mrs. West says about castor oil in this pamphlet, and I am glad to find that she is right about it. She says it should not ordinarily be used as a laxative, as its after effect is constipating, and she mentions the use of one small dose in acute diarrhea. Mrs. West compiled her pamphlets from the teachings of the best medical authorities of the day. So, naturally, she is right about castor oil.

Sermons To Live By

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY.

Text. "The king . . . passed the night fasting."—Daniel, 6:18.

"What folly!"

This must have been the verdict of the distraught king upon his own act in forming a law that cast his best man among the lions.

It was vanity and an inordinate lust for adulation that caused this king (in many elements of his nature, noble) to fall into the snare of the envious princes.

"Fasting" over against his folly; in that he was wise; and, no doubt, he was trying to pray to the God of Daniel—every pang of hunger from his fasting body pricked his soul more widely awake to the truth of his folly and his need of Daniel and of help from Daniel's God.

So, by fasting, one may ally the body with his higher nature and "grow soul."

Let us hope the king persevered in praying to Daniel's God.

If so, he grew more saintly, even though seated in that place of spiritual danger, a throne.

"It is prayer-force which makes saints.

"Holy characters are formed by the powers of real praying.

"The more of true saints, the more of praying; the more of praying, the more of true saints."

Potential Wealth In Huckleberries In Georgia

BY GEORGE D. LOWE,
Ex-President Georgia Dewberry Growers' Association.

Up in Maine they are called blueberries, and in one county sixteen canneries operate in late summer while wild blueberry land sells for $400 the acre. Out in Michigan they are called huckleberries, and one landowner at Cadillac rented his land to a contractor who hired Indians to do the picking, the rental for the short season of a month being $5,000.

Over in West Florida they are called blueberries again, and enterprising men have put them under cultivation long enough to have absolutely proven their value, a 22-acre orchard of bushes ranging from 5 to 15 years old selling this summer for a thousand dollars the acre. On this orchard 280 bushes, standing on less than an acre, last year bore 4,500 quarts that sold for 25 cents the quart f.o.b. the station, and it was estimated that the total production was a thousand quarts more.

From the Arctic to the Gulf.

The blueberry ranges from Alaska to Florida and from North Carolina to Washington athwart the country. In Maine the bush is about 18 inches high at three years; in Alaska bearing bushes six inches high are typical; in Michigan and Wisconsin the wild bushes are small, and Indians rake or strip the berries off with leaves, twigs, etc., mixed in; in west Florida 32-year-old bushes still show annual growth and at 12 years they stand 15 feet high with many sprangling shoots. In south Georgia I have climbed a blueberry tree that is four inches in trunk diameter and twenty feet high, but the really valuable type with us does not take the tree form, being a clump of tall shoots identical with the cultivated variety in west Florida.

The botannical distinction between the blueberry and the huckleberry is not so well known to laymen. The true huckleberry is a low bush plant and the berries have large seed; the true blueberry is a small-seeded fruit that may be either blue or black in color. We have in south Georgia probably ten varieties of blueberries ranging in size from six inches to twenty feet high. The eastern trade will not buy the true huckleberry at all on account of its seediness, but the blueberry is in extremely high favor, the first choice cultivated blueberries going to the New York market this year bringing 90 cents the quart. No one anywhere to my knowledge cultivates the huckleberry, but blueberry culture is getting slowly under way in several states. Georgians persists in calling both types huckleberries.

The Profits in Bush Fruits.

Some years ago the late Samuel H. Rumph, who developed the Elberta peach told me of his intense desire to propagate and introduce into Georgia some desirable new bush fruit. "The small fruits," he said, "make more money for growers than the tree types always." Literally overwhelmed by the success of his peach ventures Mr. Rumph dropped, so far as I know, his research and experimentation along this line, but over in west Florida a native Cracker grew tired of hauling his children to the huckleberry woods so he brought the bushes to his field, cultivated them and an industry was born. When he sold out this summer for a thousand dollars the acre, thousands of people from all over the country had visited his orchard, and landowners all around him had followed his example, transplating choice wild bushes to the fields. A thinly populated and isolated area that south Florida always rediculed is now in the limelight, and homeseekers attracted by the blueberry are pouring into the region in droves.

A keen business woman in New Jersey began the cultivation of blueberries some years ago, and her operations received the cooperation of the department of agriculture at Washington. Dr. Frederick V. Coville, chief botanist, being in charge of the work. There and in Washington thousands of hybrids have been tried out and a few outstanding types developed and distributed. Owing to the peculiar nature of the plant countless hybridizations occur in the woods all over the south and the diversity of variation will run a botanist crazy. I have several hundred of Dr. Coville's hybrids under test here at Baxley, and so far they are growing nicely under our southern conditions despite their northern origin.

Matches West Florida Type.

When I saw the first old cultivated blueberry orchard in west Florida I remarked to the owner that I had seen the same blueberry in south Georgia. He disputed my claim; others in that region denied the possibility, and later numerous botanists and horticulturists joined them in pooh-poohing my statement. When a man has hunted and fished all over a section he may not remember just where he saw and ate certain type of blueberry, but if both Crackers and scientific sharps ridicule him it is up to him to make good or shut up.

Until this year I stood alone in my contention that south Georgia is also the habitat of the famous "Rabbiteye" blueberry of west Florida, but now I have shown it to Dr. Coville, the world's leading blueberry authority, to George E. Murrell, horticulturist of the Southern railway system, who has traveled thousands of miles in his blueberry investigations, and to many others interested in south Georgia. It is not so widely distributed here, and the sporadic occurrences are usually small, but in a certain area it is found in as large quantity as it was anywhere in west Florida before all the good bushes were transplanted to the fields.

After seeing the Sapp orchard in Florida I had opportunity to study the wild blueberry in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota the same year and later in the Adirondacks of New York. I saw Indians picknig the berries that brought 40 cents the quart on the Chicago market, and it was quite evident to me tha there in south Georgia hogs and goats eat thousands of bushels of fancier fruit each summer. Everywhere there were berries there were buyers from the cities, and the buyers all claimed that their cities would absorb just as many blueberries as strawberries if they could be obtained. We know that in a normal year the production of strawberries in this country reaches 18,000 carloads, while a full carload of blueberries would be an event of national importance. No "pie timber" makes a greater appeal to the American palate than the blueberry, and already the cultivated type commands a substantial premium.

How Florida Does Things.

When Florida found that she had a wonderfully good wild blueberry the adaptability of which to cultivation had long been proven her people went to work and put all available wild stock of quality into fields as soon as possible. Also much of that stock has been brought into Georgia by men who knew naught of the presence in this state of a better berry. Already plants from Florida are growing at various places in Georgia on practically every type of soil except swamp and heavy clay.

My observations of horticulture in Georgia have covered the Le Conte pear and pecan booms in south Georgia, the peach bloom in middle Georgia and the apple boom in the mountain region. I have seen our people buy choice nursery stock at high prices, set it out and then leave nature to take her course with it. All of us know what happens then, a downward trend to worthlessness. I wondered if the wild blueberry from the woods would stand neglect in the field, so this year I allowed a small planting to go unattended. The bushes have grown steadily and vigorously, but there is a great difference between them and those in a cultivated planting. A distinguished horticulturist who has seen every important blueberry planting in the country says that in all his experience he has never seen so sturdy, vigorous and resistant a plant as the wild blueberry put under cultivation. Centuries of wood life made it so, but its response to cultivation is just as wonderful as its intrinsic merits.

Some Aspects of the Blueberry.

A bulletin issued by the Seaboard Air Line mentions a blueberry bush of great age from which 90 quarts were picked in a single season. There are records of bushes still bearing vigorously although known to be more than 60 years old. Entire freedom from insect pests seems to characterize the blueberry under cultivation. A commercial crop is produced the third year after transplanting. The demand for the fresh fruit will not be supplied in a generation, to say nothing of the production of a supply for dehydration and the manufacture of conserves.

Sun-dried blueberries were common in south Georgia many years ago. Costing little more to set than an acre of strawberries and growing to a great age, the blueberry of the right sort seems to offer Georgia an even greater opportunity than the pecan. From the aesthetic standpoint there is nothing more attractive. In bloom it is as beautiful as the cherry orchards of Japan; in fruit and foliage a blueberry orchard is a sightly place, but in its autumnal coloring it is gorgeous. For decorative purposes blueberry foliage is a common article of commerce in eastern cities. Where will it grow? In practically any of our soils that have not been limed and are not too wet.

DAVIS SPENDS DAY RESTING IN WEST

Estes Park, Colo., September 9.—John W. Davis, the democratic candidate, had his first real rest today since he left New York 10 days ago to plead his cause to the people of the west.

His only callers here in the mountain retreat were James E. West and other executives of the Boy Scouts of America, who are encamped nearby, and who visited Mr. Davis to pay their respects.

The democratic standard bearer did some additional work on the address he is to deliver at Denver Thursday night. But for the most part he spent his time in needed rest and recreation. At mid-day he saw his first Rocky mountain storm, but it was not a very severe one. There was some play of lightning, with a high wind and driving rain sweeping through the little valley in which Estes Park is located.

The storm was of short duration and in the afternoon Mr. Davis had a horseback ride over the picturesque mountain trails.

The democratic nominee had no comment to offer on the results of the Maine election, where William R. Pattangall, who led the fight in the New York democratic convention for the naming of the Ku Klux Klan in the national platform, was defeated in the gubernatorial race by Ralph O. Brewster, republican. The size of Mr. Brewster's plurality apparently was somewhat disappointing, but spokesmen for the nominee said the result was not surprising, since Maine is a republican state and no national issues were involved in the contest.

DITCHING OF LIMITED BELIEVED DUE TO PLOT

Los Angeles, Cal., September 9.—The ditching of the Southern Pacific "Sunset Limited" near Maricopa, Ariz., last night, was the result of a plot to wreck the train, said an announcement at the railroad's office here today.

Comments on Small's 'Soul' and 'Spirit' Views

Editor Constitution: I was interested in Sam Small's plea, appearing in this morning's issue, for a correct use of the words "soul" and "spirit." I wish the matter were as simple as he seems to think. It would relieve religious thinkers of a whole lot of difficulties.

But the fact is the use of the terms was hopelessly confused in the Greek long before our Bible translations were made. Both "psyche" and "pneuma" originally meant "breath;" each was used in turn to signify the immortal part of our being. I have looked into the matter pretty closely, and have come to the conclusion that any attempt to straighten out the use of the terms is absolutely hopeless.

Eventually psychology will become what its name indicates—a science of the soul rather than a mere account of the mental processes. When that time comes we shall have either a redefinition of the old terms or a set of new terms which will help us to understand how we are put together. At present the average man can well be pardoned for giving up the attempt in disgust, and using the first word that comes to hand.

PERSHING PLEADS FOR PREPAREDNESS

New York, September 9.—A strong plea for civilian preparedness for the eventuality of war and a warning against letting the "future lull us into our customary attitude of lethargy and irresponsibility," was voiced tonight by General Pershing in a speech at a banquet at the Government club.

Comparing the activities of the pre-war regular army to those of the present day, he said that both the civilian attitude towards the army and the army's tasks had changed. The army's goal, he said, "has become preparation for service, whether it be blazing an air route round the world, or teaching the youth of the land something of their civic duties and obligations."

The regular officers, he asserted, "have actually become active instructors of the voluntary citizens' components," of the American defense system, constantly employed in ensuring that "if the time should come, the necessary man power and material would be at least partially ready."

Referring to defense day, he thought that "the general participation of our people on that day will be a conclusive evidence that they are not going to allow the costly lessons of the world war to pass unheeded."

CHILEAN PRESIDENT RESIGNATION REFUSED

president of the republic and took over the duties of chief executive.

WASHINGTON WATCHING SITUATION WITH CONCERN.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, September 9.—Sensational developments in Chile, where a military dictator has seized control of the government and forced the recent president to seek haven in the American embassy, are being watched with considerable concern here.

This coup marks the appearance on the shores of the western hemisphere of the idea made fashionable in Europe by Mussolini and Primo de Rivera. As is customary in such crises, the new dictator is attempting to put a constitutional dress on his performance. But the development, so far as it can be studied through the curtain of censorship, indicates a collapse of parliamentary government in Chile of the same brand that was witnessed in Italy and Spain. In all three cases, the dictators have justified their action on the ground that the politicians were neglecting the welfare of the people, and that the parliaments has become sodden and unresponsive to public responsibility.

Republican Government at Stake.

One phase of the situation of especial concern here is the future of the republican form of government in Chile, and in other South American countries for that matter. Brazil recently had a serious revolt. Several of the smaller republics are under virtual dictatorships or American protectorates. One of the corollaries of the Monroe doctrine has been an encouragement of the republican form of government on the western hemisphere by the United States.

What this government's attitude toward the situation in Chile will be is uncertain. Alessandri, the president, was forced to resign and was received with his family at the American embassy, where he will remain until he is authorized to leave the country.

Whether General Luis Altamarino, self-styled acting president, will be recognized by this government will depend upon future developments. His plan probably is to be elected president by the parliament. If the transition is accomplished in a constitutional manner, this government will have no alternative except to recognize the new government. If it develops that there has been usurpation and a disregard of constitutional procedure, the question will have to be considered in all its phases here.

Cause of Revolt.

Officials here familiar with the political situation in Chile attribute the collapse of the parliamentary government there to the large number of small parties and blocs which made positive action and any connected program of legislation impossible. With the national legislature thus paralized by the bickering of politicians, the economic condition of the people has grown worse. The cost of living has almost doubled since 1913 and wages are low. Alessandri was unable to carry out his reform program, so General Altamarino, with his military cabinet, is undertaking to emulate Mussolini.

CANDIDATES SPEAK TO WOMEN VOTERS

Representatives of practically every candidate in today's election spoke before members of the League of Women Voters at a 'heart-to-heart' meeting held Monday afternoon in the chamber of commerce building. The meeting followed the league's weekly luncheon, held at noon, at which candidates for city chief of construction and tax collector were heard.

Answers to questionnaires sent to candidates were read and discussed, after which women representatives of each candidate spoke. The assemblage was composed solely of women as all men were on the "taboo" list, and even candidates were barred.

F. P. Florence, candidate for tax collector, was the first speaker at the luncheon. W. A. Hansell, candidate to succeed himself as chief of construction of the city of Atlanta, reviewed his record since taking office January 1, 1923, and promised "square and efficient service" if re-elected.

C. S. Robert, who is opposing Mr. Hansell, stated that he has been a civil engineer for many years and has resided in Atlanta since 1881, having been employed in the office of the chief of construction for six years.

Assembly Candidates Speak.

Answers to questionnaires returned by the following candidates for the legislature were read, and all were represented by women speakers:

Luther Still, represented by Mrs. Chester Johnson; Frank Hooper, represented by Mrs. R. L. Turman; Miss Lucy Nagle spoke for Representative Bessie Kempton, candidate for re-election; Mrs. W. C. King for W. B. Hartsfield, present city alderman from the Third ward; Mrs. Chester Johnson for Wayne Allen, and Mrs. Hanna Simcox and Mrs. Trenary for J. O. Wood.

Channing Cope failed to receive a questionnaire, it was explained by his mother, who spoke in his behalf. Answers returned by Mrs. E. N. Gibbs and Eugene Dickey were read, but neither was represented by a speaker.

Mrs. W. C. King spoke for N. H. Ballard, candidate for reelection as state school superintendent, and Mrs. H. H. Turner represented his opponent, Fort E. Land.

Miss Culberson Endorsed.

The league went on record as endorsing Miss Margaret E. Culberson, candidate for county treasurer to succeed her father, who died last June while serving in that office. Miss Culberson was represented by Mrs. W. C. King. Questionnaires were not sent to candidates for treasurer and neither of Miss Culberson's opponents, Claude E. Buchanan and James E. Garrison, was represented.

Miss Virginia Crocker spoke for Judge Garland Watkins, who will oppose John A. Boykin in the race for solicitor general.

Neither Senator W. J. Harris nor Thomas W. Hardwick, candidates for United States senator, was represented, but their answers were read and discussed.

Answers to questionnaires returned by John T. Boifeuillet and O. R. Bennett, candidates for places on the public service commission, also were read.

Following the meeting, a number of women in attendance joined the league.

in making sure the overwhelming victory."

Hardwick headquarters gave out a statement emphasizing the points raised by their candidate in his final speech, delivered at Decatur Tuesday night, in which he repeated charges that Mr. Harris is a member of the Ku Klux Klan and said that "Mr. Harris takes an ill-natured fling at my record in war and peace. Mr. Harris has no record to speak of in either." Mr. Harris has denied that he belongs to the klan.

County Races Hot.

In Fulton county much interest has been aroused in the race for the place on the superior court bench now occupied by Judge G. H. Howard. Judge Howard is asking reelection and is opposed by Judge L. F. McClelland, of the Atlanta municipal court.

John L. Cone, campaign manager for Judge Howard, declared Tuesday that he was certain Judge Howard would be elected and that the re-election will be the result "of a campaign that has remained consistently on a high plane."

Headquarters for Judge McClelland stated that "indications from all parts of the county point to an overwhelming victory by Judge McClelland."

In the race for commissioner of agriculture, J. J. Brown is opposed by George F. Hunnicutt. N. H. Ballard, state school superintendent, is opposed by Fort E. Land, of Macon, and Major C. E. McGregor, commissioner of pensions, is running for re-election against John W. Clark, of Augusta.

Other Contests Heated.

There are two races in the public service commission, both members of that body up this year for reelection having opposition. Commissioner W. D. Price is opposed by Albert J. Woodruff, of DeKalb county, while Commissioner John T. Boifeuillet is opposed by O. R. Bennett, of Dodge county. Two places are to be filled on the supreme court, but both incumbent justices have a clear field. They are Justice Samuel C. Atkinson and Justice S. Price Gilbert. A similar situation exists in the court of appeals, where two incumbents, Judges Nash R. Broyles and W. Frank Jenkins, have no opposition.

In the fifth district, Congressman W. D. Upshaw is opposed by Max H. Wilensky, of Atlanta.

In Fulton county, in addition to the race for the superior court bench between Howard and McClelland, there has been a warm race between John A. Boykin, the incumbent, and Garland M. Watkins, for the place as solicitor general of the Fulton superior court.

John A. Boykin, candidate for re-election to the office of solicitor general, had his entire force at his campaign headquarters busy Tuesday with final pre-election arrangements. "I am fairly familiar with political conditions in the city and county, and I confidently expect the most overwhelming indorsement at the polls on Wednesday that I have ever received in any former race," said Mr. Boykin.

For state senator from the 35th district, which includes Fulton, there is only one candidate, Walter C. Hendrix, of Atlanta.

Ten Candidates Busy.

"There are ten candidates for the three Fulton county seats in the state house of representatives. These include two women, Miss Bessie Kempton, who has been a Fulton representative for two years and seeks reelection, and Mrs. E. N. Gibbs. Other candidates are: Luther Still, Channing Cope, Eugene Dickey, Frank A. Hooper, Wayne Allen, P. S. Brooks, W. B. Hartsfield and J. O. Wood.

There is a three-cornered race for the place as Fulton county treasurer. Miss Margaret Culberson, whose father, until his death, held the office, is seeking election to the place and is opposed by Claude E. Buchanan and J. E. Garrison.

Outside of the fifth Georgia congressional district there are races this year in five other districts, six of the twelve congressmen having no opposition for reelection.

In the first district, Congressman R. Lee Moore, of Statesboro, is opposed by former Congressman C. G. Edwards, of Savannah; in the second district Congressman Frank Parks, of Sylvester, is opposed by E. E. Cox, of Camilla; in the sixth district, Representative Ben Fowler, of Bibb, and Representative Sam Rutherford, of Monroe, are opponents for the seat of Congressman Walter Wise; in the eighth district, Congressman Charles H. Brand, of Athens, is opposed by Representative Frank A. Holden, of Athens; in the ninth district, Congressman Thomas M. Bell is opposed by Sam G. Brown, of Gwinnett county.

Congressmen who will be renominated without opposition are: Charles R. Crisp, of Americus, third district; W. C. Wright, of Newnan, fourth district; Gordon Lee, of Chickamauga, seventh district; Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, tenth district; W. C. Lankford, of Douglas, eleventh district, and W. W. MUSCOGEE READY FOR HOT RACES.

Columbus, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—With the erection of booths at the courthouse, the sending of ballot boxes to the various county precincts, and the naming of managers to be in charge, all preparations for the democratic white primary tomorrow were being completed this afternoon by the subcommittee of the county democratic executive committee, of which R. E. Dismukes is chairman. In view of the enthusiastic last day interest among the 51 local candidates and their friends, the unusual length of the ballot and the indications for a big vote, Chairman Dismukes announced that arrangements would be made for 24 persons to vote at the same time at the eight booths at the courthouse and instead of being erected double as originally planned, they have been set up in triple arrangement, permitting three persons to vote at a time at each box. These boxes will each be in charge of four managers.

Main contests in which greatest interest centers are those for the circuit judge and solicitorship, tax collector, tax receiver, municipal judgeship, coroner, and the clerkship and marshal of the court. For judge of the Chattahoochee circuit, the encumbent, Judge George P. Munro, is opposed by C. Frank McLaughlin, former solicitor general, and Richard Terry, Columbus lawyer. The race for the solicitorship is a four-cornered one in which Walker Flournoy, Jones Perryman, J. B. Hart and Gilbert Fincher vie for votes.

The Treasurer's Race

To the Voters of Fulton County:

All we want is facts. That's what we are giving you. Don't be fooled with the Eleventh Hour sympathy advertisements and indorsements.

The records show that Mr. C. M. Holland was appointed Acting Treasurer with Mr. Logan Bleakley as power of attorney on March 28th, 1924. He was acting as Treasurer with Mr. Bleakley until June 12th, 1924, when he was appointed Treasurer for the balance of the year. The auditor's report, signed by Respess & Respess, covers the period October 1st, 1923, to June 12th, 1924. Mr. Culberson's daughter's name is not mentioned.

Not wishing to get into a controversy with either of my opponents, I am reiterating my statement that they are both qualified.

As to Miss Culberson, I feel as the majority of voters feel, that her father having held this office for seventeen years, the family should not wish to continue it as a heritage.

The tax books show H. L. Culberson and wife, Katherine B., returns jointly seventeen houses and lots. If Mr. Culberson was so penalized with his seventeen years of service as County Treasurer as to leave his family in dire circumstances, then it will be a great injustice to penalize his daughter with the same office.

Now as to Mr. Buchanan. If he is the business man as per series of advertisements, we believe the voters will feel that he can best serve his county by applying his great mental faculties to the production side rather than serving as County Treasurer.

As to Jim Garrison—he makes no claim of poverty or great business abilities. He is efficient, courteous and always on the job. We do not believe in asking his friends to indorse him through the papers as a business man. His record for honesty, courtesy and efficiency is known throughout the County.

The voters today will indorse the record of Jim Garrison by overwhelmingly electing him County Treasurer.

The friends of Jim Garrison have stated the facts and have paid for this advertisement.

Are the Chinese smarter than you are?

It so happens that the above is not a ledger sheet from a Chinese laundry. It is a reproduction of the back label on a Listerine bottle as sold in China. Listerine is distributed the world over.

IN China, as you probably know, the doctor receives his fee for keeping you well. When you get sick, his fees stop until you are on your feet again.

This method has been followed for centuries — the oldest method of preventive medication.

Modern methods suggest the systematic use of a safe, effective antiseptic that will guard you against infection and the many illnesses that follow.

Listerine, the safe antiseptic, serves ideally this way. Used regularly as a mouth wash and gargle it proves an effective barrier against most of the more common germ diseases.

Have Listerine handy in your home and encourage your family to cultivate the systematic habit of using it. Many illnesses can be avoided in this way.

When you feel that first dry hitch in your throat on swallowing, which is the danger signal of sore throat, let Listerine guard you against more serious troubles.

Sore throat is a nuisance and usually comes at just the time you want to feel your best. By making Listerine a regular part of your daily toilet routine, you can usually avoid sore throat and often save yourself inconvenience and discomfort.

Listerine has dozens of other uses. Please read carefully the circular that comes with each bottle.—Lambert Pharmacal Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

Slays Sweetheart After Helping Kill 8th Husband

Detroit, September 9.—Having confessed, according to the police, that she killed a sweetheart four years ago, after she had helped him hide the body of her eighth husband, whom he had slain, Mrs. Euphemia Mondich was being questioned by the authorities today in an effort to determine where her other husbands are.

Information furnished by the woman's ninth husband three days ago led to her arrest. Mrs. Mondich told the authorities she did not know the name of the man she killed except that he was known as "John." A skull and other bones believed to be those of "John" were unearthed yesterday under a house formerly occupied by Mrs. Mondich.

According to the police, Mrs. Mondich confessed she had killed "John" with his own revolver a week after she had seen him club her eighth husband, Joseph Sokokolsky, to death in an automobile.

She said she went under the house, dug a hole and dragged "John's" body from the house and buried it.

She married Steve Mondich, she said, shortly afterward. Mondich, according to the police, became incensed when she left him and took with her title to the property which they owned jointly, and furnished information which led to the finding of the bones under the woman's former home.

M'CLELLAND ENDS HEATED CONTEST IN HOMEWARD

Speaking in his home ward, Judge D. F. McClelland, candidate for judge of Fulton superior court, Tuesday night closed his campaign with an address at Slaton school, on Grant street near Georgia avenue. Judge McClelland repeated pledges made at previous meetings to conduct his office "fairly and impartially" if elected.

A number of other candidates were on the program, and a special musical program was rendered.

BITING CONSCIENCE GIVEN AS EXCUSE FOR CONFESSION

"My conscience bothers me so badly that I want to give myself up," was the announcement of E. J. McCarthey, 31, of Scofield, Va., as he walked into police headquarters Tuesday night. "There is a reward of $50 for me at Danville, Va., and any of you are welcome to it," he added.

According to the man's story, he arrived in Atlanta from Texas Tuesday night, en route to Danville to surrender himself, when his funds became exhausted. He said he was wanted in the Virginia city on charges of driving a mortgaged automobile from the state, and admitted that he had sold the machine in Texas.

He told officers he sold the car through another man, receiving $160 for it, but that the salesman charged a commission of $100, and that he (McCarthey) received only $60, which was used in paying railroad fare to Atlanta.

Police were attempting to reach Danville authorities Tuesday night in an attempt to learn more about the case.

MIDDLETON KAYOES SAILOR MIKE OWENS

Jacksonville, Fla., September 9.—Jack Middleton, Jacksonville light-heavyweight, knocked out Sailor Mike Owens, of Savannah, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here tonight. Owens is a middleweight.

Bobby Cox, of Jacksonville, was given a referee's decision over Judge Horning, of Savannah, at the end of their eight-round semi-final. They are welters.

Both fights were fast.

PITTSBURG DROPS FULL GAME

New York, September 9.—Pittsburg, which lost two games today, while New York and Brooklyn were idle, dropped a full contest away from both and now trails the Giants by three games and the Robins by two and one-half.

The Yankees, winning from Boston while Washington was idle, picked up half a game and now trail the Senators by one and one half contests. Detroit defeated Chicago and is four and one half games behind Washington.

The standing of the first three teams in each league and the games remaining to be played after today, follows:

Atlanta Golfers Enter Amateur

New York, September 9.—One hundred and sixty-two golfers, representing four countries, compose the entry list for the national amateur championship at the Merion Cricket club, Haverford, Pa., September 20-27, the United States Golf association announced today.

Of this total, 91 are on the original 1924 elegibility list of the U. S. G. A., 58 are on a supplementary list, 10 are members of the British Walker Cup golf team, headed by Cyril Tolley, while two are Canadians, G. H. Turpin and J. W. Yuile, of Montreal, and one the champion of Panama, Edmund L. Koperski.

The aditional 58 American entries on the supplementary list include Charles Black, Jr., and Tess Bradshaw, of Atlanta; F. M. Laxton, Charlotte, N. C.; Eugene Mills, Raleigh, N. C., and A. C. Ulmer, Jacksonville, Fla.

McTigue To Fight Paul Berlenbach

New York, September 9.—Paul Berlenbach, the reformed and penitent wrestler, may be given a chance at a world championship early in October, just about one year after his conversion from wrestling to fighting. Berlenbach has accepted terms for a fight with Mickey McTigue, the lightweight champion. McTigue, however, hasn't yet closed the bargain and may shy from Berlenbach's reputation as a puncher.

McTigue has been whipped twice by Willie Stribling, whom Berlenbach recently met in a six-round draw.

Firpo, Wills End Training; Million-Dollar Gate Seen

New York, September 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—Luis Angel Firpo and Harry Wills, rival aspirants for Jack Dempsey's crown, have completed their training and today they declared themselves fit for their battle scheduled for Thursday night in Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City.

Firpo, because of his devastating right-hand punch, loomed tonight as the slight favorite, with several wagers being reported on him at odds of 6 to 5, but critics who have followed the giant gladiators in their preparations the past few weeks look for a closely-fought battle.

There seems to be general agreement that the fight will not go the limit of 12 rounds, but on the other hand, a fairly even division of opinion as to whether the expected knockout will be scored by the "Wild Bull" or the "Brown Panther." As no decisions are permitted under the New Jersey boxing laws, the verdict, in case the match goes the limit, will be unofficial.

Seat Sale Slow.

Due to the uncertainty caused by deportation proceedings against Firpo, the advance seat sale has not come up to expectations. It has passed $300,000, however, promoter Tex Richard said, and if the revival of interest manifested today continues the bowl is expected to be packed to its limit of about 90,000 with gate receipts approximating $1,000,000. Tickets range in price from $2 for general admission to ringside seats at $27.50 each.

If weather blocks the fight, it will be held Friday night.

With their long conditioning grinds completed, both fighters tipped the scales at around 220 and expect to climb into the ring at this figure. The official weighing-in will take place Thursday afternoon.

Both fighters are confident. Firpo relies on his slugging ability, aggressiveness and recuperative powers to beat down the superior defensive skill of Wills, who has other assets in his greater experience and shiftier footwork. The negro, better at infighting, also has an effective punch in either hand, while Firpo, unless he has altered his style of battling, will rely chiefly upon his powerful right when the fray is hottest.

Five Other Bouts.

The bout is slated to go on about 10 p. m., eastern daylight time. Five other contests are included on the card, with the semi-final of eight rounds between Charley Nashert, of Newark, and Mike Burke, of New Orleans, scheduled after the main event.

The other attractions are: Charley McKenna, New York, vs. Miguel Ferrera, Argentine, four rounds; Joe Silvania, vs. Carl Johnson, four rounds; Jim Maloney vs. Joe Stoessel, former New York amateur star, six rounds; Bill Tate vs. John Casnova, six rounds.

Reddick Kayoes McGowan In 5th After 7 Knockdowns

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

Bill McGowan, who has shown more bounce in the ring lately than a jackrabbit baseball, bounced up from the resined mat six times at the auditorium last night in five rounds before Jack Reddick, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, smacked the Atlanta boy off his feet for the full count and a few minutes more. Briefly, McGowan lost his scrap last night by being put to sleep in the middle of the fifth round.

It was a left hook and a right cross that kicked McGowan's props from under him for the count. The other six knockouts Reddick scored with right hooks to the jaw, right uppercuts, a left hook to the jaw and right hook to the head.

McGowan put up a valiant battle as long as he retained his senses. The first round was even, with both boys feeling each other out with careful sparring.

Canadian Steady.

In the second round both tied in a little harder, and McGowan managed to land one punch that dislodged one of Reddick's molars, but he couldn't shake the Canadian. Reddick's feet might have been sunk in concrete for all he was jarred by McGowan blows. In this round Reddick was batting for the Atlanta boy's head and jaw, while McGowan was getting most of his licks to the heart and to the jaw.

McGowan had a pretty one-two attack, but it failed to show any kick.

Reddick scored his first knockdown in the third round, before two minutes had elapsed. He scored it on a right to the jaw. McGowan took a count of eight and came back for another in the same place that caused him to slip his moorings again. After the second knockdown he came back fighting like a terror, but he couldn't control his punches.

McGowan tried to open up again in the fourth, but collided with a murderous right uppercut that dropped him. He went down again in this round on a left hook to the jaw. He just did stick it out to the gong.

They hadn't gone 30 seconds on the fifth round, before McGowan again bit the dust, this time on a right uppercut. The next knockdown followed in short order on a right to the head. The curtain dropped 15 seconds later when Reddick put over his deadly left hook and right cross.

Reddick had the edge in all but the first round. He weighed 169 1-2 pounds and McGowan scaled 164 1-2.

Semi-Windup Fast.

The best battle of the evening's entertainment was the ten-round semi-windup between Pete Cole, of Rome, and Jordan Sheppard, of Macon. Referee Eddie Hanlon said it was a draw, but the decision was unpopular, the crowd giving Cole the best of the argument because of his pushing the fighting and cutting up his opponent. The fight was Cole's first in Atlanta. He probably will return for another scrap soon. Cole weighed 124 1-2 and Sheppard was announced as 127 pounds.

Jack Denham, ancient battler, stayed less than two minutes with Soldier Davis in a scheduled eight-round affair. Hanlon stopped the fight when Denham was wobbling and falling into the ropes on all sides, on his feet, but unconscious.

Tommy Jones, 114 puonds, won a close decision over Benny Regan, 112 pounds, in a six-round incident prior to the main event. Plenty of blood was spilled here with Regan's blood-drenched yellow trunks showing all colors of a sunset.

"Cyclone Sims" stopped "Kid Key" in a burlesque in one minutes and 35 seconds of the first round of their scheduled four-round show.

A battle royal started festivities.

With a view of reducing the cost of living, the city of Strausbourg, France, recently issued a circular to the master butchers of the city calling upon them to bring to the attention of the people the desirability of frozen meat. If this plan fails the city itself will open a number of shops. The few shops that have been handling this kind of meat report an increased volume of business since the publicity campaign.

RICHARDS TO REPLACE JOHNSTON

New York, September 9.—The committee in charge of the lineup of the American Davis cup team has benched little Bill Johnston and chosen Vincent Richards as a singles player in his place for the matches at Philadelphia this week, in which the American team will defend the cup once more against the challenge of Australia.

William T. Tilden, the world singles champion, and Richards will play the four singles matches for the American team. Johnston will get into action just once, as Tilden's partner in the doubles match. Richards was selected for the singles matches in Johnston's place notwithstanding the fact that Johnston was runner-up to Tilden in the recent national championship tournament at Forest Hills. Richards went out of the tournament on the day before Johnston met Tilden in the final. But Vincent made a better fight against Tilden than Johnston did. And furthermore, he beat Johnston decisively last Saturday afternoon in one of the matches of the east-west team tournament. These facts doubtless influenced the selections committee in their choice of Richards.

Pat O'Hara Wood and Gerald Patterson will represent Australia in the singles and doubles, but Patterson, the captain, has nomintaed Fred Kalms and R. E. Schlesinger as alternates.

The first two singles matches will be played Thursday afternoon. Dwight F. Davis, assistant secretary of war and donor of the world-famous cup, is expected to attend the first day's play at least. The Germantown Cricket club is the host to the tournament.

Polo Match Put Off Till Thursday

New York, September 9.—The first polo contest for the international challenge cup, scheduled for today, but postponed by rain, will be played Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock if weather permits, it was announced tonight by the United States Polo association.

The decision cancels an earlier intention to play the match tomorrow. Officials decided as rain continued to fall earlier in the evening, that the field would be impossible to play upon until Thursday. The starting time was placed at 2:30 o'clock, instead of 4:00, to avoid interference with the Wills-Firpo boxing bout at Jersey City in the evening. Under present arrangements, the second match will be contested Saturday, as scheduled.

Louis Lacey, star back and captain of the British, probably will be able to take his place in the line-up Saturday, it was announced by the polo association. Lacey is suffering from an attack of shingles.

Circuit Races Are Postponed

Syracuse, N. Y., September 9.—Wet weather caused postponement today of the entire program of grand circuit races here.

The card of five events will be run tomorrow. These include the $10,000 Empire State Stake for 2:08 trotters, and the Western Horseman Stake for three-year old trotters, with a purse of $4,500.

Yanks Get Hillis, Recall Autry From Atlanta Club

Half a score of players on the New York Yankees and the Atlanta Crackers were shoved into a bag, shaken up and pulled out yesterday. The results of the shake-up were as follows:

Mack Hillis, brilliant young utility infielder of the Atlanta club, left last night for Yanktown in consideration of $5,000 and four players to be delivered to the Crackers in the spring.

Martin Autry, 20-year-old giant, sent to Atlanta a little more than a month ago to replace Homer Haworth, will quit the Crackers Friday to rejoin the Yankees in Chicago.

Ben Paschal, slugging outfielder of Crackers, will leave the Atlanta club Sunday night in Chattanooga for New York in accordance with terms of deal in which Yankees paid Crackers $20,000 for the home run hitter.

Get New Catcher.

One of three catchers now under consideration by Niehoff will join the Crackers Friday to take Autry's place back of the plate with Johnny Brock, first string receiver.

The four players coming to Atlanta in the deal by which Mack Hillis goes to the major league club are Bernice (Steady) Thompson, former Tech righthanded pitcher; Pitcher Newberry, sold to the Yankees last year by the Crackers for $5,000; William Mahoney, catcher on the Winston-Salem team, and Charles Olsen, leading twirler of the Springfield (Mass.) club.

Manager Niehoff yesterday received word from the Yankees that it was urgent that Autry come to them to take the place of Wallie Schang, first-string catcher, who is out of the game with injuries sustained a couple of days ago. It is possible that the Crackers will get the Winston-Salem catcher to take Autry's place, but no decision has yet been reached by the Cracker boss.

The departure of Ben Paschal for the Yankee stronghold Sunday night depends entirely on the standing of Southern league clubs, Niehoff said last night. Should Memphis have a streak of bad luck and the Crackers take a place within two or three games of the league-leading Chicks, Paschal decidedly will not go to the Yankees then, but will finish the season with the local outfit.

Can Recall McCabe.

In the event Paschal does go to New York Sunday night, the Crackers can reinstate Bill McCabe, on the voluntary retired list now, and centerfield will be covered well.

The four players coming to Atlanta from New York in the Hillis deal increase to eight the full number now known to be ready for the Crackers in the spring. Francis, southpaw of the local club, goes to New York at the end of the season for $5,000 and four players in a deal announced several weeks ago.

Niehoff declared last night that under no circumstances will he let Benny Karr, mound ace of the Crackers, go to Cleveland until all is over but the shouting. The changes were many yesterday, but that's one that won't take place until the last game is over this season.

Parrish Back at Oglethorpe To Play Center

Great Pivot Man of 1923 Will Be in Practice Today; Completes List of Veterans

BY BILL MORROW.

Stock in the doubtful Oglethorpe line took a great leap skyward yesterday, when it was learned that Clay Parrish, veteran center and one of the greatest defensive players to wear the togs of the Stormy Petrels, will report this afternoon to take his place at the pivot position. Parrish was supposedly lost to the Petrels on account of injuries sustained in the Tech-Oglethorpe tilt of last year, but under careful treatment the injured leg has improved.

When Parrish reports this afternoon, his arrival will complete the list of veterans returning. Charles Corless and Marvin Nix have arrived at the Petrel stronghold.

The end combination of Nix and Carroll proved to be one of the bright spots in Petrel play last season. Both being ideal ends, they found two empty births this season, due to the loss of two former Oglethorpe captains, Ed David and "Jug" Brown. Nix and Carroll gave the regulars a great race last season and followers of the Stormy Petrels are picking this combination to play a very important part in Petrel play.

Old Linemen Back

The return of Clay Parrish to the Petrel haunts gives the coaching staff somewhat of a better idea of material to count upon. The old men back on the line are Nix and Carroll, ends; Crowe and Justus, tackles, Hardin and Hambrick, guards, and Parrish at center.

Followers of the grid game will recall the great part Parrish played in the tilt with the Golden Tornado. He was a brainy, cool passer and on defense proved to be one of the best tacklers in the Petrel camp, but injuries cut short his '23 debut on the gridiron.

Yesterday afternoon Coach Robertson spent most of the time in sending his different teams through signal drills, closing the session with a short scrimmage. Scrimmages came a little earlier than were expected, Coach Robertson having decided to run the risk of injury in order to get his squad in condition for the Petrels opening game.

The race for first places in the Petrel backfield is an interesting one to watch. With possibly 20 backs that show promise of speed, the candidates will meet one of the strongest tests of the training period as scrimmages grow longer.

Maurer Good as Ever.

Captain Adrian Maurer has shown up unusually well in his activities on Hermance field. "Nutty" Campbell, '23 quarterback, has taken on some weight during the summer months and is making a strong bid for his old berth. Bob Kilgore is the other veteran returning to the backfield, Clyde Wallace having decided not to return. Bob has proven to be a great power in Petrel play.

Among the new men who are showing promise in the backfield are O'Dwyer, who has had experience on Boys' High and the Oglethorpe freshmen combination; "Bear" Slayton, another freshman star, who with Alton Redfern is showing up nicely. Tulie Walsh, formerly a University star, is also out for the Petrel backfield with "Bo" McMillan, who has shown remarkable improvement over last season's exhibition.

S. I. C. BOARD MEETS HERE SATURDAY

Athens, Ga., September 9.—Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the Southern Intercollegiate conference, has called a meeting of the executive committee of that organization for Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at an Atlanta hotel. Members of the committee, besides Dr. Sanford, are: J. B. Crenshaw, of Georgia Tech; N. W. Daugherty, Tennessee; D. H. Henry, Clemson, and C. L. Hare, Auburn.

OFFICIALS WILL DECIDE ELIGIBILITY.

The meeting called by President Sanford is the regular fall gathering of the executive committee of the S. I. C. to pass on eligibility of players and work out final details for playing of the conference football schedules. Invitations to the meeting were sent out by Dr. Daugherty, of Tennessee, several weeks ago.

Young Wallace Beats Herring

Biloxi, Miss., September 9.—Young Wallace, of New Orleans, showed championship form in beating Red Herring before a record-breaking crowd here tonight. Wallace won eight out of ten rounds, knocking Herring down for the count of nine twice, nce in the second and again in the fourth round, and many times his opponent had to hang on to save himself from a knockout.

The decision was popular with the audience.

STRIBLING EASY WINNER IN OHIO

Columbus, Ohio, September 9.—Young Stribling, youthful boxing sensation of Atlanta, Ga., without apparent effort, tonight knocked out Glenn Clickner, of Zanesville, Ohio, in the second round of their scheduled 12-round bout. Stribling's weight was announced as 169 and Clickner's, 164.

Stribling was master of the bout from the beginning. A left to the head in the closing seconds of the first round sent Clickner to his corner in a groggy condition. In the second round after some sparring, during which each boxer landed several blows, Stribling with a well-timed sweeping right to the head, sent his opponent to the canvas for the count. The blow was so hard that it rocked Stribling and for an instant it appeared to those about the ringside that he might go over backwards.

National League

PIRATES HANDED SET-BACK.

St. Louis, September 9.—The Cardinals handed the Pirates a severe setback in their drive for the 1924 pennant this afternoon when they took both games, 7 to 4, and 6 to 4. The first game was featured by the brilliant work of "Chick" Hafey, recruit outfilder who was obtained from the Houston team of the Texas league recently. In the first game, Hafey drove in six runs, three with a triple, two with his home run and one with a sacrifice hit. He scored the seventh run himself on a single by Douthit. Pittsburg's four errors in the second game aided the Cardinals in scoring their second victory. Pittsburg's double defeat widened the margin between the league leading Giants and the Pirates to three games.

O'FARRELL'S HOMER FACTOR.

Chicago, September 9.—O'Farrell's home run in the sixth inning and a shoe-string catch by Weis in the ninth inning enabled Chicago to defeat Cincinnati, 4 to 3, today. The locals bunched hits for three runs in the third, while the visitors were unable to do much with Alexander. With the tying run on third in the ninth, Weis made a great play on Wingo's drive and retired the side.

Qualifying Round Today For Amateur Golf Title

Qualifying rounds in the city amateur golf championship will start this morning over the East Lake course, with the largest list of entries in the city's history ready to start.

Ben Jones, who hails from the Ansley Park Golf club, will be on hand to defend his title against all comers. He has been spending some spare moments the past two days in an effort to familiarize himself with the East Lake course.

The course has been put in excellent shape for the tourney and was thrown open to participants for practice all day Monday and Tuesday, but today play will be more concentrated, with the hopefuls endeavoring to get into the charmed circle of first 32 low scorers who will compose the championship flight.

A brand-new idea will be put into effect in the championship tourney. The finals, which will be played Saturday afternoon, will go 36 holes instead of 18, as before. That will give both contestants for city championship honors more chance to show their real ability at golfing and the spectators will have a longer course to pursue to witness all of the contests.

According to plans of the committee qualifying rounds will be played all day Wednesday, with two rounds of 18 holes each on Thursday, two rounds of 18 holes each on Friday, and the finals in all flights Saturday afternoon.

The first 32 low qualifying scores will be placed in the championship flight, with the others listed in flights of 16 contestants each. The defeated 16 in the championship flight will be placed in the first flight on Friday, while the defeated eight from the first flight on Friday will be placed in a consolation flight.

The handsome Gulf Refining Company trophy, now being held by the Ansley Park Golf club, will become the property of the club whose member wins the title this week and remain with that club for one year. Druid Hills held the trophy last year, when Perry Adair won out over a field after keen competition.

Trophies and prizes will be awarded the winners and runner-ups in each of the flights.

The competition this year should be even keener than ever before in spite of the fact that Chick Ridley, state champion, and Tess Bradshaw are speeding eastward with Bobby Jones to enter the national amateur championship next week.

The field is much larger than ever before, and some of the youthful amateurs who fought it out for the boys' city championship honors last week are liable to cause quite a bit of trouble before Saturday night. Harvey Hill, of the Brookhaven club, winner of the boys' title, is no easy golfer to defeat and his low qualifying score in the boys' division stamps him as one of the coming golfers of the city. Charley Yates, of East Lake, is also among the kid golfers who will cause trouble.

YANKS GAIN ON SENATORS.

Boston, September 9.—The Yankees gained half a game on the idle Washington Senators by beating Boston, 5 to 4, today. The champions made their tying and winning runs in the ninth. Pinch Hitter Johnson, for Hoffman, was walked by Quinn. Gehrig batted for Ward and was safe on Ezzell's error. Scott bunted to Harris, who made a bad throw into the dirt at third base, all three men being safe. Then Joe Bush batted for Pennock and on his double to right, Johnson and McNally, running for Gehrig, scored. Quinn finished the inning without further scoring. A pass to Flagstead was the limit of Hoyt's vulnerability in the last of the ninth. In the fourth, Meusel hit the ball over the left field fence with none on base. Williams doubled once and singled three times, having a part in all of Boston's runs.

Tunney, Greb To Mix Tonight

Cleveland, September 9.—The 10-round contest between Harry Greb, middleweight titleholder, and Gene Tunney, light-heavyweight champion, twice postponed because of rain, will be decided in the Olympic arena tomorrow night, weather permitting, the promoters announced tonight.

The bout originally scheduled for Monday night, was sent back until tonight, but continued rain forced anpostponement.

Three hundred of Greb's admirers from Pittsburg returned home, but plan to come back to see their idol in action tomorrow night.

TWO CHAMPS 2ND ROUND WINNERS

BY M. D. GLEASON.

The second round of the Georgia State tennis tournament got under way nicely Tuesday, notwithstanding the heavy rains of Monday night, and some fast matches were played.

Jack Caldwell, southern champion, won the two matches he played, taking the first from William Armstrong, 6-0, 6-2, and the second from William Mansfield, 6-1, 6-2.

William Mansfield won his second match of the tournament from Joe Duckworth 6-3, 6-4, only to go down before Caldwell.

W. W. Quillian, former Pacific coast star won from one of Atlanta's most promising players, Jack Simpson, 6-3, 6-4.

Frank Owens, the present Georgia champion, took both of the matches he played, winning from Walter Cowart in a morning game, 6-0, 6-1, and defeating J. P. Mayfield in the afternoon game, 6-2, 6-3.

Nat Thornton won his match from W. S. Pearce, a new tennis player in Atlanta, 6-3, 9-7. Thornton also won from Britt Knox late in the afternoon, 6-3, 8-6.

Ed Van Winkle won from Harry Gault 6-2, 6-1.

TATE WINS SEMI-PRO TITLE

Tate, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—Tate won the semi-pro championship of Georgia here this afternoon from Waycross, the south Georgia champs, by a score of 12 to 0.

Goat Cochran, pitching for the winners, was in his usual form, this being his third straight shutout game. He has struck out 44 batters in his last three starts.

Thrasher sewed the game up in the first inning with a home run over left field fence with two men on. Cochran later knocked one out of the park for four cushions.

Tate will close her season Friday, playing the Chattanooga, Southern league club, here on that date.

McLaughlin Scores Victory As Bandrimer's Bad Throw Lets in Winning Counter

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

Izzy Bandrimer, stocky little third baseman for the Lookouts, handed one more game to the Crackers at Spiller field yesterday when he threw wild to first on Red Smith's grounder and his error let in a local tally to make the score 5 to 4, with two out, in the last of the tenth inning.

When Izzy threw the game away, he simply kept part of the crowd that saw the game started from being late to supper. He didn't bring any fast moving exhibition to a dramatic close. Izzy just threw away the ball game and everybody was happy, even Izzy, who produced a wide grin as he crossed to the "This way out" sign.

Such was the end of the first engagement of the four-game series between the Crackers and the Lookouts in the Crackers' last stand at home this season. Today will bring the season one game closer to the close. Events start at 3 'oclock.

The wildness of Hollis McLaughlin, twirling for the Crackers, let in one run in the first frame. The Crackers profited one run in the second inning by the same kind of performance by Sedgewick, who was yanked after two were down in the second in favor of Roe.

Lookouts Stage Rally.

That's the way they stood until the fourth, when the Crackers added three more runs, for what appeared to be an easy win, but the Chattanooga outfit came back in the fifth with one and tied the score with two more in the ninth. Then Mr. Bandrimer did his dirtiest and McLaughlin took credit for his twenty-second win this season. Roe gets credit for losing the game.

McLaughlin had John Anderson the home-run king of the Southern, on the run, striking him out three times out of five times they faced each other. These were only three of seven strikeouts McLaughlin made. Sedgewick managed to strike out one Cracker, but Roe couldn't whiff them.

In the first inning, with one man out, Bates walked and came home when Adolph Niehaus singled to deep centerfield. John Anderson also walked in this inning, but was stranded after gettnig to second on Niehaus' hit and taking third when Niehoff dropped Krehmeyer's throw to second as Smith was safe on a fielder's choice.

In the second the Crackers pushed one over when Krehmeyer singled to center field, advanced to second when Brock walked, went to third when McLaughlin was out at first and scored when Roe, taking up mound duty for the Lookouts, walked Good.

Good Bats Well.

Good, who got four hits out of five legal trips to the bat, really started the Crackers on their big inning, the fourth, after Brock was an infield out, Zoellers was on first on Bates' error and McLaughlin was on second on a base on balls and Bates' error. With these two on base Good cracked a double to center field that scored McLaughlin and sent Zoellers to third, from where he scored on a wild pitch. Good went to third on the wild pitch and trotted in when Burrus singled through first base for the third of his four hits out of six times at bat.

A beautifully executed double steal brought in the Lookouts' next counter, in the fifth inning. Roe struck out and Bandrimer had fouled out to Zoellers in left field when Bates singled to center field. Dixie Carroll followed with a single to right field that sent Bates to third. From these places, Bates pilfered the home plate and Carroll snatched second.

With the score 4 to 2 in favor of the Crackers as the Lookouts came to bat in their half of the ninth, Akers, second baseman, drew a pass to first and went to second when D. Anderson singled to center. Both runners advanced a base on Roe's only hit of the game, a single through the pitchers' box and the tying runs were scored a moment later when they romped home on Bandrimer's single to center field.

In the tenth Zoellers started the inning by walking. He went to second when Good bunted toward first and it went for a base hit. Zoellers, however, was out at third, Roe to Bandrimer, when he was forced by Paschal. Both runners advanced a base after the catch of Burrus' long fly to right field and Good came home with the winning run when Smith smashed to third and Bandrimer threw badly to first.

FEDERAL AGENTS BEGIN FALL DRIVE

With the arrest of seven persons Monday night and a score or more Tuesday on charges of violating the national prohibition act, Fred D. Dismuke, United States prohibition director for Georgia, has sounded a warning that the most intensive campaign in the history of his department will be inaugurated in Atlanta in an attempt to end the whisky traffic in this section.

"No one will be spared," Mr. Dismuke said Tuesday, "and the guns of this department will be leveled on all traders—manufacturers, peddlers and consumers alike.

"I intend to make war on frequenters of 'blind tiger' establishments and the department will exert every effort to apprehend the consumer as well as the producer in such places," declared Director Dismuke, who added that he not only knew the locations of petty bootleggers in Atlanta but that he had the addresses and telephone numbers of every establishment in the city catering to the fashionable trade.

Is Preparing List.

Using a list of telephone numbers said to contain the numbers of bootleggers accustomed to deliver supplies to homes of the fashionable and elite of Atlanta, Mr. Dismuke and his squad of deputies Monday night caused the arrest of seven persons who were charged with violation of the prohibition act. One was a woman. The list of numbers, it is stated, was found on a liquor dealer who was arrested a few days ago.

Those arrested, according to records in the prohibition offices, were Harry Dottenheim and Willie Chapman, 61 West Harris street; Earl Kite, Miss Bennett and A. A. Faber, 287 Deckner street; L. T. Gober and L. Anderson, 24 Carnegie Way.

The plan which caused the arrests, according to Mr. Dismuke, was that the agents, furnished with the telephone list, called certain numbers and gave their names as customers, requesting a speedy delivery. The arrests were made when the whisky was delivered. Four cars were taken in the raids.

Bell Hops Arrested.

The offices of Director Dismuke were a scene of busy activities Tuesday morning and afternoon. A half dozen or more bellboys from various hotels in Atlanta were hailed before the director after agents had visited the hotels and caught the negroes peddling corn whisky. Bottle after bottle of "evidence" lined the desk and cabinets in the prohibition director's office and officers were in and out all during the day, bringing with them violators of the law.

During the morning a 150-gallon copper still was raided by officers at 566 South Boulevard, and George Segal was arrested on a charge of violating the prohibition law after agents said they found 2,370 gallons of beer and 83 gallons of grape brandy on the premises. Those participating in the raid were Deputy Sheriffs Jim White, W. C. Morris, L. J. Brooks and Federal Prohibition Agent Lon Adair. Segal was placed under a bond of $2,000.

Other Arrests Expected.

Agents confiscated a touring car Tuesday morning at a garage located at 119 West Peachtree street, and found it to contain 64 gallons of corn whisky. John Chaney was arrested and held in connection with the raid and officers announced that other arrests will probably be made in the case.

Harry Chapman, young white man, also was arrested Tuesday, when agents said they found in his possession four pints of corn whisky. He was committed to jail to await a preliminary hearing.

BLEASE LEADS BYRNES IN SENATE RACE

race to succeed Representatives Byrnes. Thomas S. McMillan, speaker of the house of representatives, appears to have a commanding lead over Representative W. Turner Logan, seeking renomination in the first district. Both candidates live in Charleston.

GILLETT LEADS IN MASSACHUSETTS RACE.

Boston, September 9.—A vote nearly equal to the combined number of ballots cast for his two opponents for republican nomination for United States senator was polled by Speaker Frederick S. Gillett, of the national house of representatives, in 458 precincts out of 1,432 in the state, which had reported late tonight in today's primary. These included 100 Boston precincts and gave: Gillett 35,439, Louis A. Coolidge 20,866; Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger 16,469.

The same precincts gave for governor, republicans: Alvin T. Fuller, 41,805; James Jackson, 24,808.

James Lucey, the Northampton cobbler, who is known to the country as the friend of President Coolidge, was nominated for state representative in the first Hampshire district.

In the closing days of the republican senatorial campaign, Speaker Gillett was indorsed by William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, and by Governor Channing H. Cox. This aroused heated protests from Congressman Dallinger and Mr. Coolidge, who is treasurer of the United States Shoe Machinery corporation. Both asserted that Chairman Butler was attempting to dictate the party nomination. One of Speaker Gillett's warmest supporters was Frank W. Stearns, a close friend of President Coolidge.

Support of President.

In their campaign Gillett and Dallinger have made the issue as between each other largely one of support of the president. Dallinger had asserted that Louis Coolidge represented those who are opposed to prohibition, while Coolidge has presented himself as an independent candidate and had stressed support of the federal constitution.

On the democratic ballot there was no opposition to the nomination of Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, for governor and the renomination of United States Senator David I. Walsh.

There were sharp contests in the eighth district, where six candidates, including one woman, sought the republican nomination for the seat given up by Congressman Dallinger.

COUZENS IS SECOND IN MICHIGAN PRIMARY.

Detroit, September 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—United States Judge Arthur J. Tuttle was leading United States Senator James Couzens, his nearest competitor, for the republican nomination for the United States senatorship by a little more than 1,000 votes when returns from 403 of the 2,765 in the state had been received at 11:30 o'clock tonight. The vote stood: Tuttle, 26,306; Couzens, 25,272.

Governor Alex J. Groesbeck, republican candidate for renomination, continued to lead Herbert F. Baker, his nearest opponent.

Senator Couzens and Judge Tuttle were far ahead of the other two republican candidates for the senatorship. Daniel W. Tussing, credited with being the klan candidate, had a total of 3,627. Hal H. Smith, Detroit attorney, who recently withdrew in favor of Judge Tuttle, had a total of 3,421.

A record vote was cast in Michigan's state-wide primary election today, reports tonight indicated. Estimates placed it at from 600,000 to close to 1,000,000.

Keen interest in the United States senatorial and gubernational races in which the Ku Klux Klan and prohibition were issues, apparently overcame the handicap of disagreeable weather and drew a majority of the registered voters to the polls.

Senator James Couzens, seeking the senatorial nomination on the republican ticket, was opposed by Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, who had the support of the dry organizations, and Daniel W. Tussing, credited with being the klan candidate. The name of a fourth candidate, Hal H. Smith, appeared on the ballot, but he publicly announced his withdrawal and asked his friends to vote for Tuttle.

Seven Candidates.

In the republican gubernational race, Governor Groesbeck, running for a third term, was opposed by a field of six candidates. Two of them, James Hamilton and Frederick Perry, claimed klan support. Herbert F. Baker, former state senator; W. W. Potter, of the state public utilities commission; State Senator Charles R. Slight and Lieut. Gov. Thomas Read, were the others.

Two congressional candidates were nominated in the primary without opposition. They were Earl C. Michener, of Adrian, republican, second district, and Robert H. Clancy, thirteenth district, Detroit, democrat. The republican incumbents in the other 11 districts had opposition for the nomination.

Dean Mortimer E. Cooley, of the University of Michigan, was nominated for United States senator on the democratic ticket unopposed. A sticker campaign was started for Dale H. Souter to make him the democratic nominee for governor over Edward Frensdorf, the gubernatorial candidate indorsed by the democratic state central committee. The democratic candidates for congressional nominations were unopposed in all but two districts.

RANSDELL RUNNING AWAY FROM SENATE OPPONENT.

New Orleans, La., September 9.—Senator Joseph E. Ransdell was running away from Lee Thomas, mayor of Shreveport, in their contest for the senatorial nomination in today's primary on the face of early returns tonight. Of the 1,310 precincts in the state, 279, which had reported at 9:30 p. m., they gave Ransdall 25,359; Thomas, 13,457.

In the sixth congressional district where the only contest for a seat in the lower house of congress was on, George K. Favrot had a total of 7,922 to 3,208 for Bolivar Kemp, his opponent, for renomination, on returns from 85 of the 177 precincts in the district.

Louisiana democrats apparently ran true to form, south Louisiana voting for Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, seeking renomination, and north Louisiana supporting Lee Thomas, mayor of Shreveport.

A feature of the senatorial campaign was charges made by the Thomas forces that Senator Ransdell in a speech at Thibodeaux, a southern Louisiana city, had urged the people to send their children to parochial schools instead of public institutions. Senator Ransdell denied having made such a statement, claiming that the press report of the address was incorrect due to the omission of the word "not." The alleged statement of the senator was one of the principal points of attack by his opponent.

Only one seat in the lower house of congress was at stake, seven of the eight representatives having been without opposition for renomination. In the sixth district, Representative George K. Favrot, of Baton Rouge, was opposed for renomination by Bolivar Kemp, of Amite. The first 15 precincts reporting in this district gave Favrot 2,357, and Kemp, 1,089. The returns were from east and west Baton Rouge parishes, Favrot's home.

GIBSON RENOMINATED BY VERMONT G. O. P.

Montpelier, Vt., September 9.—Ernest W. Gibson, of Brattlesboro, representative in congress from the second Vermont district, was renominated by the republicans today. He led his opponent, John W. Gordon, by 3,500 votes on the face of returns from 103 of the 133 cities and towns in the district. There had been some opposition to Congressman Gibson because of his vote in favor of the soldiers' bonus bill after it had been vetoed by President Coolidge.

In the contest for the republican nomination for governor, Franklin S. Billings, the present lieutenant governor, was an easy winner over Roland E. Stevens, of White River Junction. Stevens, who toured the state on a specially constructed automobile truck, had made his campaign largely upon the platform of better roads and better law enforcement.

Returns from 223 cities and towns out of 248 in the state in the primary give: for republican governor, Billings, 26,678; Stevens, 10,632.

GOVERNOR HUNT LEADS IN ARIZONA.

Phoenix, Ariz., September 9.—Governor George W. P. Hunt was leading his two opponents by a margin of more than 2 to 1 in the race for the democratic nomination for governor in returns compiled here tonight from 96 of the state's 479 precincts.

The governor, an enemy of the Colorado river compact, one of the leading campaign issues, received from these precincts a total of 2,748 votes, while Sidney Osborn, anti-klan candidate, polled 1,139 and E. W. Samuell, indorsee of the klan, had 1,102.

G. O. P. KLAN CANDIDATES LEADING IN COLORADO.

Denver, Colo., September 9.—With 124 precincts of the state's 1,492 reported up to 11:15 o'clock tonight, Rice W. Means, of Denver, supported by the Ku Klux Klan, was leading in the republican primary race for the short term in the United States senate.

For the democratic nomination for United States senator, Morrison Shafroth was making a run-away race with Benjamin J. Hilliard, of Denver, on the face of returns from 69 precincts. Shafroth had 1,259 votes, while Hilliard had only 425.

Klan Candidate Leads.

Judge Clarence J. Morley, of Denver, the Ku Klux Klan candidate for governor, was leading Robert F. Rockwell, of Paonia, on the face of returns from 131 precincts. Morley had 6,282 votes to 5,231 for Rockwell. Earl Cooley, of Trinidad, who made a fight on the klan, had only 372 votes and was running a poor third.

A heavy vote was cast in Denver in today's primary, while the total throughout the state was lighter, according to indications when the polls closed. Because of the presence of the Ku Klux Klan issue in the republican party contests, the ballots cast for the republican candidates were heavier than those cast for the democratic candidates.

Lawrence C. Phipps, republican, was unanimously renominated to succeed himself in the United States senate. Alva B. Adams, United States senator now serving out the unexpired term of Senator Nicholson, was chosen as the democratic standard bearer for the contest for Senator Phipps' seat without contest.

Three Men in Race.

For the seat made vacant by Senator Nicholson's death, the republicans had three candidates—Charles J. Moynihan, of Montrose; Charles W. Waterman, of Denver, and Rice W. Means, of Denver. Means was supported by the Ku Klux Klan. Morrison Shaforth and Benjamin C. Hilliard, of Denver, were the democratic candidates for the same office.

Governor W. E. Sweet, democratic incumbent, had no opposition in his own party for renomination. The klan issue entered into the republican gubernatorial contest. Clarence J. Morley, a district judge, of Denver, had the support of the Ku Klux Klan. Earl Cooley, of Trinidad, opposed the klan vigorously during his campaign, while Robert F. Rockwell, of Paonia, the third republican candidate for governor, declared the klan was not an issue in this fall's campaign and refused to "be drawn into any controversy over the merits or demerits of such an organization."

EFFORT TO NAME KLAN DEFEATED IN DELAWARE.

Dover, Del., September 9.—After nominating candidates for United States senator, congress, governor and other state offices, the democratic state convention today engaged in a spirited discussion over adoption of the platform as drafted by the state committee containing a plank denouncing the Ku Klux Klan.

The convention resolutions committee struck out specific reference to the klan and a motion was made to restore it, precipitating a debate which lasted several hours. The motion finally was defeated and the platform adopted, the objectionable plank having been changed to read as follows:

"We condemn all organizations which raise the question of racial or religious prejudice or attempt to make race or religious belief tests of citizenship or fitness for public office."

James M. Tunnel, of Georgetown, Sussex county, was named as the party's candidate for United States senator and Joseph Bancroft, of Wilmington, for governor. Congressman William H. Boyce, Kent county, was renominated for representative in congress.

RUEBUSH WILL OPPOSE HARRISON IN VIRGINIA.

Luray, Va., September 9.—Professor J. H. Ruebush, of Dayton, Rockingham county, Va., business manager of a collegiate institute, was named to oppose Representative Thomas W. Harrison, democrat, in the seventh district congressional race this year, by a district republican convention held here today.

The national park service is giving away buffaloes to municipalities and other public organizations that will pay for the cost of capture and transportation from Yellowstone park.

ALLEGED SWINDLER IS ARRESTED HERE BY FEDERAL AGENTS

After practicing a clever scheme to victimlize, it is said, subscribers of the State Market Bulletin, whereby he obtained money from persons advertising in the Bulletin for articles which he claimed he could provide, L. L. Braswell was arrested Tuesday by United States postal inspectors here on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

The scheme of Brasswell's, according to inspectors who made the arrest, was to answer advertisements in the Bulletin and quote ridiculously low prices, requesting the advertiser to send the money and he would furnish the article, signing his name as "Alex Wooley."

After the money was received, "Wooley" converted it to his own purposes and customers never heard from him again, it is said. He was taken into custody Tuesday when he called at the postoffice for mail containing money for a Jersey cow and a pumpkin vine.

During the last three years, the enrollment of the law school of the University of Wisconsin has increased 33 per cent.

Lovely Al Fresco Buffet Supper Honors Poole-King Wedding Party

The beautiful al fresco buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. George W. Woodruff entertained last evening at their home on Oakdale road was a delightful compliment to Miss Frances Poole, whose marriage to Clyde King, Jr., will be an outstanding social event of September 17.

A spirit of fairyland was given to the lovely lawn, where supper was served, by soft lights strung around, shaded with pink paper shades in the shape of roses.

The table was placed on the terrace and covered with an exquisite lace cloth. A graceful silver basket was beautifully arranged with pink roses and lilies as a centerpiece and unshaded pink tapers burned in four silver candleholders.

The favors, suggestive of weddings, were attractively arranged around the lovely centerpiece and the mints and candies carried out the color scheme of pink and white.

The guests included only the members of the Poole-King wedding party.

The garden where the guests assembled was effectively decorated with electric lights and Japanese lanterns.

SLAMS AND SALAAMS

By Louise Dooly

PERHAPS you have a dog which you have to lock in the cellar when the flapper in your home has her steady come to see her, and he brings his saxaphone.

You put Rollo in the cellar, not to keep him from howling. You know he howls on, because even in the cellar Rollo can hear the saxophone. But you can't hear Rollo for the nearer moan of that noble instrument which somebody has called, more or less aptly, the wail of the young moron.

Now we should never lock up the dog. His howl is at least a natural sound.

Speaking of Music.

The person who likes jazz and the person who doesn't, are in the same attitude towards each other as the motorist and the pedestrian, and this attitude is interchangeable. It just depends on which you are for the time being.

But just as the most violent anti-motorist is transformed into a juggernaut of insolence, steam-rolling pedestrian by the mere accident of being elevated into a Rolls-Royce, even temporarily; so the best anaesthetic for the anti-jazz mania is dancing to jazz.

Prize Horrors.

There are people who will turn on a jazz record or play, it, however, when there is no chance to dance—no motive in the jazz, but the jazz itself.

We know nothing worse, although there are a few things as bad.

The dog that is put in the cellar to save your nerves—not the dog's—feels as any of us do, for instance, when we hear our pet aversion sing in the choir. Maybe it's the soprano; maybe the tenor, or even the baritone; seldom the contralto, because in the average church choir, the contralto is visible, but scarcely audible.

All of us have wished at times in our lives that the congregation, seeing our facial expression (unlike the dog, we have cultivated certain inhibitions, and we can refrain under church circumstances from howling) would put us in the cellar. But it isn't done. The congregation, too, has inhibitions.

We had a dog once, and at the same time we were taking singing lessons. Jip insisted on listening to the practice. He didn't have to. He had lots of grounds outside to wander about it—and howl, if he wanted to.

But he'd bolt upright on a chair near the piano, where we could see him out of the corner of our eye. He didn't howl, but the longer we'd vocalize, the louder and wider he would yawn, and his expression of perfect boredom would have made Galli-Curci laugh.

We always comforted ourself with the belief that he was merely lollying us, (he was a very intelligent dog) because he didn't have to listen, but he would.

• • • •

Our New Cult.

WE have finally learned how not to listen to music when we don't want to hear it, and we believe our system when we give it out, will be a great boon to two large groups.

First, to those who love music, and want to cultivate an aural aloofness to horrors with which they may have to come in contact in the name of music.

And second, to those who don't love music, but have at times, for the sake of society, to be within reach of it.

We are not going to explain our system here, because it is to be a part of our new cult we are working out; a feature, in fact, of the advertising material for the cult itself.

We will say this much, however; it is something like that Hindu philosophy which Dhan Gopal Mukerji cites about the time when the Holy One of Benares had to have a carbuncle cut off his neck. The holy one refused to take an anaesthetic, but talked philosophy while the operation proceeded.

"Did you feel any pain?" he was asked when the instrument of torture had done its work.

"How could I?" he answered with large repbsefulness. "I was absent from that part of the universe where you were working. I was present in this part, where I discussed philosophy."

Do you begin to get it?

We have tried out our system (and it works) on ourselves and one customer. Or perhaps disciple would sound less commercial. And of course in our cult, commercialism is to have no part, although no properly conducted cult can live on air. But we think endowments will carry an appropriate dignity and also, we hope, the system.

• • • •

Depends on Whose Dog.

TO return to that dog of ours: There is nothing, we all admit, more tiresome than other people's talk about the smartness of their dogs (unless it is the smartness of their children).

But our dog was really one of the smartest animals we ever saw.

We have a friend who says that his dog, which smokes a pipe, pushes a chair up to the mantel, climbs on it to reach the tobacco and matches, and fills and lights his own.

But—his story is still in the same state as is "Margery's," the spirit medium who has made several claims to be on intimate terms with the departed. But when the Scientific American surrounds her seances with the scientific conditions, the anticipated communications with the aforesaid intimates in another world do not consmute.

And we have never seen Fido climb up on the chair get the fixin's and light up.

Like the Scientific American, which does not deny Margery's position in the spirit smart sets, but requires only to see their calling cards, we need something more than the odor of tobacco on Fido to prove to us that he is as smart as was our Jip.

Brims Down.

MEN have always been slaves to fashion.

The Prince of Wales turned his hat brim down all 'round the other day at the races, and before the great crowd had dispersed, every man among the thousands of good Americans who saw him had done likewise, if he had a brim that would turn down.

Men have always been like that.

The very day that Wales turned his hat brim down, we were rambling for the tenth time or so through Thackeray's "Henry Esmond."

Now Thackeray did a good deal of research about the beaux of King James' time and King William's before he wrote that biology of Colonel Esmond, and he puts these words into the mouth of his hero:

"Lord Castlewood was fond of the parade of dress—and spent a tenth part of his day in the brushing of his teeth and the oiling of his hair—which he did not like to conceal under a periwig, such as almost everybody of that time wore. ('We,' says Colonel Esmond of himself, 'have the liberty of our hair back now, but powder and pomatum with it. When, I wonder, will these monstrous poll-taxes of our age be withdrawn, and men allowed to carry their colours, black, red, or gray, as Nature made them?')"

• • • •

And Just See Here!

SPEAKING of Henry Esmond, what is this other thing we find, even Thackeray having the temerity to trace back as far as the reign of William and Mary, and to put it into the mouth of Colonel Esmond?

"Much of the quarrels and hatred which arise between married people come, in my own mind, from the husband's rage and revolt at discovering that his wife who is churchsworn to honor and obey him, is his superior, and that he, and not she ought to be the subordinate of the twain. If it be painful for a woman to find herself mated to a boor—it is worse still for the man, when in his dim comprehension the idea dawns that his slave and drudge yonder, is, in truth, his superior—that she can think a thousand things beyond the power of his muddled brains."

Can it be that the present is not, after all, the women's A. D. 1492?

RAILROAD MAN KEEPS FIT

Before Taking Black-Draught Says "Could Hardly Work at All"—Can Now Work With Ease.

Charleston, Ill.—"I have been a believer in Black-Draught since the early '80's when I was down and out and it did much for me after other remedies had failed," says Mr. Charles E. Parker, of this city. "I was a sick man—could hardly go to work at all. I had severe throbbing headaches, dizzy spells, indigestion, tightness in my chest and shortness of breath.

"My back ached and I couldn't stay in bed with any ease. Any way I turned I was in misery.

"I tried different remedies till I heard of Black-Draught. I took a couple of good big doses of Black-Draught and saw a big change. I was better—I ate better and slept better. I kept it up till I took a package. I was then able to go back to my work. I am a railroader and my work is hard.

"I have kept myself fit by taking Black-Draught and though I'm 52 years old I can do my work with ease right along with younger men. I am never without Black-Draught."

There's lots of truth in the old saying that you are "as young as you feel," but you cannot feel young if you suffer from any ailment of the body. Many common ailments are caused by poisons in the system, which can be driven out by a good dose of

Annie Crusoe Club To Celebrate Tenth Anniversary on Thursday

Mrs. Clarence W. Heery, president of the Annie Crusoe club, which will celebrate its 10th birthday at the club home on Thursday by keeping "open house."

The tenth anniversary of the Annie Crusoe club will be celebrated Thursday, September 11, from 4 to 9, at the club home, 125 Washington street. This is an annual event and is always looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure by those who are interested in this noble adjunct of church work.

The Annie Crusoe club is a boarding home for young women, and was founded in 1914 by Mrs. R. D. (Annie) Crusoe, who was the organizer and at that time the beloved teacher of the Young Woman's Bible class of the Central Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Crusoe was aided in her undertaking by the members of her class and although on account of ill health she was forced to resign as its active head, the club is still operated under the same plan that was conceived by her remarkable executive ability.

The board of managers is selected from the members of the class and the club is sponsored by its entire membership.

Not a Charitable Institution.

The Annie Crusoe club is not a charitable institution, but the rates are reasonable enough to come within the limits of a very modest salary, and the girls who make it their home are provided with home-like comforts and surrounded with Christian influences.

The club is entirely self-supporting and is so well managed it has never been involved in financial difficulties.

Last year was one of the most eventful years in the club's history as it was at that time the club was able, through the magnanimous gift of Mrs. Mary V. Eagan, to purchase and move into its own home, 125 Washington street.

From its inception it had been the dream of its founder and managers for the Annie Crusoe club to occupy a home of its own, and for this purpose a building fund had been maintained for many years to which all money donation and surplus cash had been placed.

In 1923 this fund had $5,550 to its credit when the plans for a new home were suddenly realized by Mrs. Eagan's most generous gift. The club has been in its new home for over a year and has been remarkably successful in its new venture.

The occasion Thursday will be an "open-house" party and all who are interested in the club are invited to call. The home will open for inspection and the board of managers of the club and the officers and chairmen of the Young Woman's Bible class will be on hand to extend a cordial welcome.

Officers of Club.

The officers of the Annie Crusoe club are: Mrs. R. D. Crusoe, honorary president; Mrs. C. W. Heery, president; Miss Alma Hodnett, vice president; Mrs. W. L. McCalley, Jr., secretary; Mrs. R. C. Thompson, treasurer. Other officers are Mrs. G. F. Nicolassen, Mrs. J. G. Oglesby, Jr., Miss Leona Stillman, Mrs. J. S. Dickert, Mrs. Marion Jackson, Mrs. J. W. West and Mrs. Hugh Bancker.

Honorary officers are Miss Dallas Dumas, Miss Maude Ashmore, Miss Lucile Noland. The officers of the Young Women's Bible class are Mrs. C. W. Heery, president; Miss Alma Henderson, secretary; Mrs. Bertha Mauldin, treasurer; E. Elizabeth Sawtell, corresponding secretary.

An attractive musical program will be rendered by Miss Clara Harden, Miss Bertha Sims, Misses Spencer and Ruthmary McGauhey.

GEORGIA JAILS SHOW GREAT IMPROVEMENT

Conditions in Georgia jails have shown so much improvement in recent years that this state has drawn the attention of the American Prison association, according to Hugh N. Fuller, of the Georgia welfare department, who has just returned to Atlanta after attending the fifty-fourth annual congress of the association in Salt Lake City.

Georgia, along with New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, received honorable mention for the improvement in jail conditions, Mr. Fuller said.

Mr. Fuller stated that while many technical phases of prison work were discussed at the conference he was especially gratified to notice how the 300 prison and institutional experts who attended laid most stress upon the necessity of proper moral and religious training in the home as the best way to decrease crime and moral delinquency. These experts, he said, came from the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Phillipines and devoted a full week to the discussion of their problems.

While away from Georgia, Mr. Fuller inspected a number of jails in western cities, including the famous "municipal jail" at St. Louis. This has frequently been used as a model in modern jail construction and maintenance and, said Mr. Fuller, though eleven years old it is still almost as clean and sanitary as a hospital. There is a public library branch in the jail and a school for prisoners will shortly begin under direction of the St. Louis board of education.

The Duncan youth was rushed to Grady hospital in an ambulance and was treated for several lacerations about the head and right arm. It was at first feared that the boy's skull was fractured.

The condition of W. W. James, 74, of 163 Hunnicutt street, whose skull was fractured in a collision between two automobiles at Spring and Alexander streets Monday night, was reported to be grave Tuesday night by surgeons at Grady hospital.

My Skin

Is due to a super-clay

By Edna Wallace Hopper

After 40 years in the limelight—after 35 years as a stage star—I still look like a girl of 19. The thousands who see me daily know that, and wonder how this came about.

The chief reason lies in a new-type clay. I started years ago with the old-type clays, crude and muddy, which so many still employ. They brought me amazing results. But I have kept in touch with scientific progress, and in 20 years it has brought me a clay which gives multiplied results.

Today I have what experts call the last word in facial clay. It is white, refined and dainty. And it embodies many new discoveries. Until I obtained this, I never knew one-tenth what clay could do.

Now I am supplying this clay to others. I call it my White Youth Clay. All druggists and toilet counters have it—exactly the clay I use. And I am stating its results to girls who want more beauty and to women who want youth.

My White Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It draws out the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights. Many women seem to drop ten years with one application.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. No girl or woman who once enjoys its results will ever go without it.

I want you to know what it does. My good fortune obtained it for me. I was famous as a beauty, so every expert sought to give the the greatest aids to beauty. Now I wish to bring like benefits to millions.

Write me for my Beauty Book and I'll send with it something else to please you.

Parties Given for Prince

:: Everywhere Wales Goes, Picturesque Tents Bloom ::

Recall Sawdust Ring Days

BY THE SAUNTERER.

(Copyright, 1924, by John Dille. Reproduction Prohibited.)

Syosset, L. I., September 9.—Well, the Prince of Wales is getting a run for his money, in the manner of speaking, and in spite or because of my rather intimate contact with the parties given for him thus far down in these parts, I will not be surprised at any eventuality.

The Westbury set is now being called the circus set by the wags of Long Island, though not for the same reason that made the name appropriate for the colony at Newport in the gay old days. At Westbury there is the flavor of the sawdust ring and the tinsel, simply because all the Long Island hostesses who live in the glorified farm houses are erecting tents whenever they gave parties for the prince in order to provide ample room for the frolic. For the dance the Ambrose Clarks gave for King Edward's son and heir, two tents were erected, but each was quite as large, though more picturesque, than any seen in the tent colony, when the circus strikes the town.

Only 33 at Dinner.

Only about 33 were invited to attend the prefatory dinner given by the Clarks. The table was placed in a wing of the house and decorated with tea roses and with some of the silver cups that have been won by the host in steeplechase races. Ambrose knows exactly how to entertain. He is one of the most sociable of the sons of the late Alfred Corning Clark, the sewing machine magnate, whose widow, late in life, married Bishop Potter, making her home in a mansion on Riverside drive and wearing a bona fide bonnet with strings as a symbol of her conservatism, until the day of her death.

The residence of the Clarks', approached by a road extending over a mile and a half from the public road, is a snowwhite colonial farmhouse with high pillars though only two stories high. A third being considered most pretentious and plebeian. Those invited to meet the prince at their delightful party included Mrs. J. Averell Clark, and Mrs. Julian Peabody, the two sports-loving daughters of the Tom Hitchcocks, Mrs. H. Penn Smith, Mrs. Robert L. Gerry and Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, the daughters of the late E. W. Harriman, and Mrs. Devie Milburn and Mrs. Skeddy von Stade, daughters of the Charles Steelson, whose estate at Westbury is a colony of famous windmills serving as a landmark.

Eye Patch Given Prince.

At dinner two of the liveliest guests were Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien and Ellin Mackay and one of the handsomest of the matrons at the table, was Mrs. Louise E. Stoddard and Lord and Lady Mountbatten, also attended. During the progress of the Lucullian repast, the prince's eye, hurt by the clot of mud thrown up in the polo field, began to pain him. There was a hurry and scurry to get an eye-cover. This accomplished, it was placed over the royal orb, and during the rest of the evening the black patch was an accessory of his evening clothes, instead of a monocle such as the stage Englishmen wear. He danced continuously, and so intimate is he with the Long Islanders, that many cut in when he had a belle for a partner.

Everyone flocked around Mrs. J. Henry Alexandre, when she made her appearance, to congratulate her on the success of the brilliant little party she gave for the prince at her farmhouse at Sandspoint, on Sunday night. There were, in addition, congratulations for Mrs. Robert L. Bacon, relative to the dinner-dance she gave for his royal highness. Mrs. George Whitney, the only daughter of the late Ambassador Robert Bacon, was also at this fete of the Clarks and there was a bevy of married belles who are far more interesting and fascinating than debbies or flappers could be.

Of course, Mrs. G. Maurice Heckscher and her blue eyes and her deep dimples were not seen at this party, for her husband is now in mourning for his mother, Mrs. August Heckscher. This was a pity, for the Heckschers live not far from the Clark estate, though luckily, they were not tantalized by being able to hear the saxophone music.

No Chance for Uninvited.

There was no chance for the uninvited to attend the dance given by Ambrose and his bright little wife, as there had been at Mr. Mackay's electrical fete, for the party was so small and the host and hostess knew every person there. Not many jewels were worn by the matrons present but the scene in the tents was fascinating for they were lighted by red lanterns which were hung from the branches of decorative foliage.

Mrs. August Belmont, at some of the parties, is springing a surprise on her dear friends by wearing snowwhite trimmed with much fluttering white ostrich. One of her frocks for the royal festivities has a feather fringe on the dress Nathalia Willard has worn at Newport. Mrs. William G. Loew, in pistache chiffon, has been regal at many of the dances, for she carries herself erect. The winter velvets are rarely worn by the fashionables at this time of the year and the fluttering fabrics really add to the gayety of the scene. Over and over again, the prince is seeing not only the same faces but on many successive occasions, the same frocks, for the Long Island ladies are so independent that when they take a fancy to a Parisian creation, they wear it again and again, until it is worn out.

The prince, so far as the much discussed question of his appetite is concerned, may enjoy his dinner, but at midnight suppers he usually refuses everything but a cup of black coffee. At the supper-parties he often takes out his trusty fountain pen and when his companions give him bits if interesting and surprising information he makes notes. Will he ever be the author of a book of memoirs in which he will describe the glories of his visit and refer to those hostesses who, like the crowds at Belmont park, have been "a bit willing?"

JOYS OF MOTHERHOOD

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brings Joy to Homes by Removing Cause of Trouble

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I was working after I got married and the young lady who worked next to me asked me if I had any intentions of having a child. I told her I would be the happiest woman on earth if I could become a mother, but I always had terrible cramps, backaches and headaches. She then told me of a woman she knows who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the same troubles and it helped her greatly. I took about a half bottle and found that the following month I did not suffer any pain, so I kept on taking it. I have a wonderful baby boy six months old and he is as strong and fat as any one could wish a baby to be. I still take the Vegetable Compound regularly because I have looked fine all the time and felt fine and my mother told me that was the reason. I will be glad to have you publish my testimonial with my name and address." — Mrs. EDWARD WERBECK, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Free From Old Trouble

Auburn, Me.—"I suffered with inward weakness for ten years and had doctored all this long time but never got any help. One day I saw my sister and she told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I went and got me a bottle of it. I took two bottles and a half and I was just as free from my old troubles as I could be. I had only one child and I was afraid that I could never have any more, for I had been told that I never could have a living child for I was not strong enough to carry one. But they were mistaken and I had a nice baby boy and now I have five children. I can't praise your medicine enough. My youngest sister has taken it, too, and praises it." — Mrs. G. L. WISWELL, 43 Mechanics Row, Auburn, Maine.

These cases are similar to many others reported to us. It is well for women to carefully consider such statements and to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. It may bring great joy to your home.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 per cent of these replies are "Yes."

That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This goes to prove that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure-all—can and does do good work. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a medicine for women. For sale by druggists everywhere.

The Luxury of Love

XXI.—A STOLEN DAY.

"Oh, Mary, you belong to me." Bruce Gillian's words rang through Mary's head as she looked up at him. Without realizing it, she noted the changes in him; he was thinner, and there were shadows beneath his eyes that told of suffering. His square jaw had a set look, as if he had determined to handle his own life despite the caprices of Fate. And he was stamped as she was, by the great love that surged through them both, the desire for each other that dwarfed every other emotion by its own intensity.

"I know that, Bruce," she said softly. "I do belong to you."

"Yet you married Cavendish," he answered. "Oh, I realize that you didn't want to do it, my dear; I know that you'd never have become his wife if you hadn't felt that it was the right thing to do. And yet, what are we to do? I can't go on through life without you, Mary; you're all that makes life worth while. As soon as I could travel I came back here, meaning to look you up at once, but I found that I must go to Alaska at once, to protect my interests there. As O'Brien told you, I'm a poor man, but if when the thing I'm working on now goes through I'll be a rich one. I tried this morning to reach you, and couldn't, so I wrote you a note! I sent it to you at the Atwoods', so no doubt it will be forwarded to you later. In it I told you all the truth. Oh, Mary, must I give you up now?"

Her great eyes filled with tears.

"I can ask Nigel to release me," she answered slowly. "Perhaps he'd be willing to do that. He's very proud, though, and of course the news of our marriage has attracted so much attention, caused so much comment—and Nigel is so much in the public eye just now, since his father's death—I don't know just what he'll do. But I'll ask him. He wanted me to join him in England as soon as I felt able to travel; I'll plan to go at once, and then—if only he is willing to release me—"

The thought was like strong wine. To be free, free to marry Bruce, and go with him to the ends of the earth—what more could she ask?

"Will he be likely to do that?" asked Bruce. "Is he the type of man who'd understand? No doubt he'll think me an awful cad for proposing to Camilla; he may think you'd be better off without me."

"I can make him see how that happened, I'm sure. But I don't know what he's likely to do. You see, I met him so short a time before I became engaged to him; it was a case of love at first sight with him, he says; he had seen me several times before we met, and says he'd torn a picture of me out of one of the newspapers and carried it around with him for nearly a month before we met at Camilla's. But I hardly know him; I hardly feel married to him, as far as that goes. We were married, and I promptly fainted away and was rushed off with a nurse; I didn't see Nigel again till the next day, just before he sailed for England. So I'm no judge of what he'll say or do.

"Then we can't do anything but wait. Oh, but Mary—couldn't we have this one day together? Couldn't we go away to some quiet little corner where we wouldn't see anyone we knew, and just sit and talk?"

"I don't believe there's a quiet little corner within hundreds of miles of New York," she answered, with a tender little smile for his boyishness.

"Then we'll do the next best thing—go to a very noisy one, and find a lone corner for ourselves. Let's go to one of the beaches near here; there'll be a crowd, but not a crowd we know. And we can go way off to one end of it, and be quite alone. Oh, Mary, say you'll go!"

"I'd go anywhere in the world with you," she answered, eagerly. "But at a beach I'd need a bathing suit—and I don't want to go home and get one."

"We'll rent suits. We'll do the things we'd have to do if you were married to me right now and we were going on our honeymoon, on the amount of money I have at present. You can play at being poor with me."

"Play at it," laughed Mary deliciously, as she stepped into the taxi that he hailed. "My dear, I'm poor myself; it's no new game for me."

Within the hour they were at Long Beach, after traveling down Long Island in a lazily moving train, that stopped frequently to take on family parties—sweet, motherly looking women who shepherded flocks of eager, sun-burned children laden with baskets of luncheon and bathing suits. A cherubic-looking infant sat on Mary's lap the last part of the way, and she held him close with yearning arms. If only she and Bruce were married and this adorable youngster belonged to them! She glanced up at him shyly; the devoted expression in his eyes made her blush and turn away, sure that he had read her thoughts.

Long Beach was crowded indeed; a favorite haunt of "Follies" girls, actresses, singers, all the playtime world, the beach and the miles of the promenade that swept past the huge hotels and the low wooden bathhouses were colorful with gaily costumed young creatures whose beauty rivaled Mary's own.

"What a mob!" ejaculated Gillian, pausing to survey it.

Whereupon old Dame Fate must have cackled aloud in mirth.

Citizens and Southern Bank Announces Two Promotions

The Citizens and Southern bank announced Tuesday the election of W. R. DeLoach as assistant cashier, and W. Hardin Goodman as assistant cashier and assistant trust officer, respectively, of the Atlanta office. Both appointments are promotions. Mr. DeLoach has been manager of the credit department and Mr. Goodman has been in the trust department.

Mr. DeLoach has been with the Citizens and Southern bank since 1919, starting in the loan and discount department and working his way through various departments until he was placed in charge of the credit department in July, 1923. He is recognized as one of the foremost credit specialists of the south, and takes a ripened experience to his new duties as an active assistant cashier.

Mr. Goodman also has been with the Citizens and Southern bank since 1919. After graduating from the University of Tennessee and the Atlanta Law school, he started his banking career with the First National bank at Statesville, N. C. He was later with the Union National bank at Knoxville, and came to the Citizens and Southern after having served with the United States navy during the war. He has been with the trust department of the Citizens and Southern bank since that department was organized and is thoroughly familiar with every phase of trust business, officials point out.

TRIUMPH FOR KLAN IN MAINE RESULTS

Augusta, Maine, September 9.—The victory of the republican forces in yesterday's gubernatorial election in this state was distinctly a triumph for the Ku Klux Klan, William R. Pattangall, the defeated democratic candidate, declared in a statement at his home here today.

"We are temporarily defeated by a combination of religious intolerance and blind partisanship that Maine will not long endure—the rule of the klan—and the republican organization will find it a difficult partner with which to do business," Mr. Pattangall said.

The democratic candidate said he was gratified to have received a vote 50 per cent larger than any previously given to a democratic candidate for governor of Maine.

FERNALD'S PLURALITY PASSES 50,000 MARK.

Portland, Maine, September 9.—The plurality by which United States Senator Bert M. Fernald, republican, was reelected yesterday over Fulton J. Redman, passed the 50,000 mark today with the tabulation of additional unofficial returns. With only a score of small towns and plantations to be heard from the totals stood: Fernald 147,222; Redman 97,059.

The plurality of State Senator Ralph O. Brewster, republican, elected governor over William R. Pattangall, reached 36,000 with today's returns.

The totals were: Brewster, 143,926; Pattangall, 107,908.

The total vote was the largest in the history of the state. The total of 251,834 for governor was nearly 46,000 more than the previous high record at the gubernatorial election of 1920. The total vote for United States senator was 244,281.

BOTH PARTIES RAP KLAN IN MISSOURI

Jefferson City, Mo., September 9.—The democratic state platform, carrying the expression against the Ku Klux Klan which was made by John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, in his seagirt, N. J., address, was unanimously adopted by the state platform convention here tonight. The platform was adopted immediately upon its being reported to the full convention by a sub-committee.

The Davis declaration contained in the platform follows:

"If any organization, no matter what it chooses to be called, whether the Ku Klux Klan or by any other name, raises the standard of racial and religious prejudice or attempts to make racial or religious beliefs the tests of fitness for public office, it does violence to the spirit of American institutions and must be condemned by all those who believe in American ideals."

Jefferson City, Mo., September 9. The Ku Klux Klan is directly opposed in the platform unanimously adopted here tonight by the republican state platform convention. After declaring no sympathy for any organization that attempts to deny or abridge rights guaranteed under the constitution the plank aimed at the klan says: "We oppose the Ku Klux Klan because it denies to American citizens the full exercise of these sacred rights and tends to arouse racial and religious hatreds."

The platform is less than nine hundred words in length and contains fourteen sections. Nearly one hundred words are devoted to the klan.

FORMOSA'S CAPITAL SWEPT BY TYPHOON WITH BIG DAMAGE

The toll of the typhoon, according to the dispatch, is:

Eighteen dead.

Three hundred seriously injured.

Thirty-six hundred houses destroyed.

Sixty vessels sunk in the harbor.

Hundreds of bridges demolished.

Aged Georgia Woman Will Be Laid To Rest In Baldwin County

Funeral services for Mrs. Mabel Holloway, mother of J. L. and E. W. Holloway, both of Atlanta, who died Monday at the home of her son, A. H. Holloway, of St. Petersburg, Fla., will be held today in Milledgeville, Ga., with interment in the Milledgeville cemetery.

Mrs. Holloway, who was 60 years old, was born in Milledgeville and resided there until moving to Atlanta about 10 years ago. She lived here until two years ago when she took up her residence with a son at St. Petersburg. She was a member of the first Presbyterian church of Milledgeville.

She is survived by four sons, J. L. and E. W. Holloway, both prominently identified with the Seaboard Air Line railway; C. H. Holloway, of Knoxville, Tenn., and A. D. Holloway, of St. Petersburg, and a daughter, Miss Pauline Holloway, of Milledgeville.

COLLECTOR ROSE EXPLAINS CHANGES IN JEWELRY TAX

In order to clarify charges embodied in the 1924 revenue act, affecting the collection of tax on jewelry, with special reference to silverware, J. T. Rose, collector of internal revenue for Georgia, Tuesday issued the following explanatory statement:

Concerning the $30 exemption under section 604, a dozen knives sold at one time is not one article but twelve separate articles; the same line of reasoning applies in the case of a toilet set or a chest of silver, the component parts of which would be regarded as separate articles; a silver cream and sugar set, consisting of pitcher, bowl, sugar tongs and tray, is considered as four articles. However, where articles are sold in a well established unit, such as a set of shirt studs, pair of earrings, or a pair of cuff buttons, salt and pepper or other condiment receptacles mounted on a single stand, such combinations were sold at a single price and as a single unit are held to be single articles for the purpose of the tax.

The sale in groups of articles commonly the subject of individual sales does not create a liability to the tax by reason of the fact that the price of the group is in excess of the exemption allowed in regard to the minimum taxable sales price of the specific individual articles in such group.

The sale of articles in a group which are usually sold singly would not be rendered taxable merely because the price of the group exceeded $30 (or $60 in the case of watches) when the individual price of any single articles does not exceed such sum. However, in the case of the sale of a set, such as a chest of silver where the sales price of an individual part of such set, if sold separately, would exceed $30, the tax attaches to the price ascribed to the sale of such articles and not to the sales price of the entire chest of silver.

As an example, a dozen sterling knives of standard pattern, which ordinarily are sold by the dealer for $3 each, are sold for $36 as a single sale. This would not constitute a taxable sale.

MITCHELL NAMED ARMY ASSOCIATION HEAD IN ATLANTA

Lieutenant Colonel Otey B. Mitchell, of the officers' reserve corps, was elected to succeed Eugene B. The association was organized for the purpose of stimulating interest in national defense among men definitely connected with some branch of the army, and has a membership in this city of about 175.

Atlanta Contractors Form Branch Association Here

First steps in the perfection of an organization of one of the most active business interests in the south were taken Tuesday at the Piedmont hotel when the Georgia branch of the Associated General Contractors of America was formed with 17 leading Atlanta construction companies as a nucleus. The Georgia branch is to be composed of four groups of contractors, building, highway, railroad and public works contractors. The first group of building contractors elected officers and completed a body which will become state-wide in its scope.

Officers elected at the session of the building contractors were Otis A. Barge, Barge-Thompson Construction company, president; A. J. Krebs, A. J. Krebs company, vice president; S. N. Hodges, Griffin-Hodges company, treasurer, and C. D. Crockett, A. K. Adams Construction company, secretary.

At the first meeting an address was delivered by W. I. Colson, of Washington, D. C., field secretary of the Associated General Contractors of America, who outlined plans for bringing Georgia into the national body.

Praises Atlanta Men.

"I don't think I ever met a more representative group of real business men than I have found here in Georgia in the contracting and construction business," Mr. Colson said. "The ability and resourcefulness of these men is reflected in the numerous new buildings I have seen in all parts of Atlanta during my stay. Atlanta and Georgia are in the forefront in new construction and the Georgia branch of the Associated General Contractors of America is sure to become one of our most active and influential groups."

Mr. Colson said the slogan of his association is "Skill, Integrity and Responsibility," and said that only contractors who can sustain this slogan with a high grade of work can become affiliated with its body.

"Through our Georgia branch we hope to put the construction business upon the highest possible standard and establish a reputation for 100 per cent efficiency in the character of work to be done in this section by members of our four groups," he said.

Meets Members Tuesday.

Mr. Colson will meet with representatives of the highway group of contractors at the Builders' Exchange in Atlanta Tuesday, September 16, to complete the organization of that group. Upwards of forty leading highway construction companies of the state will send representatives to this meeting. The next meeting of the building contractors will be held at the Piedmont hotel September 23.

Prominent Atlanta contracting and construction companies represented at the organization meeting were Flagler company, Barge-Thompson company, William H. George, Griffin Construction company, J. S. & C. R. Collins company, Griffin-Hodges company, J. S. McCauley company, Foundation company, George A. Clayton company, Allen Artley Construction company, W. P. Francis, T. C. Wesley, Gude & company, Shelverton Construction company, Turner Construction company, Southern Ferro Concrete company, A. K. Adams & Co., and A. J. Kregs & Co.

ATLANTANS ATTEND INDUSTRIAL MEETING

When the American Industrial Leaders' association meets in Baltimore, September 24, for its 10th annual convention, Chief Justice Richard B. Russell, of the Georgia supreme court, will be one of a number of prominent Georgians who will address the gathering.

A. B. Madison and Edward M. Steimle, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the Georgia Industrial Leaders' association are among others who will attend and who have been given places on the program.

If you ever made French dressing or mayonnaise with it you think of Wesson Oil as a choice salad oil. It is.

If you ever used Wesson Oil as frying-fat you know that it makes fried food as good-to-eat as fried food can be. It certainly does.

But did you ever try Wesson Oil as a shortening?

Wesson Oil is pure, rich fat—just the fat you need for biscuit or piecrust or cake. And you'll never know how good things can taste until you cook with a fat that is itself so good to eat.

For Cake

Using Wesson Oil in your own favorite recipe is the best way to find out how good it is.

There is only one thing to remember. Butter contains salt and water. Wesson Oil is all pure fat, therefore "richer" than butter, and is unsalted. If your old recipe calls for butter, use a little less Wesson Oil and add salt.

MRS. JOB.
By Wallace M. Bayliss.

Sometimes the wrong folks marry.
Let us take
The case of Mrs. Job. Her great mistake
Came when she failed herself to analyze
To know what man to love, what to despise.
The cave man was the type she should have wed,
One who would hit her promptly on the head
If she so much as peeped if things went wrong;
She then would have been happy all day long.
Instead she married Job and thus became
A rather famous though unhappy dame.
Job was the chap whose patience was so great
No one has equalled it to present date.
Whatever happened morning, noon or night.
Job said: "Don't worry, dear: it's quite all right."
Now such a disposition might seem prime
But it would grow monotonous in time;
And so it did to Mrs. Job who grew
To be a sharp-tongued, disappointed shrew.
When in a storm she blew away one night,
They say Job said again, "It's quite al right."
Perhaps she, too, poor soul, was glad to go;
Of course that's something we shall never know.
This much, girls, you may learn from her defeat,
Don't wed a man who's too confounded sweet.

After watching her hostess boil potatoes with skins on, then peel and mash them, an old lady asked in surprise: "Why do you cook 'em with the jackets on fer mashed potatoes? I never seen 'em done that way before."
"Because," answered the young wife, "the potatoes don't boil to pieces, are never watery when mashed, and the part that is ordinarily peeled off with the skin is saved."
"Well, I'll be," ejaculated the old lady, who was very parsimonious, "I've always heard, 'You kin learn somethin' from every fool,' an' now I b'lieve it."

Expert Advice.

Little Marjorie was taken to her first mass. The good father had often visited in her home, so she felt quite well acquainted.
Whenever Marjorie had had a cold, she had always been told to "blow hard."

This was too much for Marjorie, so she shouted from her pew: "Bo' real ha'd Fa'er Ne'an."

THE GUMPS—THE CAR IS WAITING, MADAM

tered for a moment and then broke into fierce flame. The man walked towards the brushwood with the object of thrusting the torch well under the piled branches. He had almost reached the edge when his knees suddenly gave way and he dropped on his face and lay still.

A look of amazement came over the sea of dusky faces.. There was nothing to account for this strange incident. It was just as though the man had trodden on a ten-thousand volt electric cable, except that his body appeared to be unscathed. Flood, who evidently attributed the calamity to some kind of seizure, turned to another man and ordered him to carry out the interrupted task. The man walked forward, stooped to pick up the flaming torch. His fingers had almost clasped upon it, when he, too, measured his length in the snow and lay still.

O'Neill was the only man present who knew the secret of the swift death. Somewhere in the pines, over five hundred yards away, was Rodd with his terrible unerring rifle. No one but Rodd could have performed such miracles of marksmanship. The two men had received the messengers of death clean through the heart. In the distance the pine trees looked innocent enough, and the report of the rifle was smothered by the denseness of the timber.

The death of the second man caused a low murmur of alarm to issue from the throats of the spectators. Flood, however, was quickly alive to the solution, but uncertain how to act. He turned to the red-skinned chief beside him and whispered something. The latter nodded and unslung his rifle from his shoulder. He stood up and ran to him. He rapped out orders, and the party commenced to make for the pines where Rodd presumbly lay hidden.

They had not gone ten yards when there came an interruption that brought them to a halt. There was a low boom, a kind of screech through the air, and a deafening explosion. A sleigh standing outside the ring of spectators was suddenly enwrapped in flame and smoke, and disappeared in fragments. There was an awful silence for a second, and then the whole cordon broke with yells of rage and fear. A second boom, and another nerve-racking explosion. The shell burst, flinging up a cloud of snow. A crowd of men in the vicinity wheeled and retreated.

O'Neill, no less amazed than Flood, was suddenly treated to a sight as welcome as it was wonderful. From out of the trees, half a mile away, came columns of mounted police. They crossed an open space, and disappeared into the woods again, as though making for the timbered point nearest the camp. He gasped as they continued to come—hundreds of them! He blinked, wondering if this were some trick of the vision, but a glance at the face of Flood, and at the startled Indians, convinced him it was true.

Still the mounted men continued to cross the snow. It looked as though every member of the N. W. M. P. had been miraculously transported to the spot. Flood's face was the picture of abject disappointment and baffled hope. He tried to rally his panic-stricken forces, but failed. Then his eyes turned to O'Neill, and all his hate was concentrated upon the helpless man. He ran towards the latter, a revolver in his hand.

"Curse you!" he hissed. "This must be your doings, O'Neill. But you are not going to live and triumph over me."

He levelled the revolver and O'Neill saw the deadly intent in his inflamed eyes. He saw the finger compress on the trigger, and then—Flood dropped dead. O'Neill looked towards the pines, but saw no sign of Rodd. But a moment later a horse and rider emerged from the woods with one hand raised aloft to indicate he came with a message. He halted on the fringe of the camp and a deputation went to meet him. O'Neill saw him in conversation with "The Fox that Flies" and several other chiefs. Much gesticulation followed and the chiefs returned. Ten minutes elapsed during which O'Neill wrenched at his bonds without avail. Indians and half-breeds hung about in small cliques, apparently discussing the unexpected change in the situation. At length a decision was arrived at, "The Fox that Flies" came to O'Neill and cut him free.

"The white man wins," he said. "The prophet is dead, and the woods are full of police. The Manitou has deserted his red children."

"O'Neill said nothing, but walked towards the mounted figure outside the camp. It was Captain Wren, looking extremely pleased with himself.

"We were in the nick of time, O'Neill."

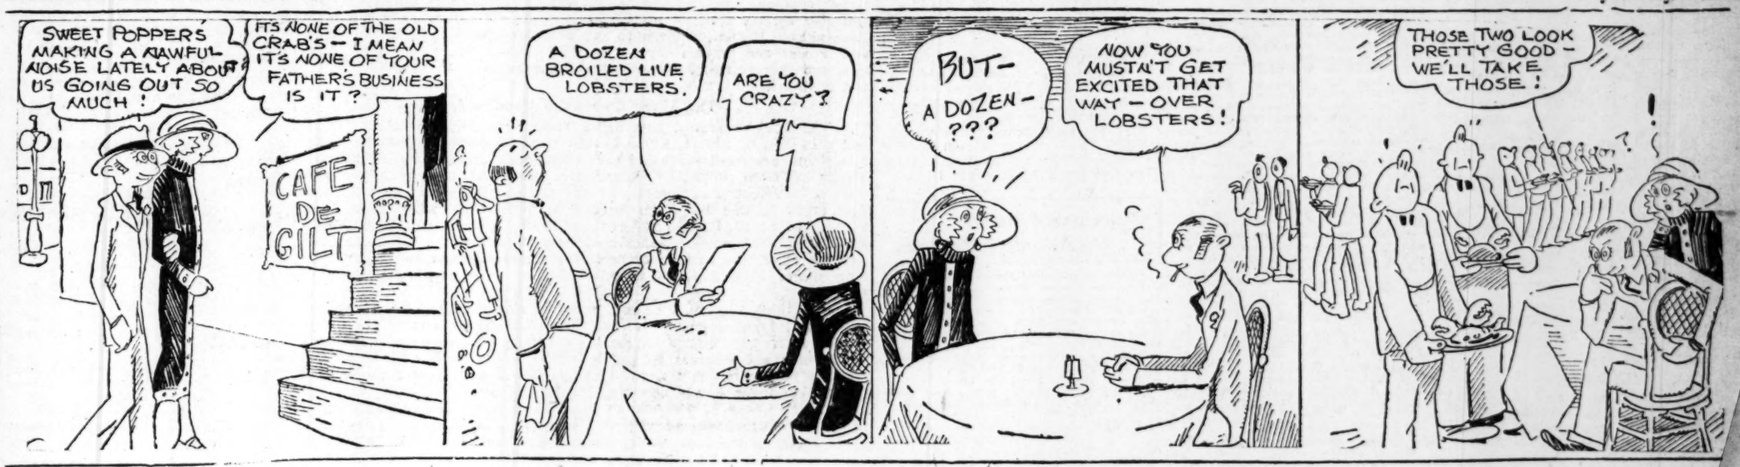

"Yes, sir. I never expected this."

"I don't suppose you did—jump aboard. I'll take you back to the woods."

"O'neill mounted the black broncho and they cantered across the snow. Inside the woods he dismounted and met Rodd.

O'Neill was led away, bound, and flung into the snow to await Flood's decision concerning his death. He had not long to wait. Flood entered the clearing and rapped out some instructions. A thick stake was requisitioned and sunk into the earth. To this O'Neill was bound with stout strips of buffalo hide. Two Crees began to distribute brushwood in a circle or small radius with the pole at its center. O'Neill realized that the intention was not to burn him, but to roast him, slowly and deliberately from the feet upwards.

By the time everything was complete, practically the whole camp had gathered round the stake, forming a huge circle. Flood made a sign and a half-breed lighted a torch. It spluttered for a moment and then broke into fierce flame. The man walked towards the brushwood with the object of thrusting the torch well under the piled branches. He had almost reached the edge when his knees suddenly gave way and he dropped on his face and lay still.

New York, September 9.—A further decline in the cotton market early today was followed by rallies and a decided contraction in the volume of business. December sold off to 23.01, or 7 points below yesterday's closing quotation, and then rallied to 23.23, closing at 23.06. The general market closed steady, net 6 points lower to 8 points higher.

The market opened firm at an advance of 15 to 20 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and covering. Demand was quickly supplied at the initial figures and the market eased off from 23.78 to 23.50 for October and from 23.17 to 22.90 for January before noon under continued selling which began immediately after the publication of yesterday's government crop report. At these prices the market showed declines of about 100 to 125 points from the high prices of yesterday morning, and seemed to be meeting an increased demand from the trade. As the tone steadied on this demand, covering became a little more active, leading to rallies of 20 to 25 points from the lowest. The market, however, was very quiet in the late trading and prices eased off again, with near months relatively easy under selling believed to represent hedging by the south.

The covering movement in the early afternoon was promoted by reports of rather heavy general showers or rains in the eastern belt, but while some feared damage to open cotton, others thought any harm in that respect would be offset by the development of later plants. Conflicting reports were received regarding the basis in the south, some claiming that growers were showing a disposition to offer less freely, while others said the basis was easier.

Exports for the day 32,472, making 340,039 so far this season. Port receipts 62,507; United States port stocks, 286,493.

NARROW AFFAIR AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, September 9.—The cotton market was comparatively narrow today following yesterday's heavy liquidation and activity. On the whole the tone was steadier and at times the market showed a disposition to rally, but has held in check by hedge selling and the more liberal movement of the crop to market. There was no great pressure to sell, however, and trade buying absorbed the offerings fairly well so that final results showed practically no change for the day.

Liverpool came in better than due first trades here were only five to [illegible] points above the previous close which was considered a poor response to the firmness of the British market. The market continued to prove after the opening call and October soon traded up to 22.92 and December to 22.97, or 12 points on both positions above the previous close. Later in the morning prices eased off under the pressure of hedge selling until October and December dropped 27 points down from the early highs. Around noon the market rallied under the stimulus of good trade buying and shorts covering and all of the loss was recovered and December made a new high at 22.98. The market fluctuated within the earlier range during the afternoon but prices were nearer the high points than the lows. The close showed three points net lower for the day on October, no change on December and a gain of one point on January.

The supporting influences included a better trade demand for contracts, reports from the interior that farmers were refusing to sell at the lower prices and were holding back and cables to the effect that Lancashier spinners were likely to expand working hours in mills using American cotton. There were also some fears of unfavorable weather in the near future.

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, September 9.—After a brisk opening the market turned dull and even during the last hour no further progress was made by the main body of stocks. However, prices were steady and additional gains scored by individual issues. Lackawanna reached a new high on the present move at 146⅞, while Delaware and Hudson jumped 3¾ points to 128½, reflecting the expectation of ultimate segregation of the coal properties. In the oil group, renewed operations for the rise were noticeable in Houston and Marland both of which scored sharp advances. Closing prices were firm and a great many issues closed fractionally higher for the day.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, September 9.—The advance from the low point of yesterday has been so rapid that the market should run into a good deal of irregularity, but we believe for the time being the trend of stocks is still upward and that on reactions good stocks can be bought.

Cotton Letters.

POST & FLAGG.

New York, September 9.—The market has been more quiet and steadier with shorts disposed to secure profits on the ground that the final chapter in the history of the crop has not been written, while the first chapter of the history of the demand is just going to the press. There are several weeks still in which a lot of damage could be done to a crop as late as this, and foreign advices indicate a very large volume of business pending which would go through at once if sellers could make some small concessions as a result of lower cost for raw material. Domestic mills show a disposition to fix prices though their operations are confined to buying on a scale down. This, however, is constantly helping to ease the burden of the early receipts and if the demand continues and producers start to hold a fairly tight situation would develop in spite of the prospective size of the crop.

FENNER & BEANE.

New Orleans, La., September 9.—Cotton values moved but little during the day and less bearish and a good many shorts covered. Quite a fair amount of selling was to hedge cotton, but the volume of this was not large because farmers as a rule are not selling at these prices and spot sales in the interior were not large. Belief that the market was in an oversold condition as a result of yesterday's operations. Private forecast of a bad spell of weather in the near future and reports that the holding movement is beginning to take shape were the chief sustaining influences. People who figured on yesterday's ginning and who pay attention to past records of production are inclined to doubt the accuracy of the government forecast of a crop of 12,-787,000 the more they study its figures.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, September 9.—Anything which may develop of a stimulating character will probably find the market very strong technically and cause a sharp rally. Purchases made on further reactions can probably be disposed of profitably. Liverpool due Wednesday: October, 13.41; January, 13.42.

H. & B. BEER.

New Orleans, September 9.—This year's crop is still in the making, especially as concerns late cotton and the present indicated yield is not burdensome when it is considered that the supply for season before last was 15,303,000 bales when the world consumed 12,829,000 on the basis of 24.06 cents per pound as the average price for that season. This season the south is better off financially than ever before, for notwithstanding the lower prices prevailing, the crop outlook is larger, which will make up for the lower prices, probably bringing to the south about as much as did last year's crop, or about $1,658,243,000, exclusive of the value of the seed.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, September 9.—The map this morning showed rains in the Atlantic states which were considered as beneficial, causing a little flurry of selling. There is no question that the trade is very mixed and crop estimates much more than they have in a good many years. However, it will not be long before a very decided general opinion of the yield will be formed and when such time occurs, a definite trend to the market will, in all probability, be in evidence. Liverpool futures are due tomorrow: October, 13.41; December, 13.31.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, September 9.—Sentiment remains bearish and lower prices are expected barring any unforeseen weather developments.

C. P. ELLIS & CO.

New Orleans, September 9.—There is some talk of a holding movement developing, but the easy spot basis, particularly in the southwest, does not suggest anything of the kind as yet. As a matter of fact producers in the southwest are seldom given to holding their cotton off the market and with the relatively full supply which is promised we think they are all the less likely to do so this season. Spinners on the other hand also impressed by the large crop estimates are in no hurry to buy, and with speculative support lacking it is difficult at the moment to see where the buying power is to come from to absorb the heavy hedge selling with which the market will be faced during the next six weeks. Under the circumstances we think prices must decline to a point which will invite investment buying or at which the mills will find it attractive to lay in stocks. Just what that point will be we should hesitate to predict, but we do not think that it will be much if any this side of 20 cents.

J. W. JOY & CO.

New York, September 9.—Farmers slightly less eager to sell. Trading is more liquid. Considerable cotton is wanted around 23 cents for December, and immediate market depends largely upon quantity of hedges the south sells.

New York, September 9.—Bond prices turned upward today under the leadership of French obligations, which responded to cabled reports from Paris that J. P. Morgan & Co. were ready to renew a $100,000,000 credit to the Bank of France, if required. Railroad issues advanced in sympathy with a brisk upturn in shares of the leading carriers.

Both French republic and municipal issues participated in today's advance on the theory that extension of the Morgan credit would provide a bulwark for protection of the franc, and placed France in a favorable position for floating a long-term external loan at a later date. Another interesting development in connection with French bonds was the report that a $10,000,000 loan shortly would be arranged for the Paris-Orleans railway. The forward movement of the high-grade rail liens was led by Norfolk and Western convertible 6s, which scored a net gain of 2 points.

Other issues which joined in the advance were Atlantic Coast Line 4s, Union Pacific first 4s and Reading general 4s. St. Paul railroad bonds moved counter to the general trend, declining with the company's stock issue on reports that the road might readjust its capital structure in order to complete 1925 refunding operations.

An advance of 3 points in Brooklyn Union Gas 7s of 1932 carried that issue to a new high record at 143. Bonds of the copper, sugar and rubber companies were in good demand.

Bankers have placed privately $5,-000,000 issue of Texas and Pacific-Missouri Pacific Terminal railroad of New Orleans 5 1-2 per cent bonds.

The Investor

BY PAUL WILLARD GARRETT

The Carolina Power and Light Company Differs from Most Other Utilities in Its Group in That It Is Both a Holding and an Operating Company.

Although the method is not infallible, one way for investors to obtain at least an indication of improvement in the position of a company's bond and preferred stock issues is to watch the improvement in the quality of the common shares. The better the common stock becomes the better will be the issues senior to it. The appreciation in market position of Carolina Power and Light company's common shares during the recent months must already have called the attention of many to the investment issues on this company's list. Earlier in 1924 Carolina Power and Light company's common shares could have been bought at 82½, but the price gradually has climbed, as the analysts have spread news of the situation until a few days ago buyers were bidding 232 for stock. Even among the power and light stocks of improving quality it is not so easy to find issues that have almost trebled in price during 1924.

Is Unique in Its Category.

The Carolina Power and Light company is affiliated with the Electric Bond and Share company, thus belonging in a general category with such prominent holding companies as the American Power and Light company, American Gas and Electric company, National Power and Light company, Appalachian Power company, and the Lehigh Power Securities company. It usually is classified thus among the holding companies, but it differs from the other more important holding companies affiliated with the Electric Bond and Share company, in that it operates certain properties directly. In other words, the Carolina Power and Light company is both a holding and an operating company.

That being the case, investors who find objections to an investment in the securities of the ordinary holding company must view the Carolina Power and Light list somewhat differently and more favorably than would otherwise be the case.

Its Operations and Its Control.

The Carolina Power and Light company itself supplies electric power and light, street railway and gas service in Raleigh, gas service in Durham, and power and light service in such places as Goldsboro, Henderson, Oxford, Sanford, Dunn, Franklin, Clinton, Mount Olive and Jonesboro, not to mention the fact that it wholesales power and light to 16 other communities in North Carolina.

Then there are two main subsidiaries—the Yadkin River Power company and the Asheville Power and Light company. The Yadkin River Power company operates throughout various sections of South Carolina and also certain sections of North Carolina. It serves such places as Rockingham, Hamlet, Wadesboro and numerous small centers. The Asheville Power and Light company does an electric power and light business and the entire street railway and gas business in Asheville, N. C., and environs.

The Three Companies Combined.

The three companies have had a tremendous growth in recent years, and it is that, of course, which has raised the investment position of the bonds and preferred stocks of the companies. Growth during the last decade has been particularly impressive. Ten years ago, in 1914, there were 9,799 electric customers; by the end of 1923 there were 33,858. The gross income has been swelled by persistent yearly gains from $1,284,985 in 1914 to $4,903,161 for 1923. Also by steady annual increases the net income has increased from $611,396 in 1914 to $2,210,-563 for 1923; the balance available for Carolina Power and Light common shares from $67,464 to $807,363, or from $1.55 per share to $16.86.

One thing that must be recognized in connection with the Carolina Power and Light company is that the group serves a rapidly growing section where the demand for service has been increasing faster than the ability of the companies to supply power. To increase their general capacity to handle business the Carolina Power and Light company and the Yadkin River Power company during the past 18 months have expended more than $8,000,000 on their properties. The full benefits of this expenditure have not yet been realized. The Carolina Power and Light company and the Yadkin River Power company, which are interconnected, form the northwestern end of the power system in the south by which all of the larger companies are connected. WHEAT ADVANCES ON FROST REPORTS

Chicago, September 9.—Widespread frost, together with correct general belief that the government estimate of corn yield would be sharply reduced gave the corn market today a decided lift. Corn closing prices were strong, 1 1-8 to 1 1-2c net higher, December $1.43 7-8 to $1.14. Wheat finished unsettled at 3-8 net decline to 1-4c advance, December $1.27 5-8 to $1.27 3 4 and May $1.34 to $1.34 1-8. Oats 1-4 off to 3-8 up and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of a shade.

Broadening of demand for corn was evident throughout the day. Iowa reports of frost were especially effective as a stimulus to buyers and a further incentive came from the fact that the outlook was for additional frost tonight both in Iowa and other important states as well. Absence of definite reports of serious damage from last night's frost, however, tended somewhat to check the upward swing of values. After the close, too, a disposition was shown to construe the government report as bearish in some respects, the Washington estimate of yield although much reduced as compared with a month ago being a good deal larger than unofficial reports had indicated.

Wheat export business here and at the seaboard helped somewhat to offset in the wheat market the influence of heavy deliveries here and preparations for a bearish government report. Frost in Canada, drouth in Argentina and crop damage complains from France, Germany and Belgium were bullish factors early, but were lost sight of later until it was seen than exporters were taking hold.

In the oats market the prospect of bearish report from Washington was more or less counterbalanced by corn strength and by frost damage in the Canadian northwest.

Call for provisions lacked volume.

Grain Letter.

FENNER & BEANE.

Chicago, September 9.—WHEAT: Trade light and largely of local character. There was a general disposition to await the government report. Prices held within a narrow range with hedging sales provided for by purchases to cover shorts and against export business.

CORN: There was local buying on reports of frost over Minnesota and parts of Iowa and by shorts in the later trade. Every bulge brought out profit-taking sales, however, and market did not have any aggressive support from any source.

OATS: Liquidation by longs provided for the demand but there was liquidation in September and the undertone was strong. Weather generally unfavorable and country offerings to arrive light.

RYE: Trade small. There was some buying against export business but hedging came into the market and prices averaged lower.

PROVISIONS: Trade limited with packers apparently paying little attention. Hogs market steady to 10 up; top, 10.00.

Healthy Recovery Is Seen In Stock Market Tuesday

FIRM TONE FELT IN CURB MARKET

New York, September 9.—Curb securities were in general demand in broader and more active trading today, prices of leading issues responding early to spirited buying. Later they reacted, although a firm undertone prevailed throughout the session.

Pittsburg and West Virginia rights admitted to trading today, absorbed attention after the flurry had subsided, moving up from 7, the opening, to a high of 9 1-8, but closing at 8 7-8. Common stock of the Pittsburg Terminal company on a "when issued" basis, also appearing for the first time, opened at 46, later selling off to 43 1-2. The preferred shares opened at 80, touched 80 1-2, and closed at 80.

Conficting movements marked the oils, New England Fuel Oil losing 7 1-2 points, Illinois Pipe and Northern Pipe, 3 each, on small turnovers, and South Penn Oil 5. In contrast to these declines Standard Oil of Kentucky, Buckeye Pipe, Vacuum and Penn-Mexico Fuel gained from 1 1-2 to 2 points.

Radio shares were firm, strength of Jones Radio being the feature of group. Gillette Razor stood out in the industrials ith a gain of 2 points. Grand Stores moved up 2 1-2. A 4-point advance by American Power and Light on small sales led the utility group.

New York, September 9.—Directors of the Daniel Boone Woolen mills, meeting in Chicago today, omitted the quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital stock due at this time.

The action of the directors further emphasized the depression in the textile industry, on which light was thrown last week by the omission of the American Woolen company's common dividend and readjustment of the capital structure of the Consolidated Textile corporation.

Daniel Boone shres on the New York stock exchange today declined to a new low record at 10 1-2, later closing at 11 1-8. Earlier in the year the stock sold at a high price of 32 1-2.

New York, September 9.—Stock prices bounded upward today in what was generally construed as a reflection of Wall street's satisfaction with the Maine election results. Opening gains in the popular industrial and railroad issues ranged from 1 to 4 1-2 points and these were fairly well maintained, despite occasional flurries of selling throughout the rest of the session.

With a large short interest built up in the perpendicular decline of the last two weeks, technical conditions also were ripe for a rally, which was one of the sharpest since the unexpected declaration of an extra dividend on United States Steel common last fall. Sales in the first half hour approximated one quarter of a million shares, but the market turned dull after the first batch of buying orders had been absorbed, the day's sales aggregating about 850,000 shares.

With the removal of political uncertainties was undoubtedly the principal factor in the advance, other contributing influences were the increased demand for steel products, lower time money rates, the proposed segregation of the coal properties of the Pittsburg and West Virginia Railroad, which is believed to prepare the way for that road's admission into the Van Sweringen family, and indications that the government's $350,-000,000 issue of treasury certificates would be absorbed readily.

Reduction of the quarterly dividend on Chandler shares from $1.50 to 75 cents was one of the principal financial developments of the day. That stock opened 3 points higher at 38, cancelled its gain in the wave of profit-taking and short selling that followed the initial outburst of buying, moved up again to 36 1-2 and then fell to 34 1-2, the year's low, following the announcement of the dividend action. It closed at 35. Steady accumulation was noted in the railroad group, particularly among the high grade shares. Lackawanna continued to be the feature, this stock establishing a new high record for the year at 146 3-8 on buying based on the expectation that the road will cut a huge melon, preparatory to be taken into the new Nickel Plate system.

Pittsburg and West Virginia preferred which is to be retired at 105, touched a new high for the year at the redemption price, up two points. Rutland preferred, broke 8 points to 47 following the failure of directors to resume dividends on this issue. A recent rise in the stock had been predicated on reports that a payment would be authorized at today's meeting.

St. Paul issues also were weak at the close on rumors, that the road might find it necessary to readjust its capital structure in order to complete its refunding operations next year. The common stock declined a point and the preferred 2 5-8 points to 22. An advance of 5 1-4 points in Delaware and Hudson was based on the belief that this road would follow the action of Pittsburg and West Virginia in segregating its coal properties.

Dividend influences were reflected in the movements of several industrial issues. Omission of the quarterly dividend on the Daniel Boone woolen mill was not announced until after the close of the market. Prior to the director's action the stock touched a record low price at 10 1-2, later closing at 11 1-8, a net loss of 5-8. Fresh selling of American Woolen, which cancelled an early recovery, cropped out in anticipation of this development, which redirected attention to the depression in the textile industry.

Foreign exchanges staged a vigorous upturn under the leadership of sterling, which rallied about 3 cents to around $4.45, before selling back to $4.44 1-4. French francs also recovered about 8 points to about 5.30 cent on cable dispatches from Paris reporting that J. P. Morgan was ready to renew the $100,000,000 credit to the Bank of France, if required.

Call money ruled at 2 per cent throughout the day. Time funds were in plentiful supply at rates ranging from 2 3-4 to 3 1-2 per cent. Commercial paper was quiet at 3 1-4 to 3 1-2 per cent.

Retail Merchants Plan To Eliminate Street Confusion

A movement has been started by members of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association to eliminate ambiguous street names, addresses and numbers. The necessity for this, the merchants point out, has been realized for many years, as a great deal of trouble and confusion had existed in delivery of mail and parcel post packages. This was due, the association points out, to the fact many streets in the same sections of the city have the same name and in some cases one number will be on several residences on a street.

J. ALEXANDER BROWN ON VISIT TO ATLANTA

J. Alexander Brown, of New York, vice president and manager of the Railway Equipment and Publication company, is in Atlanta on a short visit to railroad and railway officials. Mr. Brown declared that Atlanta's growth since his last visit here, 20 years ago, is amazing. He was greatly impressed with the Stone Mountain memorial project. He is registered at the Biltmore hotel.

Over Million-Bale Cotton Crop Predicted for Georgia

The condition of cotton in Georgia on September 1 was 64 per cent of normal, as compared with 70 per cent two weeks previous, and 42 per cent on August 25, 1923, according to the official report released through the Georgia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service.

Judging from the relation of condition on August 25 and September 25 to final yields in former years, the condition of 64 per cent on September 1 indicates a yield per acre of about 153.6 pounds per acre and a total production of about 1,209,000 bales of 500 pounds gross. The indicated yield and production is slightly above that of August 16, as the decline of 6 points indicated was less than might be reasonably expected when producing cotton under weevil conditions. The final outturn will vary from the above amount as conditions are better or worse than average after September 1.

In a number of counties in the northern third of the state (particularly in northeast Georgia) and in other scattered counties severe drought has checked growth and caused shedding of young bolls somewhat in excess of normal, thereby reducing what was a splendid outlook in those counties. Some premature opening is resulting in shorter staple and lighter bolls in the territory mentioned above.

There has been very little boll weevil damage to date over any considerable area, and although weevils are becoming more active in the southern half of the state, the crop is too far advanced for them to do serious damage.

While the potential crop was reduced by drought during the past month, plants, for the most part, are holding and maturing a good set of fruit, and a crop in excess of a million bales is still probable, says the report.

MRS. FANNIE STEWART TO BE BURIED TODAY

Final tribute to Mrs. Fannie S. Stewart, one of Atlanta's most prominent women and widow of the late Andrew Perry Stewart, who died early Tuesday morning at the home of a nephew, Fred S. Stewart, of 359 Gordon street, will be paid in funeral services to be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from the residence of Mr. Stewart, with Dr. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Dr. W. W. Landrum officiating. Interment will be in West View, with Barclay & Brandon in charge.

Members of the Atlanta Ladies' Memorial association, of which Mrs. Stewart had been a member for many years, will attend the funeral in a body. They have been asked by the president to meet at the residence, 359 Gordon street, at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon.

Mrs. Stewart had been an invalid for the past three years, and her death followed a long illness. She was born in Atlanta in 1848, and had resided in this city all her life, watching and helping its growth from an almost unknown village to the great city of today. Previous to her marriage, she was Miss Frances Susan Manning, and a member of a distinguished Georgia family.

Lived Here All Life.

Mrs. Stewart attended the public schools of the city, and during her girlhood she was a popular member of the younger social set. She was married in Atlanta on December 14, 1870. When her husband was elected tax collector of Fulton county, she entered more actively into social and civic life of the community.

She was prominently identified with many of the city's organizations and was a member of the board of directors of the Georgia Baptist Orphans' home and the Georgia Baptist hospital, of the Oglethorpe university women's board, and of the mission board of the Southern Baptist church. She was also a member of the Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, the Uncle Remus Memorial association, and the Atlanta Ladies' Memorial association.

Since childhood, she had been a member of the First Baptist church, and was identified with all its activities, her service always being available when most needed.

Member of Prominent Family.

Mrs. Stewart's father, Judge Jethero Manning, was a resident of Atlanta when the city was in its infancy, and as a leading business man of the community contributed much toward its civic and industrial growth.

Her husband, Andrew Perry Stewart, also was one of the city's best known citizens, and served as tax collector for 37 years. Fred S. Stewart, at whose home she had resided for the past few years, is president of the Fred S. Stewart Shoe company.

Mrs. Stewart is survived by a sister, Mrs. Norman Shelverton, of Atlanta, in addition to several nieces and nephews.

New Paper Appears.

Salisbury, N. C., September 9.—The Salisbury Daily Index made its appearance here this morning. William H. Steward is the editor and publisher. The paper will appear every morning except Monday, the first issue announced.

The Van Sweringen Merger and the I.C.C.—Cutting of the Chandler Annual Dividend—Durant and C. P. I.

New York, September 9.—Next to the coming election of president there is no subject of general discussion in Wall street which attracts as much attention as the plan afoot for voluntary railway consolidations in various parts of the country. The Van Sweringen plan, providing for the merger of Erie, Pere Marquette, Chesapeake & Ohio and possibly some other important companies into the new Nickel Plate system, has reached the point where developments wait on the approval or disapproval of the interstate commerce commission. As yet the commission has given no intimation of what its decision will be, but a ruling is expected in the immediate future. The Van Sweringen plan entirely disrupts the tentative plans proposed by the commission for merging all of the eastern railroads. The commission may in the forthcoming Van Sweringen decision insist upon its announced merger plans being carried out, as these plans of the commission were worked out in response to instructions given by congress in transportation act of 1920. The commission may permit the Van Sweringen merger and work out new plans for consolidating the remaining eastern railroads; the commission may abandon its proposed tentative general consolidation plans and simply wait for railroads to work out voluntary consolidations.

While the commission so far has not spoken a word for or against the proposed Van Sweringen merger to date, the Washington dispatches quote Secretary Mellon as favoring the Van Sweringen consolidation, as that merger would be looked upon with a friendly eye by the government.

Mellon Expresses Opinion.

Mr. Mellon, according to this dispatch, is of the opinion that the Van Sweringen merger will not restrict competition and hence will not tend to monopolize; that it will permit more efficient operation and at the same time permit a reduction in expense; that it will be in the best interest of the public and securityholders directly involved.

Trading in stocks started out this morning at a lively pace with higher prices, but the volume of business handled rapidly declined until the market was practically at a standstill with the price movement very narrow. It was the Maine election that caused the early activity, speculators jumping at the conclusion that it meant a victory for President Coolidge in November. The conclusion remained throughout the day, but after the early enthusiasm the opinion prevailed that what happened in Maine is likely to happen between now and November, that is, first a scare on the part of the republicans followed by a republican victory in about the proportions as that of the republicans yesterday in Maine.

Cutting of the Chandler Dividend.

Today's interesting news development was the cutting of the Chandler annual dividend from $6 to $3. Some months ago Chandler company published its earnings for the six months of this year showing the half year $3.03 for the stock. The first half of the year is always the best six months of the automobile manufacturer's. The cash position of the company, it is understood, is none too strong.

Chandler made its high for this year in January at 66 1-2. Recently the stock had a break of ten points. Last night's closing was 35 and today's high was 38, after which there was a decline to 34 1-2.

With last week's passing of the American Woolen dividend and today's action by Chandler directors, closer attention will be paid from now on to current earnings of the companies whose shares are listed. More attention is likely to be paid to dividend rumors of importance.

Rumors are heard here that W. C. Durant, who is reported to have cleaned up $2,000,000 in his Cast Iron Pipe stock market transactions and $4,000,000 in Studebaker, is now beginning to operate in General Asphalt. This is a stock where the floating supply is very small and at times there is a large outstanding short interest.

Charles M. Schwab, like Durant, is another active trader in the stock market at times. In fact, he and Durant were supposed to have been associated in the Studebaker transactions and are said to have cleaned up $4,000,000.

FIRST PICK SUNK ON TWO EXTENSION PROJECTS OF CITY

The first pick was sunk Tuesday morning by county construction forces in the Forrest and Angier avenue widening and extension projects. Both streets are to be made into 80-foot boulevards east of North Boulevard.

The grading, which was begun Tuesday, will require several months to complete at county expense, and then arrangements for paving will be made. Councilman John A. White was the leader in council in the movement to secure the improvement, which will form two new connecting links between the center of the city and the northeast, Druid Hills and Inman park sections. The widening of Forrest from Peachtree to Boulevard, completed several months ago, was the first step in the project.

MOUNT VERNON SCHOOL DEDICATED AT NOON

Mount Vernon school on Marietta road, will be dedicated as the newest and finest structure in the county system at corner stone laying exercises at noon today, school officials announced Tuesday. An American flag is to be raised over the new building at the close of the exercises.

The new building will be opened for the fall term Friday morning.

Licenses to build power dams on the Klamath river in California will be granted only on condition that the plans are approved by the bureau of fisheries.

Constitution Writer Honored by Veterans In National Meeting

Michigan City, Ind., September 9.—(Special.)—Rev. Sam Small, whose comment and articles in The Atlanta Constitution have won him nationwide attention, today was unanimously reelected as chaplain-in-chief of naval and military order, of the Spanish-American war veterans, in national convention here.

The convention, which is attended by delegates from all parts of the United States, is one of the greatest ever held by the organization. Georgia camps are well represented at the meet.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS NEWLY-MADE GRAVE

Police, after opening a grave in the woods in the vicinity of Capitol avenue and Thrailkill streets Tuesday and finding it empty, are wondering just what it is all about. A "regulation" grave had been dug, but nothing was in it but dirt.

Negroes passing the place reported to Captain Holcombe that sounds made by the grave digger had been heard Sunday and Monday nights and that a white-clad person had been seen in the woods of that vicinity. It is the opinion of police that the grave was dug by "Jack the Ripper," who has killed four negro women during the past two weeks, and who was preparing a resting place for the body of a new victim.

ADDIE ADE'S ADVENTURES

The Minute-A-Day Serial

CHAPTER 5—"You don't care if I take your Ma to town with me this afternoon, do you, Addie?" asked Dad Ade one afternoon a week later..."I've got to try to find somebody to buy those hundred and twenty-five bushels of potatoes we have left—and she'd like to ride in with me and sit in the movies while I'm hustlin' around," he added—with a wink at Addie.

"We don't care a bit, do we, Hamlet?" replied Addie, stooping to rub the head of a Great Dane that lay at her feet. "He's a lot better looking than the one that other man wanted to sell us, isn't he, Dad?"

"Yep, he's a dandy," said Dad, "but the best looking thing I've seen in a long time is that new cream separator in at Dill & Company's store. Trouble with me is that I go into town to sell potatoes and get lookin' at things I need, instead. An' I swear I don't believe I can find places to sell more'n half those potatoes unless I spend all my time drivin' around and lookin' folks up."

"Why don't you put an ad about them in the Farm and Dairy Products of The Constitution, and let the people that need potatoes look you up?" asked Addie.

"Maybe he wouldn't mind having the time to go to the movies, himself," added Ma Ade, who found it was her turn to wink at Addie, "and he can spend the rest of the afternoon admiring this new cream separator he's fallen in love with."

GINNERIES OF SPARTA WORKING TO CAPACITY

Sparta, Ga., September 9.—(Special.)—The three big ginneries of Sparta are now running full time on the 1924 cotton crop, which will be the largest gathered in this county in several years. For the past week, much of the cotton ginned has been "storm cotton" damaged by the recent heavy rains, but this part of the crop is about harvested and from now on the staple will be of good quality.

Many farmers are selling as fast as they gin and the money, which is being put into circulation with the local merchants, is helping conditions commercially. Prospects for a good fall business is evident on all sides.

TAXI DRIVER USED WRENCH TO DENY REQUEST, IS CLAIM

Police are searching for an unidentified taxi driver, who is alleged to have used a monkey wrench in administering a severe beating to E. F. Luna, an employee of the Smith & Rankin Real Estate company, near the Winecoff hotel on Ellis street, late Tuesday night.

According to the story told by Luna at police station after his injuries had been dressed at Grady hospital, he was attempting to drive his car away from where it was parked on Ellis street at the time. However, his machine was blocked by a taxicab, and the taxi driver refused to heed Luna's request to move the cab.

When he repeated the request, Luna says, the taxi driver grew abusive, and the attack with the monkey wrench followed. Luna was badly cut and bruised about the head and shoulders.

He has offered a $100 reward for capture of his alleged assailant.

RAINSTORM HALTS TUCHENS FIGHTING

Military Dictator Is Former Brigand

Pekin, September 9.—General Chang Tso Lin, military dictator of China and the most powerful man in the nation, is a "self-made man," 42 years old, and of small stature. He is soft-spoken and dresses simply except for a large pearl hat. He is an ex-brigand with five wives and five large families.

Chang is reputed to have an army of 300,000 men and an adequate number of machine guns and airplanes. His income probably is equivalent to $2,500,000 a year.

Shanghai, September 9.—After yet another day of fighting along the Woosung front outside Shanghai, the situation has not been altered and the foreign marines who were landed Monday are sitting tight pending developments.

It is now believed unlikely that the city of Shanghai itself will be the scene of any actual fighting. All the warring tuchens fear to incur the displeasure of the allies, and the latter are in no mood to stand for the imperiling of foreign life and property. Hence, Generals Chi Hsieh Yuan and General Wu Pei Fu probably will fight out their battle with Lu Yung Hsiang outside the walls of the city.

The marines remain in a cordon all along the city border, however, ready for any contingency.

Roads Hinder Movements.

Likewise, the movements of Sun Yat Sen, who is advancing from the south, and of Chang Tso Lin, reported marching toward Peking from the north, are not yet causing immediate concern, either to Chi or the Peking government. Chinese roads, very poor at their best, are being churned up into mud and the movement of these two armies will be very slow. It would take Chang weeks to arrive at Peking with an army and Sun Yat Sen would be unable to reach the Shanghai war zone with an adequate force for months, it is declared by military experts here.

Consequently, it is predicted in some quarters that there will be no conclusive result in the nation-wide civil war until next spring. The nature of Chinese warfare is such that almost anything may happen except a speedy heavy troop movement over long distances, and it is possible that Chi and Lu may not even fight to the finish their present battle for Shanghai.

Lu Regains Little Ground.

Lu regained a little lost ground in the afternoon, although fighting was hampered by a terrific rainstorm which flooded Shanghai and added to the miserable condition of refugees. Tents of the marines were also swamped and the latter had a taste of disagreeable trench warfare without any actual engagement.

The proclamations of martial law, issued by the allied and American military nd naval commanders earlier in the day, are being distributed throughout the city.

Admiral Anderson, U. S. N., is in charge of the marines, with orders to check the advance of Chi's army if it should attempt to advance into the Shanghai outskirts.

NAVAL CONTINGENTS NUMBER ABOUT 1,360.

Washington, September 9.—Foreign naval forces were landed at Shanghai at daybreak Tuesday morning, as a precautionary measure, and have taken up stations about the city, Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham has advised the state department. They are cooperating with the Shanghai volunteer corps.

The naval contingents which went ashore number approximately 1,360, and there are about 1,000 members of the Shanghai volunteer corps. In the harbor are 11 American, four British, two Japanese and one Italian ship.

Cunningham said there has been no decisive result from the intermittent fighting which has been going on about the city. The nearest point of the battle line, which stretches about the Chinese capital, is nine miles distant. While hundreds of wounded are being brought into Shanghai hospitals, there is no fear felt for foreign lives and property.

Considerable artillery and large numbers of machine guns are being used, but practically no airplanes are being employed. The morale of both armies, Cunningham stated, is reported as excellent. Conditions in Shanghai, he said, are normal. Refugees continue to arrive at the rate of 6,000 to 7,000 da y.

Lightning is the chief cause of this country's forest fires. One series of thunderstorms a few years ago started forty-eight fires in a single forest in six days. Next in order to lightning as an agency of forest destruction are careless campers.

NORMAN IS INJURED AS AUTO HITS TRUCK

H. H. Norman, of 458 McLendon avenue, was treated at Grady hospital early this morning for severe cuts about the face and neck, suffered when the windshield of his car broke following a collision between his automobile and a truck parked on Highland avenue, near Dunlap avenue.

Motorcycle Officers Anderson and Jeffares, who investigated, reported that Norman's car smashed into the rear of the truck, the tail light on which was not burning. No case was made.

Let's Elect A Good Mayor

This is a task that confronts Atlanta and every voter should be on the job, informing himself about the merits of the candidates.

In Atlanta, as elsewhere, there are good men and better men, as the young woman said when she talked friendship to one and gave her hand to another.

Women are usually good judges of men. Providence seems to have given them that faculty for their own protection. It remains to be seen whether their judgment of men is equally good in politics. We trust that this is the case and hope all the women as well as all the men who can will vote in the approaching primaries, not only for Mayor but for every office.

A Home Near Georgian Terrace

This is located on a corner lot close to the Georgian Terrace and the Biltmore Hotel. The house has seven rooms and bath with extra lavatory. It is a private home occupied by the owner and is in excellent condition. We can make the price $10,500; this is the only house we have in that locality at this price. It is very close in, almost in walking distance of the center. It is a house that can be lived in for a number of years and by that time the corner lot will do what other corner lots in growing cities have done before, that is make the owner rich.
